STRUGGLED FOR HIS LIFE IN THE OHIO'S COLD WATERS

Sheriff C. F. Allison, of New Cumberland, Broke

CAME VERY NEAR DROWNING

His Overcoat Caught, Keeping Him
the Water.

RESCUED WITH DIFFICULTY

So Weakened And Chilled That He
Could Hardly Move—A Thrilling
Experience While Trying to Cross
From Congo to Wellsville.

With only his head emerging, Sheriff C. F. Allison, of New Cumberland, struggled for his life in 20 feet of water in the Ohio river Saturday afternoon, and when finally rescued was so exhausted and chilled that he was revived with difficulty. Only for a heavy overcoat which he was wearing at the time he fell into the stream his death would doubtless have been a certainty.

Sheriff Allison started to cross the river from Congo to Wellsville. Ice had formed at the bank and extended out for a distance of about 30 feet and the sheriff walked out to meet the skiff owned by Robert Johnson, which was anchored at the edge. When he was within about 10 feet of the skiff the ice underneath him gave way and he took a downward plunge before he had time to step back.

As he dropped through the opening the sheriff's coat, which was of heavy cloth and worn loosely, spread out over the solid ice and thus kept his head above water. Though held firmly in this perilous position the sheriff struggled as best he could to keep from going farther down.

Ferryman Johnson hurried to the rescue as quickly as possible, and with the aid of oars succeeded, after heroic efforts, in getting Mr. Allison to shore. He was so weakened and chilled he could scarcely move, but with assistance finally reached the home of Watson Johnson, at Congo, where he was given medical aid and revived. He felt so improved yesterday he came to Chester, remaining there until this morning, when he returned to New Cumberland.

Mr. Allison says he is positive he would have met death had it not been that his overcoat caught on the ice. The timely arrival of the ferryman also saved him from death by freezing.

AN EXTRADITION FOR C. N. STOUT

Gov. Nash and Secretary Hay Notified of An Expected

STOUT'S BOND IS GONE, TOO

And It Is Surmised That He Has Possession of It—How Peculation Became Easy for the East Palestine Man.

Columbus, February 10.—(Special).—C. P. Rothwell, acting as attorney for the village of East Palestine, called on Governor Nash one day last week to arrange to secure extradition papers for C. N. Stout, who was arrested at Hamilton, Ontario, and is wanted to answer a charge of embezzlement at East Palestine. Secretary of State Hay, at Washington, was notified that an application would be placed before him for Stout's extradition and he wired the chief of police at Hamilton to hold the man until the necessary papers reached him.

As the formal application for his extradition has not been filed with the governor yet it is surmised that the man has agreed to return without a requisition. While in Columbus Attorney Rothwell conversed over the telephone with the chief of police of Hamilton and gave him a full description of Stout, who, he understands, has been in the employ of an electric light concern in that city.

Stout is charged with absconding with $800 of the funds of East Palestine. For four years he served as superintendent and collector of the municipal light plant of that town, and his alleged peculations began early last year. He disappeared on November 5. It was a part of his official work to make collections from patrons of the light plant.

Stout had filed a bond of $1,500 for the faithful performance of his duties, but this valuable document disappeared also. There is little doubt that he obtained possession of it. The bond was signed by Henry Roderus, of East Palestine, and the father-in-law of the missing man, who resides at Greenford, Mahoning county, but neither can be held responsible unless the bond is recovered. Stout has a wife and two children, who are now at Greenford. His whereabouts were discovered by Attorney C. P. Rothwell.

Primaries at Lisbon.

Lisbon, February 10.—(Special).—The village and township Republican primaries will be held here March 8. There will be two polling places which will be open from 1 to 5:30 p. m.

A REAR-END COLLISION WHICH RESULTED FATALLY

Pittsburg, February 10.—(Special).—Early this morning one man was killed and one was badly injured in the wreck of a stock train near Haysville, 10 miles from this city on the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne & Chicago railroad. The victims were drovers on the stock train. The wreck was due to a rear-end collision between two trains east bound. A stock train stopped to allow hot boxes to be packed. This delay was not known to the engineer

CLUBBED AND LEFT QUITE HELPLESS

Colored Man Held Up and Robbed
After Making Round of

FACE TERRIBLY LACERATED

He Was Lying Helpless And Covered
With Blood When Officer Aufder-
heide Discovered Him—His Arrest
Probably Saved His Life.

Weltering in his own blood and being so near helpless from the effects of liquor that he could not rise to his feet, George Banks, colored, was picked up at a late hour Saturday night by Officer Aufderheide and taken to the city jail in the patrol. His arrest was doubtless the cause of saving his life.

Banks, who is employed by a Chester plastering contractor, came over to town early Saturday evening, and after hunting up a few acquaintances, began to make a tour of the downtown bar rooms. By the time the saloons were closed for the night Banks was full to the muzzle. He realized this fact and started for home, but by the time he reached the bridge he began to weaken at the knees and fell down.

The toll keeper was first to sight the helpless man, who made repeated efforts to get up, only to fall over again. Officer Aufderheide was soon on the scene and discovered that Banks was covered with blood. He was too weak, however, to offer any explanation, and it was thought at the time that he had been injured internally.

When the patrol arrived at the fall the blood-covered man was carried to a cell, where it was found that his face was terribly lacerated. The wounds were washed and dressed, after which the officers left.

On awakening yesterday morning Banks was much surprised to find himself behind the bars, and though he remembered nothing whatever of his arrest, he told a story to the officers that may result in the arrest of other men on the charge of highway robbery.

Banks stated that he left a Second street saloon at 11 o'clock with $2 in his pockets. At that time, he declares, the liquor he drank had not taken full effect on him, and he says he distinctly remembers counting his money. He then started for the bridge, but cannot remember anything further.

The man's first statement to the police after he had become sober was that he had been held up and robbed. He said his injuries did not result from a fall, but for a bludgeon which, he contends, an unknown assailant struck him with. The police believe

COMMITTEEMEN SELECTED AT REPUBLICAN CAUCUSES

Banks' story for the reason that his injuries are of a nature that could not have come about through a fall. His right eye was swollen shut yesterday, the flesh underneath being bruised to a jelly. The other eye was also swollen, while the left cheek was split open, the wound having evidently been made by a sharp-edged club.

Unfortunately the man cannot remember anything of the supposed holdup to give the police a clue, though at the time Officer Aufderheide found him, another colored man who is supposed to have been with Banks, ran away and left him lying on the bridge.

Being charged with intoxication, Banks pleaded guilty and paid $5.60. The police, however, are making a thorough investigation. Chief Thompson says he feels satisfied Banks was the victim of thugs for the reason that his nose was not injured, which could not escape had the man's eyes and cheeks been hurt, as they were as the result of a fall.

CHURCH ON FIRE

CHILDREN BADLY FRIGHTENED, BUT NO DAMAGE DONE.

Pipe Leading From a Heater Caused
the Excitement—Fire Department Called.

A stampede was narrowly averted at the M. P. church yesterday afternoon among the members of the Junior league as the result of a small fire which started from a defect in the pipe leading from a heater.

The children were interested in their studies when the smell of wood smoke was detected. The superintendent, not knowing there was any danger, told the little ones there was no need of fear, but a moment later when the janitor came running with a hand fire extinguisher, which he turned on, the children were panic-stricken.

The fire department was summoned and on reaching the scene found the rafters of one of the walls above the heaters burning. The flames had gained little headway and were soon subdued, the damage amounting to little or nothing.

A burning chimney called the department to "Barefoot Square" Saturday night. By the time the house was reached the fire had disappeared. This was the first time the company had been called out for several weeks.

FIRE BRICK DEAL

One Syndicate to Operate Many Eastern Ohio Plants.

Lisbon, February 10.—(Special).—The Union Fire Brick & Tile company on Saturday sold its interests to Pittsburg capitalists, the sale taking place in that city. The company has operated, under a lease which expires February 15, the works of the Union Fire Clay & Stone company, located near the old McKinley farm, one mile northwest of Lisbon. The latter company sold out to Pittsburg brokers about three weeks ago. The Coleman works and the Salineville plant of W. A. Thompson were sold at the same time.

It is understood that the three works are to be transferred to a syndicate which will operate 15 or 20 plants in Eastern Ohio.

ADJUDGED INSANE

A Lisbon Man Committed to the Asylum at Massillon on Saturday.

Lisbon, February 10.—(Special).—William Hamilton, of Lisbon, was adjudged insane on Saturday and a warrant was issued for conveying him to Massillon. Hamilton is 34 years old and has been previously treated at Massillon and Newburg. His malady is alleged to be due to the excessive use of alcohol.

Ohio Canals Are Costly.

Columbus, Feb. 10.—(Special).—Chief Engineer C. E. Perkins, of the state board of public works, thinks the legislature will find itself up against a stiff proposition in the proposal to abandon the canals. To do so, he says, would work great hardships to many interests. He claims over 50,000 workmen would be affected. The total receipts from the canals in 1901 was $86,000. The expense for maintenance was $229,000.

The Attendance Was Small, But a Full List of Nominations Made.

CANDIDACY OF J. N. HANLEY

Endorsed In Resolutions Passed Unanimously at Each Meeting.

TWO DEADLOCKS OCCURRED

And It Became Necessary to Draw
Lots in Precincts of the Fourth
And Fifth Wards—Complete List
of the New Committeemen.

While the attendance at the various Republican caucuses Saturday night was not large, much interest was manifested by those in attendance, and central committeemen were selected in each of the nine voting precincts.

The lack of a very large attendance can be attributed to two causes. The system is an entirely new one, and the voters were not exactly clear as to its workings. The extremely cold night also had the effect of keeping many away. This was particularly true of the second precinct of the Fourth ward which takes in California hollow and Sunnyside, and also the districts included in Calcutta and Thompson hill.

Six of the nine precincts caucused at the city hall, the two precincts of the First ward meeting at Turner hall, and the Fifth ward at the East End fire station.

The result of the vote for central committee was as follows:

First ward, first precinct—George E. Davidson, W. B. Hill, H. W. Smith. Second precinct—W. V. Blake, William Randolph, A. W. King.

Second ward, first precinct—Charles Kinney, Ed Hatton, M. J. McGarry. Second precinct—J. N. Hanley, Lawrence T. Stevenson, Thomas McNicol.

Third ward, first precinct—A. J. Johnson, James McGarry, A. W. Stevenson. Second precinct—W. L. Smith, P. J. McKeone, George McNicol.

Fourth ward, first precinct—Frank Fowler, M. H. Edgell, Frank Gallimore. Second precinct—E. N. Croxall, George Smith, Criss McConnell.

Fifth ward—Jay Fisher, Frank Ferran, E. A. Stevenson. Township—R. G. Boyd, Harry C. Green and Ira Camberlain.

Two dead locks occurred, one in the first precinct of the Fourth and another in the Fifth. Frank Gallimore and Leroy Orr tied in the former precinct, and after several ballots had been taken it was found impossible to break the dead lock. Lots were cast and Gallimore won. The same plan was adopted in the case of E. A. Stevenson and Frank Reagel, who tied in the Fifth, Stevenson winning.

In each of the nine precinct caucuses a resolution was passed endorsing the candidacy of J. N. Hanley for county clerk. Following is a copy: Whereas, J. N. Hanley, our home candidate for clerk of courts of Columbiana county at the coming primary election, is a staunch Republican and has devoted many years of his life while a resident of East Liverpool, to the interests of the party, and

Whereas, We feel he is deserving of the votes and influence of every citizen of the county, be it

Resolved, That the Republicans of this precinct here assembled most earnestly endorse the candidacy of our townsman, J. N. Hanley, and would commend him to the voters of Columbiana county as a man in every way worthy of their support and confidence, and who, if successful in his efforts, will represent them in an able and satisfactory manner.

The vote upon this resolution was unanimous in every instance.

Fifth ward—Jay Fisher, Frank Ferran, E. A. Stevenson.

Township—R. G. Boyd, Harry C. Green and Ira Camberlain.

Two dead locks occurred, one in the first precinct of the Fourth and another in the Fifth. Frank Gallimore and Leroy Orr tied in the former precinct, and after several ballots had been taken it was found impossible to break the dead lock. Lots were cast and Gallimore won. The same plan was adopted in the case of E. A. Stevenson and Frank Reagel, who tied in the Fifth, Stevenson winning.

In each of the nine precinct caucuses a resolution was passed endorsing the candidacy of J. N. Hanley for county clerk. Following is a copy:

Whereas, J. N. Hanley, our home candidate for clerk of courts of Columbiana county at the coming primary election, is a staunch Republican and has devoted many years of his life while a resident of East Liverpool, to the interests of the party, and

Whereas, We feel he is deserving of the votes and influence of every citizen of the county, be it

Resolved, That the Republicans of this precinct here assembled most earnestly endorse the candidacy of our townsman, J. N. Hanley, and would commend him to the voters of Columbiana county as a man in every way worthy of their support and confidence, and who, if successful in his efforts, will represent them in an able and satisfactory manner.

The vote upon this resolution was unanimous in every instance.

CHURCH ON FIRE

Pipe Leading From a Heater Caused
the Excitement—Fire Depart-

A stampede was narrowly averted at the M. P. church yesterday afternoon among the members of the Junior league as the result of a small fire which started from a defect in the pipe leading from a heater.

The children were interested in their studies when the smell of wood smoke was detected. The superintendent, not knowing there was any danger, told the little ones there was no need of fear, but a moment later when the janitor came running with a hand fire extinguisher, which he turned on, the children were panic-stricken.

The fire department was summoned and on reaching the scene found the rafters of one of the walls above the heaters burning. The flames had gained little headway and were soon subdued, the damage amounting to little or nothing.

A burning chimney called the department to "Barefoot Square" Saturday night. By the time the house was reached the fire had disappeared. This was the first time the company had been called out for several weeks.

STRUGGLED FOR HIS LIFE IN THE OHIO'S COLD WATERS

the Water.

RESCUED WITH DIFFICULTY

So Weakened And Chilled That He
Could Hardly Move—A Thrilling
Experience While Trying to Cross
From Congo to Wellsville.

With only his head emerging, Sheriff C. F. Allison, of New Cumberland, struggled for his life in 20 feet of water in the Ohio river Saturday afternoon, and when finally rescued was so exhausted and chilled that he was revived with difficulty. Only for a heavy overcoat which he was wearing at the time he fell into the stream his death would doubtless have been a certainty.

Sheriff Allison started to cross the river from Congo to Wellsville. Ice had formed at the bank and extended out for a distance of about 30 feet and the sheriff walked out to meet the skiff owned by Robert Johnson, which was anchored at the edge. When he was within about 10 feet of the skiff the ice underneath him gave way and he took a downward plunge before he had time to step back.

As he dropped through the opening the sheriff's coat, which was of heavy cloth and worn loosely, spread out over the solid ice and thus kept his head above water. Though held firmly in this perilous position the sheriff struggled as best he could to keep from going farther down.

Ferryman Johnson hurried to the rescue as quickly as possible, and with the aid of oars succeeded, after heroic efforts, in getting Mr. Allison to shore. He was so weakened and chilled he could scarcely move, but with assistance finally reached the home of Watson Johnson, at Congo, where he was given medical aid and revived. He felt so improved yesterday he came to Chester, remaining there until this morning, when he returned to New Cumberland.

Mr. Allison says he is positive he would have met death had it not been that his overcoat caught on the ice. The timely arrival of the ferryman also saved him from death by freezing.

STOUT'S BOND IS GONE, TOO

And It Is Surmised That He Has Pos-

Man.

Columbus, February 10.—(Special).—C. P. Rothwell, acting as attorney for the village of East Palestine, called on Governor Nash one day last week to arrange to secure extradition papers for C. N. Stout, who was arrested at Hamilton, Ontario, and is wanted to answer a charge of embezzlement at East Palestine. Secretary of State Hay, at Washington, was notified that an application would be placed before him for Stout's extradition and he wired the chief of police at Hamilton to hold the man until the necessary papers reached him.

As the formal application for his extradition has not been filed with the governor yet it is surmised that the man has agreed to return without a requisition. While in Columbus Attorney Rothwell conversed over the telephone with the chief of police of Hamilton and gave him a full description of Stout, who, he understands, has been in the employ of an electric light concern in that city.

Stout is charged with absconding with $800 of the funds of East Palestine. For four years he served as superintendent and collector of the municipal light plant of that town, and his alleged peculations began early last year. He disappeared on November 5. It was a part of his official work to make collections from patrons of the light plant.

Stout had filed a bond of $1,500 for the faithful performance of his duties, but this valuable document disappeared also. There is little doubt that he obtained possession of it. The bond was signed by Henry Roderus, of East Palestine, and the father-in-law of the missing man, who resides at Greenford, Mahoning county, but neither can be held responsible unless the bond is recovered. Stout has a wife and two children, who are now at Greenford. His whereabouts were discovered by Attorney C. P. Rothwell.

After Making Round of

FACE TERRIBLY LACERATED

He Was Lying Helpless And Covered
With Blood When Officer Aufder-
Probably Saved His Life.

Weltering in his own blood and being so near helpless from the effects of liquor that he could not rise to his feet, George Banks, colored, was picked up at a late hour Saturday night by Officer Aufderheide and taken to the city jail in the patrol. His arrest was doubtless the cause of saving his life.

Banks, who is employed by a Chester plastering contractor, came over to town early Saturday evening, and after hunting up a few acquaintances, began to make a tour of the downtown bar rooms. By the time the saloons were closed for the night Banks was full to the muzzle. He realized this fact and started for home, but by the time he reached the bridge he began to weaken at the knees and fell down.

The toll keeper was first to sight the helpless man, who made repeated efforts to get up, only to fall over again. Officer Aufderheide was soon on the scene and discovered that Banks was covered with blood. He was too weak, however, to offer any explanation, and it was thought at the time that he had been injured internally.

When the patrol arrived at the jail the blood-covered man was carried to a cell, where it was found that his face was terribly lacerated. The wounds were washed and dressed, after which the officers left.

On awakening yesterday morning Banks was much surprised to find himself behind the bars, and though he remembered nothing whatever of his arrest, he told a story to the officers that may result in the arrest of other men on the charge of highway robbery.

Banks stated that he left a Second street saloon at 11 o'clock with $2 in his pockets. At that time, he declares, the liquor he drank had not taken full effect on him, and he says he distinctly remembers counting his money. He then started for the bridge, but cannot remember anything further.

The man's first statement to the police after he had become sober was that he had been held up and robbed. He said his injuries did not result from a fall, but for a bludgeon which, he contends, an unknown assailant struck him with. The police believe

COMMITTEEMEN SELECTED AT REPUBLICAN CAUCUSES

Banks' story for the reason that his injuries are of a nature that could not have come about through a fall. His right eye was swollen shut yesterday, the flesh underneath being bruised to a jelly. The other eye was also swollen, while the left cheek was split open, the wound having evidently been made by a sharp-edged club.

Unfortunately the man cannot remember anything of the supposed holdup to give the police a clue, though at the time Officer Aufderheide found him, another colored man who is supposed to have been with Banks, ran away and left him lying on the bridge.

Being charged with intoxication, Banks pleaded guilty and paid $5.00. The police, however, are making a thorough investigation. Chief Thompson says he feels satisfied Banks was the victim of thugs for the reason that his nose was not injured, which could not escape had the man's eyes and cheeks been hurt, as they were as the result of a fall.

TWO DEADLOCKS OCCURRED

And It Became Necessary to Draw
Lots in Precincts of the Fourth
And Fifth Wards—Complete List
of the New Committeemen.

While the attendance at the various Republican caucuses Saturday night was not large, much interest was manifested by those in attendance, and central committeemen were selected in each of the nine voting precincts.

The lack of a very large attendance can be attributed to two causes. The system is an entirely new one, and the voters were not exactly clear as to its workings. The extremely cold night also had the effect of keeping many away. This was particularly true of the second precinct of the Fourth ward which takes in California hollow and Sunnyside, and also the districts included in Calcutta and Thompson hill.

Six of the nine precincts caucused at the city hall, the two precincts of the First ward meeting at Turner hall, and the Fifth ward at the East End fire station.

The result of the vote for central committee was as follows:

Second ward, first precinct—Charles Kinney, Ed Hatton, M. J. McGarry.

Second precinct—J. N. Hanley, Lawrence T. Stevenson, Thomas McNicol.

Second precinct—W. L. Smith, P. J. McKeone, George McNicol.

Second precinct—E. N. Croxall, George Smith, Criss McConnell.

Fifth ward—Jay Fisher, Frank Ferran, E. A. Stevenson.

Township—R. G. Boyd, Harry C. Green and Ira Camberlain.

Two dead locks occurred, one in the first precinct of the Fourth and another in the Fifth. ## EAST END

AN EAST END DEPOT

Has Been Erected—It Is an Old Box Car, And the People Are Indignant.

East End residents were startled at an early hour this morning when the work train stationed at Wellsville pulled into the town and stopped at the Mulberry street crossing. Loaded upon a flat car was the frame work of an old box car, minus the wheels. The shack would have made an excellent coal shed or chicken house but the wondering spectators were horrified to see the crew mechanically take hold of the shell and deposit it on the elevation at the eastern end of the platform.

Inquiry was made as to the use which the railroad people expected to make of the thing. With a few incoherent grunts from the crew some of the more intelligent bystanders were able to make out that the box was to be the new East End station.

Indignation was expressed upon all sides, since the residents of the suburb have worked so hard and waited long for the improvement that they certainly expected a depot building that would be a credit to the company and a source of comfort to the long suffering public. They say the shack is a disgrace and it would not be surprising if the indignant people would dump the car over the river bank.

It is possible that the box car depot is only to be used temporarily until a new station is erected. But if so, the East Enders are not so informed, and they are complaining loudly.

LOSS OF BLOOD

From Nasal Hemorrhage Left an East End Young Man Very Weak.

Ray Wilson, of Pennsylvania avenue, was seized with a severe bleeding at the nose on Saturday night and for a time it was feared he would bleed to death.

An attempt was made to stop the flow, but all efforts were in vain, and the young man made his way to the fire station nearby. Here the efforts were renewed. Captain Terrance finally advised consulting a physician. Wilson was assisted to the office of Dr. Calhoun, who worked with the young man for several hours.

When the flow of blood had been stopped Wilson was so weak he had to be assisted to his home. The boys at the fire station performed this service, and today the patient is considerably better, though very weak.

RUNNERS CAUGHT

Mishap to a Sleighing Party Which Came Near Being Serious.

Noble Witherow, who resides in the city proper, had a mishap in the East End last evening, which, had not his horses been very quiet, would have resulted disastrously for both driver and the occupants of the sled. Mr. Witherow had attached hobs to the bed of a surrey and while making the turn from Pennsylvania avenue into Mulberry street, the runners were caught in the street car track and broken off. Luckily the horses stood still and no one was injured.

The owner of the outfit was compelled to come to the city and secure the wheels of the surrey before the wreck could be removed.

Merry Time for Coasters.

Almost the entire population of the East End turned out Saturday night to take advantage of the excellent coasting on Pennsylvania avenue. The hill is very long and furnishes good sport. No accidents were reported.

GOLD HUNTERS

WHO HAVE EXCELLENT PROSPECTS IN ALASKAN FIELDS.

Two Former Columbiana County Men Propose Mining on a Big Scale.

Salineville, Feb. 10.—Dr. Joseph Roberts, of Cleveland, accompanied by his brother, Henry Roberts, of Elkhart, Ind., formerly Salineville boys, were visiting their brother, Ben Roberts, of this town last week. These brothers spent the last summer in the gold fields of Cape Nome, Alaska. Dr. Roberts has made in all six trips to the icy north, several of which he made while in the employ of a steamship company in the capacity of chief surgeon. Dr. Roberts left a very lucrative practice in Cleveland to search for the yellow metal, when the rich strikes were attracting the attention of the whole world, several years ago.

On his last trip to Cape Nome he was accompanied by his brother, and they as partners were successful in obtaining some of the very valuable mineral ground adjoining the world's famous Treadwell mines, where constant dropping of a thousand stamps, pound out immense dividends for the fortunate stockholders for this rich concern each year. The Roberts brothers spent the last year in prospecting their claims, from which assays are reported rich in the much coveted metal. It is their intention to equip their ground with machinery to the amount of $50,000, to assist in collecting the gold from the gravel bed. They report the gravel being 200 feet deep and if it pays from the surface, with the natural advantages they have in the way of timber and water supply they have their fortune insured.

These gentlemen left for a short visit with their brother, Moses Roberts, in Wellsville, after which they were to return to Cleveland to make due preparation for the summer in the vicinity of Cape Nome, where the yellow metal haunts the eyes of the prospector day and night.

FIGURES ON CUBAN COMMERCE.

Exports to the United States increased—Other Features.

Washington, Feb. 10.—Colonel Edwards, chief of the division of Insular Affairs of the war department, made public a comparative statement concerning the commerce of Cuba for the seven months ended July 31, 1901, and 1899. It is shown that the total value of merchandise imported during the seven months ended July 31, 1901, was $37,903,266, against $39,252,908 for the same period of 1900, and $34,054,967 in 1899, and the total value of merchandise exported during the seven months ended July 31, 1901, was $46,686,752, against $32,338,327 for the same period of 1900, and $31,045,495 in 1899, showing a decrease of 3 per cent in the value of imports in the period of 1901 as compared with that of 1900, and an increase of 44 per cent in the value of exports for the period of 1901 as compared with that of 1900.

The trade by countries shows that the value of merchandise imported during the stated period of 1901 from the United States was $15,913,576, a decrease of 6 per cent as compared with the same period of 1900, and an increase of about 1 per cent as compared with 1899. As to exports to the United States, it is shown that their value during the period last year was $38,032,623, an increase of 49 per cent over 1900 and 36 per cent over 1899.

25 BLOCKS BURNED.

Great Fire Swept Though Paterson, N. J.—Loss Within $10,000,000.

1,000 PROBABLY HOMELESS.

Thought to Have Started From Electric Wire—Number of Churches, Public Buildings, Business Houses and Dwellings Destroyed.

Paterson, N. J., Feb. 10.—A great fire swept through Paterson Sunday and in its desolate wake are the embers and ashes of property valued in preliminary estimate at $10,000,000. It burned its way through the business section of the city and claimed as its own a majority of the finer structures devoted to commercial, civic, educational and religious use, as well as scores of houses. There was but small tribute of life and injury to the conflagration, but hundreds were left homeless and thousands without employment. A relief movement for the care of those unsheltered and unprovided for has already been organized, and Mayor John Hinchcliffe said last night that Paterson would be able to care for her own without appealing to the charity of other communities and states. The great manufacturing plants of the place are safe, and the community, temporarily dazed by the calamity, has already commenced the work of reorganization and restoration.

Fierce Gale Fanned Fire.

The fire came Saturday midnight and was only checked after a desperate fight that lasted until late Sunday afternoon. Every city and town within reach of Paterson sent firemen and apparatus to the relief of the threatened city, and it took the united efforts of them all to win the battle. A northeast gale gave the conflagration its impetus and carried its burning brands to kindle the blaze afresh at other points. The firemen made stand after stand before the wall of fire, but were repeatedly driven back, and when victory finally came to them they were grimed and exhausted.

A partial list of the properties destroyed follows:

Partial List of Properties Destroyed.

Public buildings—City hall, public library; Old City hall, police station, No. 1 engine house, patrol stables, high school and school No. 15.

Churches—First Baptist, Second Presbyterian, Park Avenue Baptist, St. Mark's Episcopal and St. Joseph's Roman Catholic.

Banks—First National, Second National (partially), Paterson National, Silk City Trust, Hamilton Trust and Paterson Trust.

Club houses—Y. M. C. A., Knights of Columbus, Progress club, St. Joseph's hall and Hamilton club.

Office buildings—Romaine building, Katz building, Marshall and Balls, Cohn building, Old Town clock, Old Kinzie building and Stevenson building.

Telegraph companies—Western Union and Postal Telegraph.

Theater—The Garden.

Newspapers—The Evening News and Sunday Chronicle.

Some of Business Houses Burned.

Stores—Quackenbush & Co., dry goods; Boston store, dry goods; Globe store, dry goods; National Clothing company, Kent's drug store, Kinsilla's drug store, Muzzey's hardware and general merchandise; Marshall & Ball, clothiers; John Norwood, paints; Oberg's grocery, W. H. & W. G. Shields, grocers; "The Paterson," dry goods; Jordan's piano store; Sauter & Co., pianos; Feder & McNair, shoes; Zondler's confectionery; Lapin's tea store; Ragowski's millinery store; Brothell & Mueller, shoes; C. E. Beach, automobiles; Morehead & Son, clothiers; Paterson Gas and Electric company; Skye's drug store and Mackintosh's drug store.

An estimate made from a general inspection of the smoldering ruins placed the number of dwellings and apartment houses destroyed at 500 and the number of families left without shelter at 1,000. A re-estimate when order succeeds confusion may alter those figures.

25 Blocks Burned Over.

The area of destruction foots up roughly 25 city blocks.

The cost of the fire has not yet been counted with any degree of accuracy, and it will be several days before there can be a definite tabulation of losses and insurance.

In the confusion of the day and rigorous guarding of the burning districts at night it was impossible to locate a majority of the heavier sufferers. The estimate of $10,000,000 will probably cover the destruction broadly, and a group of city officials who went over the city last evening were inclined to scale that figure down to between $7,500,000 and $8,000,000 for actual property losses. Their estimate made no calculation for loss on account of suspension of business.

Up to 11 o'clock last night no serious accident was reported at police headquarters. Mayor Hinchcliffe, while watching the firemen at work during the afternoon, received a slight burn on the cheek from a flying spark. Several firemen were over-comb but none of them was incapacitated for more than a few minutes.

One death was reported as a possible outcome of the conflagration, a Mrs. Brown, who, it was said, was over 80 years old, and who was removed from her residence, 18 Broadway, just two doors from where the fire started in the car sheds. She was taken to the residence of a friend nearby shortly after midnight and died about an hour later. It was said that her death was hastened by the excitement consequent on her hasty removal to a place of safety.

Scores of Persons Hurt.

Scores of persons were hurt and burned, but the loss of life was not thought to be great. There are many persons supposed to be missing, but in the excitement and fright most of these are supposed to be separated from their families and friends. Until order is brought out of the chaos which existed here Sunday nothing definite can be known.

Ruben Isleib, while serving coffee to the exhausted firemen, was hit on the head by a falling beam and it is doubtful if he lives. He was carried away by the firemen as they made their retreat from the doomed school house.

Fireman Hurlled From His Seat.

George Fitzmaurice, a fireman, who had been acting as driver for Fire Chief Stagg, is also dying. He was driving an engine from Passaic, when the horses bolted, and before Fitzmaurice could get them under control they brought the apparatus against an electric pole, and Fitzmaurice, who had not waited to strap himself on, was hurled out upon his head. There is no chance of his living.

What started the fire is not certain, but it is thought one of the feed wires running into the car barns was responsible.

Colored Church Destroyed.

Philadelphia, Feb. 10.—The colored Protestant Episcopal Church of the Crucifixion and the parish house adjoining, located at Eighth and Bainbridge streets, were destroyed by fire Sunday afternoon. The loss is placed at $30,000, on which there is a partial insurance. Surrounding property was damaged by fire and water to the extent of about $5,000.

Not Put Out.

I was not successful in the attempt to eject the cook from my house.

But what nettled me was the unruffled demeanor of the woman.

"You might at least have the good breeding to act 'put out,'" I cried and left the kitchen, slamming the door behind me.—Puck.

EAST END

AN EAST END DEPOT

Has Been Erected—It Is an Old Box Car, And the People Are Indignant.

East End residents were startled at an early hour this morning when the work train stationed at Wellsville pulled into the town and stopped at the Mulberry street crossing. Loaded upon a flat car was the frame work of an old box car, minus the wheels. The shack would have made an excellent coal shed or chicken house but the wondering spectators were horrified to see the crew mechanically take hold of the shell and deposit it on the elevation at the eastern end of the platform.

Inquiry was made as to the use which the railroad people expected to make of the thing. With a few incoherent grunts from the crew some of the more intelligent bystanders were able to make out that the box was to be the new East End station.

Indignation was expressed upon all sides, since the residents of the suburb have worked so hard and waited long for the improvement that they certainly expected a depot building that would be a credit to the company and a source of comfort to the long suffering public. They say the shack is a disgrace and it would not be surprising if the indignant people would dump the car over the river bank.

It is possible that the box car depot is only to be used temporarily until a new station is erected. But if so, the East Enders are not so informed, and they are complaining loudly.

LOSS OF BLOOD

From Nasal Hemorrhage Left an East End Young Man Very Weak.

Ray Wilson, of Pennsylvania avenue, was seized with a severe bleeding at the nose on Saturday night and for a time it was feared he would bleed to death.

An attempt was made to stop the flow, but all efforts were in vain, and the young man made his way to the fire station nearby. Here the efforts were renewed. Captain Terrance finally advised consulting a physician. Wilson was assisted to the office of Dr. Calhoun, who worked with the young man for several hours.

When the flow of blood had been stopped Wilson was so weak he had to be assisted to his home. The boys at the fire station performed this service, and today the patient is considerably better, though very weak.

RUNNERS CAUGHT

Mishap to a Sleighing Party Which Came Near Being Serious.

Noble Witherow, who resides in the city proper, had a mishap in the East End last evening, which, had not his horses been very quiet, would have resulted disastrously for both driver and the occupants of the sled. Mr. Witherow had attached hobs to the bed of a survey and while making the turn from Pennsylvania avenue into Mulberry street, the runners were caught in the street car track and broken off. Luckily the horses stood still and no one was injured.

The owner of the outfit was compelled to come to the city and secure the wheels of the survey before the wreck could be removed.

Merry Time for Coasters.

Almost the entire population of the East End turned out Saturday night to take advantage of the excellent coasting on Pennsylvania avenue. The hill is very long and furnishes good sport. No accidents were reported.

COLD HUNTERS

WHO HAVE EXCELLENT PROSPECTS IN ALASKAN FIELDS.

Two Former Columbiana County Men Propose Mining on a Big Scale.

Salineville, Feb. 10.—Dr. Joseph Roberts, of Cleveland, accompanied by his brother, Henry Roberts, of Elkhart, Ind., formerly Salineville boys, were visiting their brother, Ben Roberts, of this town last week. These brothers spent the last summer in the gold fields of Cape Nome, Alaska. Dr. Roberts has made in all six trips to the icy north, several of which he made while in the employ of a steamship company in the capacity of chief surgeon. Dr. Roberts left a very lucrative practice in Cleveland to search for the yellow metal, when the rich strikes were attracting the attention of the whole world, several years ago.

On his last trip to Cape Nome he was accompanied by his brother, and they as partners were successful in obtaining some of the very valuable mineral ground adjoining the world's famous Treadwell mines, where constant dropping of a thousand stamps, pound out immense dividends for the fortunate stockholders for this rich concern each year. The Roberts brothers spent the last year in prospecting their claims, from which assays are reported rich in the much coveted metal. It is their intention to equip their ground with machinery to the amount of $50,000, to assist in collecting the gold from the gravel bed. They report the gravel being 200 feet deep and if it pays from the surface, with the natural advantages they have in the way of timber and water supply they have their fortune insured.

These gentlemen left for a short visit with their brother, Moses Roberts, in Wellsville, after which they were to return to Cleveland to make due preparation for the summer in the vicinity of Cape Nome, where the yellow metal haunts the eyes of the prospector day and night.

FIGURES ON CUBAN COMMERCE.

Exports to the United States increased—Other Features.

Washington, Feb. 10.—Colonel Edwards, chief of the division of Insular affairs of the war department, made public a comparative statement concerning the commerce of Cuba for the seven months ended July 31, 1901, 1900 and 1899. It is shown that the total value of merchandise imported during the seven months ended July 31, 1901, was $37,903,266, against $39,252,908 for the same period of 1900, and $34,054,967 in 1899, and the total value of merchandise exported during the seven months ended July 31, 1901, was $46,686,752, against $32,338,327 for the same period of 1900, and $31,045,495 in 1899, showing a decrease of 3 per cent in the value of imports in the period of 1901 as compared with that of 1900, and an increase of 41 per cent in the value of exports for the period of 1901 as compared with that of 1900.

The trade by countries shows that the value of merchandise imported during the stated period of 1901 from the United States was $15,913,576, a decrease of 6 per cent as compared with the same period of 1900, and an increase of about 1 per cent as compared with 1899. As to exports to the United States, it is shown that their value during the period last year was $38,032,623, an increase of 49 per cent over 1900 and 36 per cent over 1899.

25 BLOCKS BURNED.

Great Fire Swept Though Paterson, N. J.—Loss With-in $10,000,000.

Thought to Have Started From Electric Wire—Number of Churches, Public Buildings, Business Houses and Dwellings Destroyed.

Paterson, N. J., Feb. 10.—A great fire swept through Paterson Sunday and in its desolate wake are the embers and ashes of property valued in preliminary estimate at $10,000,000. It burned its way through the business section of the city and claimed as its own a majority of the finer structures devoted to commercial, civic, educational and religious use, as well as scores of houses. There was but small tribute of life and injury to the conflagration, but hundreds were left homeless and thousands without employment. A relief movement for the care of those unsheltered and unprovided for has already been organized, and Mayor John Hinchcliffe said last night that Paterson would be able to care for her own without appealing to the charity of other communities and states. The great manufacturing plants of the place are safe, and the community, temporarily dazed by the calamity, has already commenced the work of reorganization and restoration.

Fierce Gale Fanned Fire.

The fire came Saturday midnight and was only checked after a desperate fight that lasted until late Sunday afternoon. Every city and town within reach of Paterson sent firemen and apparatus to the relief of the threatened city, and it took the united efforts of them all to win the battle. A northeast gale gave the conflagration its impetus and carried its burning brands to kindle the blaze afresh at other points. The firemen made stand after stand before the wall of fire, but were repeatedly driven back, and when victory finally came to them they were grimed and exhausted.

Exports to the United States Increased—Other Features.

Washington, Feb. 10.—Colonel Edwards, chief of the division of Insular Affairs of the war department, made public a comparative statement concerning the commerce of Cuba for the seven months ended July 31, 1901, 1900 and 1899. It is shown that the total value of merchandise imported during the seven months ended July 31, 1901, was $37,903,266, against $39,252,908 for the same period of 1900, and $34,054,967 in 1899, and the total value of merchandise exported during the seven months ended July 31, 1901, was $46,686,752, against $32,338,327 for the same period of 1900, and $31,045,495 in 1899, showing a decrease of 3 per cent in the value of imports in the period of 1901 as compared with that of 1900, and an increase of 44 per cent in the value of exports for the period of 1901 as compared with that of 1900.

The trade by countries shows that the value of merchandise imported during the stated period of 1901 from the United States was $15,913,576, a decrease of 6 per cent as compared with the same period of 1900, and an increase of about 1 per cent as compared with 1899. As to exports to the United States, it is shown that their value during the period last year was $38,932,623, an increase of 49 per cent over 1900 and 36 per cent over 1899.

25 BLOCKS BURNED.

Great Fire Swept Though Paterson, N. J.—Loss With— in $10,000,000.

1,000 PROBABLY HOMELESS.

Thought to Have Started From Electric Wire—Number of Churches, Public Buildings, Business Houses and Dwellings Destroyed.

Paterson, N. J., Feb. 10.—A great fire swept through Paterson Sunday and in its desolate wake are the embers and ashes of property valued in preliminary estimate at $10,000,000. It burned its way through the business section of the city and claimed as its own a majority of the finer structures devoted to commercial, civic, educational and religious use, as well as scores of houses. There was but small tribute of life and injury to the conflagration, but hundreds were left homeless and thousands without employment. A relief movement for the care of those unsheltered and unprovided for has already been organized, and Mayor John Henrich said last night that Paterson would be able to care for her own without appealing to the charity of other communities and states. The great manufacturing plants of the place are safe, and the community, temporarily dazed by the calamity, has already commenced the work of reorganization and restoration.

Fire Gale Fanned Fire.

The fire came Saturday night and was only checked after a desperate fight that lasted until late Sunday afternoon. Every city and town within reach of Paterson sent firemen and apparatus to the relief of the threatened city, and it took the united efforts of them all to win the battle. A northeast gale gave the conflagration its impetus and carried its burning brands to kindle the blaze afresh at other points. The firemen made stand after stand before the wall of fire, but were repeatedly driven back, and when victory finally came to them they were grimed and exhausted.

A partial list of the properties destroyed follows:

Partial List of Properties Destroyed.

Public buildings—City hall, public library; Old City hall, police station, No. 1 engine house, patrol stables, high school and school No. 15.

Churches—First Baptist, Second Presbyterian, Park Avenue Baptist, St. Mark's Episcopal and St. Joseph's Roman Catholic.

Banks—First National, Second National (partially), Paterson National, Silk City Trust, Hamilton Trust and Paterson Trust.

Club houses—Y. M. C. A., Knights of Columbus, Progress club, St. Joseph's hall and Hamilton club.

Some of Business Houses Burned.

Stores—Quackenbush & Co., dry goods; Boston store, dry goods; Globe store, dry goods; National Clothing company, Kent's drug store, Kinsilla's drug store, Muzzy's hardware and general merchandise; Marshall & Ball, clothiers; John Norwood, paints; Oberg's grocery, Wendenyke's grocery, P. H. & W. G. Shields, grocers; "The Paterson" dry goods; Jordan's piano store; Sauter & Co., pianos; Feder & McNair, shoes; Zandler's confectionery; Lappin's tea store; Ragowski's millinery store; Brohall & Mueller, shoes; C. E. Beach, automobiles; Morehead & Son, clothing; Paterson Gas and Electric company; Skye's drug store and Mackintosh's drug store.

An estimate made from a general inspection of the smouldering ruins placed the number of dwellings and apartment houses destroyed at 500 and the number of families left without shelter at 1,000. A re-estimate when order succeeds confusion may alter those figures.

25 Blocks Burned Over.

The area of destruction foots up roughly 25 city blocks.

The cost of the fire has not yet been counted with any degree of accuracy, and it will be several days before there can be a definite tabulation of losses and insurance.

In the confusion of the day and rigorous guarding of the burning districts at night it was impossible to locate a majority of the heavier sufferers. The estimate of $10,000,000 will probably cover the destruction broadly, and a group of city officials who went over the city last evening were inclined to scale that figure down to between $7,500,000 and $8,000,000 for actual property losses. Their estimate made no calculation for loss on account of suspension of business.

Up to 11 o'clock last night no serious accident was reported at police headquarters. Mayor Hinchcliffe, while watching the firemen at work during the afternoon, received a slight burn on the cheek from a flying spark. Several firemen were overcome but none of them was incapacitated for more than a few minutes.

One death was reported as a possible outcome of the conflagration, a Mrs. Brown, who, it was said, was over 80 years old, and who was removed from her residence, 18 Broadway, just two doors from where the fire started in the car sheds. She was taken to the residence of a friend nearby shortly after midnight and died about an hour later. It was said that her death was hastened by the excitement consequent on her hasty removal to a place of safety.

Scores of Persons Hurt.

Scores of persons were hurt and burned, but the loss of life was not thought to be great. There are many persons supposed to be missing, but in the excitement and fright most of these are supposed to be separated from their families and friends. Until order is brought out of the chaos which existed here Sunday nothing definite can be known.

Ruben Isleb, while serving coffee to the exhausted firemen, was hit on the head by a falling beam and it is doubtful if he lives. He was carried away by the firemen as they made their retreat from the doomed school house.

Fireman Hurlled From His Seat.

George Fitzmaurice, a fireman, who had been acting as driver for Fire Chief Stagg, is also dying. He was driving an engine from Passaic, when the horses bolted, and before Fitzmaurice could get them under control they brought the apparatus against an electric pole, and Fitzmaurice, who had not waited to strap himself on, was hurled out upon his head. There is no chance of his living.

What started the fire is not certain, but it is thought one of the feed wires running into the car barns was responsible.

Colored Church Destroyed.

Philadelphia, Feb. 10.—The colored Protestant Episcopal Church of the Crucifixion and the parish house adjoining, located at Eighth and Bainbridge streets, were destroyed by fire Sunday afternoon. The loss is placed at $30,000, on which there is a partial insurance. Surrounding property was damaged by fire and water to the extent of about $5,000.

Not Put Out.

I was not successful in the attempt to eject the cook from my house.

But what nettled me was the unruffled demeanor of the woman.

"You might at least have the good breeding to act 'put out,'" I cried and left the kitchen, slamming the door behind me.—Puck.

FOR STATE BENEFIT

Numerous Bills Are Before the Ohio General Assembly For Action.

THE MUNICIPAL CODE BILL

Provides a Uniform System for Government of Cities And Villages. Resolutions Introduced Setting Date for Adjournment.

Columbus, Feb. 10. — (Special).— With the introduction of the insurance bills into the house late Wednesday night the last but one, or perhaps two, of what are to be known as the distinctively administration taxation measures was placed before the general assembly for action. These bills followed the bills taxing corporations and formed a distinct feature of the governor's plan to raise money for state purposes and do away with the state levy. They were five in number and levy assessments upon insurance companies, both foreign and domestic, as well as building and loan associations and those fire assessment companies which abound among the farming population and are known as farmers' mutuals. Though not to the extent contemplated, one of the bills affects the fire marshal's office and reduces the levy for its support by one-half. In case the amount now derived from the insurance tax is not sufficient to meet the expenses of this department, the deficiency will have to be met by the emergency board and the money taken from the general fund. The first and most important of these insurance bills levies a tax of three per cent upon the gross premium receipts of all foreign insurance companies, both fire and life, doing business in the state. This is an increase from two and one-half per cent, and will, it is estimated, bring something like an additional $400,000 annually into the state treasury. Heretofore one-half of one per cent of the money received from this tax, or nearly $40,000, has been devoted to paying the expenses of the fire marshal's office. That appropriation is, by the new bill, reduced to one-quarter of one per cent and the direct result of such enactment will be the necessity of reducing the number of fire deputies in the state and a general curtailing of expenses. The second insurance bill touches live stock insurance companies—those which insure live stock and nothing else. These companies, when formed, are to be assessed a fee of $10 for the issuing of articles of incorporation. Beyond that they are required to file annual statements with the superintendent of insurance, setting forth their assets, liabilities, etc. If the showing made in this be satisfactory a certificate permitting the continuation of business will be given, and for this a fee of $20 is to be assessed. The third bill affects farmers' assessment fire insurance companies, a distinct class. It requires each of these companies to file with the superintendent of insurance its articles of incorporation, samples of policies, etc. and pay for this a fee of $10. Annual statements must also be filed with the superintendent of insurance, and if by these the receipts for the year are shown to be $2,500 or less, an assessment of $10 will be levied against the company. If the receipts exceed $2,500 the assessment will be $20. Failure to file their annual statement or to fully answer any question asked by the superintendent will entail a fine of $500 and another fine of $500 for each month the company continues to do business thereafter. The last of the bills relating purely to insurance companies was introduced by Judge Thomas of Huron. It calls for an annual tax of one-half of one per cent on the gross premium receipts of all Ohio fire companies other than the farmers' mutuals, in addition to the payment of fees for the filing of statements as covered in the statutes as they are at present. Turning from insurance companies, the last bill places a tax upon building and loan companies and includes in its stipulations that each foreign association, when it files its application to do business in Ohio, shall pay to the state inspector of building and loan companies a fee of $100, and for the filing of certificates and annual renewals of the same a fee of $50. Annual statements are required from both foreign and domestic associations and a tax of one-twentieth of one per cent will be assessed upon the gross assets as shown by these statements. In addition to all this, for each copy of any paper filed in the office of the state inspector a fee of twenty-five cents will be charged, and for affixing his seal or certifying to any paper the inspector must collect a dollar. The next bill to be introduced and upon which work is now being done will apply to Ohio life companies and will probably assess a tax of one-tenth of one per cent upon the gross premium receipts. The estimate is that the money received in all these ways from the insurance companies will bring in to the state annually more than $1,000,000, and it is understood there will be but little if any objection upon the part of the insurance companies to their enactment perhaps for fear that a too violent agitation of the matter might lead to a further increase instead of a cutting down.

The same spirit of endorsement is not, however, given by the corporations to the bills levying a tax against them, and especially is this true in regard to the Willis bill requiring Ohio corporations to file an annual statement, for which a fee of one-tenth of one per cent of the authorized capital stock will be collected. This has stirred up a world of trouble for its author and the chairman of the taxation committee, Ralph D. Cole of Findlay. Letters are pouring in to them every day and they are besieged with delegations eager to be heard in protest.

A measure supplementing all the tax bills introduced has been prepared. It is for the convenience of the secretary of state in order that he may know exactly what corporations are doing business in Ohio and, therefore, subject to taxation. The supplemental bill provides that all corporations, whether for profit or not, which have never been in real operation may surrender their charters by giving the stockholders two weeks' notice and by filing their certificates of dissolution with the secretary of state. If the corporation be one of profit once engaged in business, but which has ceased operation and paid all its debts, four weeks' notice must be given the stockholders who will come together at the expiration of that time. The unanimous vote of those present at such meeting either in person or by proxy will be required to decide upon an abandonment of corporate authority.

The long-looked-for municipal code bill has been put in by Mr. Comings of Lorain. It is a most formidable looking document of more than 1,000 pages and fitted with legal terms and technicalities. Sifted down, it really provides a uniform system of government for all the cities and villages of the state. Municipalities are divided into but two classes—cities and villages, the latter including all of 5,000 people or less. In all cities, no matter what the population, the federal plan of government, fashioned after the national government at Washington, will prevail. There is to be a mayor elected by the people and the mayor is to have his cabinet, consisting of a director of accounts, director of law, director of public safety and other euphoniously named and well paid officials. These cabinet officers are to be appointed by the mayor and may be removed by him for cause if the consent of the council can be obtained. The council in every city is to consist of seven members elected at large and its functions will be entirely legislative. Measures passed there can only become laws, however, by the approval of the mayor, and he can likewise veto. If he vetoes, it will take a vote of five councilmen to undo his act. A very emphatic feature of the law is that of civil service. Under the bill, if it passes, every city employee, outside of those elected, must pass an examination before a civil service commission before he can take office, but once in he cannot be removed without good cause and then only after a full hearing. It endeavors to establish permanency in place, with the view, so it is claimed, of inducing the best men to accept places in connection with city government. The civil service commission is to consist of four men in each city appointed by the governor. There are the most stringent regulations placed about every official and especially perhaps about those of the police and fire departments, for the purpose of raising the efficiency of these branches of municipal government in every city. The bill makes but few changes, and those unimportant, in the government of villages. What reforms there are suggested look to the federal plan and civil service, except in a more limited way.

It can be definitely said that the only redistricting done in the state, if there be any, will be in the Third (Dayton) and the Twelfth (Columbus) districts. An agreement has been reached that outside of these the best policy will be to make no changes. As to the changing of these the sentiment is divided and it will take a joint caucus of the Republicans of the house and senate to reach a definite understanding. It is believed that these districts can be so changed as to make them safely Republican without endangering any of the districts where Republicans now have a majority. The Democrats, while perhaps not able to prevent the changing of these two districts, could, and would, if the attempt were made, prevent a general tearing up of the state by voting with those Republicans who are opposed to such a scheme.

The purpose of the state administration to abandon the entire system of Ohio canals was shown in the partial appropriation bill introduced in the house Friday by Mr. Crafts of Portage. Although an appropriation for the payment of the salaries of the officers of different state departments was made for the full year ending May 15, 1903, the appropriation for the officials of the state board of public works was extended only until May 15 next, while nothing was appropriated for the repairs and improvements. It is the intention to pass a general bill before the end of the session for abandonment of the entire system by that time, and should it become necessary to grant a lease of life longer than May 15, the emergency board will give such money, from time to time, as may be needed.

Ohio, by the end of the legislature, will not owe a dollar of funded indebtedness and the state will be clean except for the irreducible debt which, of course, is never to be paid. That's a pretty good record for any commonwealth.

A resolution has been introduced for final adjournment of house and senate March 28 and that no general bills shall be introduced after March 1. With the volume of business on hand, it is doubtful if this can be done, however, and the session is more likely to extend until the last of April.

GEORGE U. MARVIN.

EVIDENTLY ONE OF THE THEIVES.

Wounded Man at Lancaster, Pa., Probably Victim of Bank Watchman's Bullet.

Lancaster, Pa., Feb. 10.—John Thomas, the robber who was shot in the face during the raid on the Gap National bank, at Gap, Pa., early Saturday morning, was subjected to a severe questioning Sunday in his cell at the county jail, and though told that he might die admitted nothing except that his home is at Bath, Me. His wound has improved so much that it is no longer considered dangerous, though he is still unable to take solid food.

Probing could not reveal the bullet, and it is thought that he spat out the lead after it had shattered his jaw. He claims to have been shot on a freight train near this city, but his story is lacking and conflicting in details. He was viewed Sunday afternoon by Detectives Dougherty, Donohue and McGinley, of Philadelphia, but they could not identify him. There are no clues yet to the five others who escaped.

The attempt made to rob the bank ended in a lively exchange of shots between the town's watchman, David Stanix, and the burglars.

A stranger stopped at Atglen, a few miles east of Gap, and had a wound in his jaw dressed. He said he had received the injury by falling from a freight train and striking a piece of iron. It is believed he was the man wounded by the watchman. He was arrested subsequently at Parkersburg and brought to Lancaster Saturday afternoon, with a bad wound in the fact.

He was captured on a passenger train between Glen Lock and Frazer.

MRS. SOFFEL SERIOUSLY ILL

Has a Well-Developed Case of Pleurisy—Can't Be Moved For Awhile.

Butler, Pa., Feb. 10.—Mrs. Soffel will not be in condition to be removed from the hospital for at least 10 days to come, and it may be a greater length of time. Since Saturday night there has been a change, and the woman now has a well developed case of pleurisy, the left cavity of the chest being the worst affected. At 8 o'clock last night her temperature was 108, pulse 112 and respiration 24.

Although she was seriously ill, Mrs. Soffel was cheerful and her mental condition was about the same as Saturday. She saw no visitors and talked to no one Sunday outside of her attendants and physicians. The physicians said last night that her condition was not alarming, but that under the most favorable conditions it would be 10 days before the disease will have run its course.

Wintering in Colorado And Utah.

The climate of Colorado and Utah has long been world famous, but it is only within recent years that attention has been given to the delightful winter climate of these states. Today physicians all over the United States send their patients to Colorado and Utah to escape the rigors of eastern winters and to benefit by her invigorating atmosphere and health-giving sunshine.

It is not necessary to add an elaborate argument—the conclusion is self-evident and inevitable. The winter climate of Colorado and Utah on the whole presents advantages for the invalid and the pleasure-seeker that cannot fail to command attention.

An erroneous impression prevails that because the Rocky mountains have a high elevation the mercury in the thermometer drops down below zero in the winter season and stops there, and that the snow mounts up with the altitude. The fact is that the average precipitation of moisture in the lowlands of the mountain region during the entire year is only 14.15 inches. With such average precipitation there is practically no danger of snow blockades on the railroads, save at a few points exposed to drifts and these points have been amply protected. This is especially true of the lines of the Denver & Rio Grande and the Rio Grande Western between Denver and Ogden at all seasons of the year. Facts speak for themselves, and the fact is that travel over "The Scenic Line of the World" has gone on with less interruption from snow blockades during the last ten winters than it has upon the majority of railroads in other localities which are popularly supposed to be more free from such delays than the mountain systems. ## FOR STATE BENEFIT

Numerous Bills Are Before the Ohio General Assembly For Action.

THE MUNICIPAL CODE BILL

Columbus, Feb. 10. — (Special)—

With the introduction of the insurance bills into the house late Wednesday night the last but one, or perhaps two, of what are to be known as the distinctively administration taxation measures was placed before the general assembly for action. These bills followed the bills taxing corporations and formed a distinct feature of the governor's plan to raise money for state purposes and do away with the state levy. They were five in number and levy assessments upon insurance companies, both foreign and domestic, as well as building and loan associations and those fire assessment companies which abound among the farming population and are known as farmers' mutuals. Though not to the extent contemplated, one of the bills affects the fire marshal's office and reduces the levy for its support by one-half. In case the amount now derived from the insurance tax is not sufficient to meet the expenses of this department, the deficiency will have to be met by the emergency board and the money taken from the general fund. The first and most important of these insurance bills levies a tax of three per cent upon the gross premium receipts of all foreign insurance companies, both fire and life, doing business in the state. This is an increase from two and one-half per cent, and will, it is estimated, bring something like an additional $400,000 annually into the state treasury. Heretofore one-half of one per cent of the money received from this tax, or nearly $40,000, has been devoted to paying the expenses of the fire marshal's office. That appropriation is, by the new bill, reduced to one-quarter of one per cent and the direct result of such enactment will be the necessity of reducing the number of fire deputies in the state and a general curtailing of expenses. The second insurance bill touches live stock insurance companies—those which insure live stock and nothing else. These companies, when formed, are to be assessed a fee of $10 for the issuing of articles of incorporation. Beyond that they are required to file annual statements with the superintendent of insurance, setting forth their assets, liabilities, etc. If the showing made in this be satisfactory a certificate permitting the continuation of business will be given, and for this a fee of $20 is to be assessed. The third bill affects farmers' assessment fire insurance companies, a distinct class. It requires each of these companies to file with the superintendent of insurance its articles of incorporation, samples of policies, etc. and pay for this a fee of $10. Annual statements must also be filed with the superintendent of insurance, and if by these the receipts for the year are shown to be $2,500 or less, an assessment of $10 will be levied against the company. If the receipts exceed $2,500 the assessment will be $20. Failure to file their annual statement or to fully answer any question asked by the superintendent will entail a fine of $500 and another fine of $500 for each month the company continues to do business thereafter. The last of the bills relating purely to insurance companies was introduced by Judge Thomas of Huron. It calls for an annual tax of one-half of one per cent on the gross premium receipts of all Ohio fire companies other than the farmers' mutuals, in addition to the payment of fees for the filing of statements as covered in the statutes as they are at present. Turning from insurance companies, the last bill places a tax upon building and loan companies and includes in its stipulations that each foreign association, when it files its application to do business in Ohio, shall pay to the state inspector of building and loan companies a fee of $100, and for the filing of certificates and annual renewals of the same a fee of $50. Annual statements are required from both foreign and domestic associations and a tax of one-twentieth of one per cent will be assessed upon the gross assets as shown by these statements. In addition to all this, for each copy of any paper filed in the office of the state inspector a fee of twenty-five cents will be charged, and for affixing his seal or certifying to any paper the inspector must collect a dollar. The next bill to be introduced and upon which work is now being done will apply to Ohio life companies and will probably assess a tax of one-tenth of one per cent upon the gross premium receipts. The estimate is that the money received in all these ways from the insurance companies will bring in to the state annually more than $1,000,000, and it is understood there will be but little if any objection upon the part of the insurance companies to their enactment perhaps for fear that a too violent agitation of the matter might lead to a further increase instead of a cutting down.

The same spirit of endorsement is not, however, given by the corporations to the bills levying a tax against them, and especially is this true in regard to the Willis bill requiring Ohio corporations to file an annual statement, for which a fee of one-tenth of one per cent of the authorized capital stock will be collected. This has stirred up a world of trouble for its author and the chairman of the taxation committee, Ralph D. Cole of Findlay. Letters are pouring in to them every day and they are besieged with delegations eager to be heard in protest.

A measure supplementing all the tax bills introduced has been prepared. It is for the convenience of the secretary of state in order that he may know exactly what corporations are doing business in Ohio and, therefore, subject to taxation. The supplemental bill provides that all corporations, whether for profit or not, which have never been in real operation may surrender their charters by giving the stockholders two weeks' notice and by filing their certificates of dissolution with the secretary of state. If the corporation be one of profit once engaged in business, but which has ceased operation and paid all its debts, four weeks' notice must be given the stockholders who will come together at the expiration of that time. The unanimous vote of those present at such meeting either in person or by proxy will be required to decide upon an abandonment of corporate authority.

The long-looked-for municipal code bill has been put in by Mr. Comings of Lorain. It is a most formidable looking document of more than 1,000 pages and fitted with legal terms and technicalities. Sifted down, it really provides a uniform system of government for all the cities and villages of the state. Municipalities are divided into but two classes—cities and villages, the latter including all of 5,000 people or less. In all cities, no matter what the population, the federal plan of government, fashioned after the national government at Washington, will prevail. There is to be a mayor elected by the people and the mayor is to have his cabinet, consisting of a director of accounts, director of law, director of public safety and other euphonically named and well paid officials. These cabinet officers are to be appointed by the mayor and may be removed by him for cause if the consent of the council can be obtained. The council in every city is to consist of seven members elected at large and its functions will be entirely legislative. Measures passed there can only become laws, however, by the approval of the mayor, and he can likewise veto. If he vetoes, it will take a vote of five councilmen to undo his act. A very emphatic feature of the law is that of civil service. Under the bill, if it passes, every city employee, outside of those elected, must pass an examination before a civil service commission before he can take office, but once in he cannot be removed without good cause and then only after a full hearing. It endeavors to establish permanency in place, with the view, so it is claimed, of inducing the best men to accept places in connection with city government. The civil service commission is to consist of four men in each city appointed by the governor. There are the most stringent regulations placed about every official and especially perhaps about those of the police and fire departments, for the purpose of raising the efficiency of these branches of municipal government in every city. The bill makes but few changes, and those unimportant, in the government of villages. What reforms there are suggested look to the federal plan and civil service, except in a more limited way.

It can be definitely said that the only redistricting done in the state, if there be any, will be in the Third (Dayton) and the Twelfth (Columbus) districts. An agreement has been reached that outside of these the best policy will be to make no changes. As to the changing of these the sentiment is divided and it will take a joint caucus of the Republicans of the house and senate to reach a definite understanding. It is believed that these districts can be so changed as to make them safely Republican without endangering any of the districts where Republicans now have a majority. The Democrats, while perhaps not able to prevent the changing of these two districts, could, and would, if the attempt were made, prevent a general tearing up of the state by voting with those Republicans who are opposed to such a scheme.

The purpose of the state administration to abandon the entire system of Ohio canals was shown in the partial appropriation bill introduced in the house Friday by Mr. Crafts of Portage. Although an appropriation for the payment of the salaries of the officers of different state departments was made for the full year ending May 15, 1903, the appropriation for the officials of the state board of public works was extended only until May 15 next, while nothing was appropriated for the repairs and improvements. It is the intention to pass a general bill before the end of the session for abandonment of the entire system by that time, and should it become necessary to grant a lease of life longer than May 15, the emergency board will give such money, from time to time, as may be needed.

Ohio, by the end of the legislature, will not owe a dollar of funded indebtedness and the state will be clean except for the irreducible debt which, of course, is never to be paid. That's a pretty good record for any commonwealth.

A resolution has been introduced for final adjournment of house and senate March 28 and that no general bills shall be introduced after March 1. With the volume of business on hand, it is doubtful if this can be done, however, and the session is more likely to extend until the last of April.

EVIDENTLY ONE OF THE THIEVES.

Wounded Man at Lancaster, Pa., Probably Victim of Bank Watchman's Bullet.

Lancaster, Pa., Feb. 10.—John Thomas, the robber who was shot in the face during the raid on the Gap National bank, at Gap, Pa., early Saturday morning, was subjected to a severe questioning Sunday in his cell at the county jail, and though told that he might die admitted nothing except that his home is at Bath, Me. His wound has improved so much that it is no longer considered dangerous, though he is still unable to take solid food.

Probing could not reveal the bullet, and it is thought that he spat out the lead after it had shattered his jaw. He claims to have been shot on a freight train near this city, but his story is lacking and conflicting in details. He was viewed Sunday afternoon by Detectives Dougherty, Donohue and McGinley, of Philadelphia, but they could not identify him. There are no clues yet to the five others who escaped.

The attempt made to rob the bank ended in a lively exchange of shots between the town's watchman, David Stamix, and the burglars.

A stranger stopped at Atglen, a few miles east of Gap, and had a wound in his jaw dressed. He said he had received the injury by falling from a freight train and striking a piece of iron. It is believed he was the man wounded by the watchman. He was arrested subsequently at Parkersburg and brought to Lancaster Saturday afternoon, with a bad wound in the face.

He was captured on a passenger train between Glen Lock and Frazer.

MRS. SOFFEL SERIOUSLY ILL

Has a Well-Developed Case of Pleurisy—Can't Be Moved For Awhile.

Butler, Pa., Feb. 10.—Mrs. Soffel will not be in condition to be removed from the hospital for at least 10 days to come, and it may be a greater length of time. Since Saturday night there has been a change, and the woman now has a well developed case of pleurisy, the left cavity of the chest being the worst affected. At 8 o'clock last night her temperature was 108, pulse 112 and respiration 24.

Although she was seriously ill, Mrs. Soffel was cheerful and her mental condition was about the same as Saturday. She saw no visitors and talked to no one Sunday outside of her attendants and physicians. The physicians said last night that her condition was not alarming, but that under the most favorable conditions it would be 10 days before the disease will have run its course.

Funeral of Man Aged 108.

Susquehanna, Pa., Feb. 10.—The funeral of Dr. Henry Corson, of Forest City, Pa., aged 108 years, took place, with interment at Thompson. He was born at Camden, N. J., March 15, 1794, and was at the time of his death undoubtedly the oldest person in Pennsylvania. He practiced medicine in Susquehanna county, Pa., for 75 years. He began the study of medicine in Philadelphia in 1812.

Wintering in Colorado And Utah.

The climate of Colorado and Utah has long been world famous, but it is only within recent years that attention has been given to the delightful winter climate of these states. Today physicians all over the United States send their patients to Colorado and Utah to escape the rigors of eastern winters and to benefit by her invigorating atmosphere and health-giving sunshine.

It is not necessary to add an elaborate argument—the conclusion is self-evident and inevitable. The winter climate of Colorado and Utah on the whole presents advantages for the invalid and the pleasure-seeker that cannot fail to command attention.

An erroneous impression prevails that because the Rocky mountains have a high elevation the mercury in the thermometer drops down below zero in the winter season and stops there, and that the snow mounts up with the altitude. The fact is that the average precipitation of moisture in the lowlands of the mountain region during the entire year is only 14.15 inches. With such average precipitation there is practically no danger of snow blockades on the railroads, save at a few points exposed to drifts and these points have been amply protected. This is especially true of the lines of the Denver & Rio Grande and the Rio Grande Western between Denver and Ogden at all seasons of the year. Facts speak for themselves, and the fact is that travel over "The Scenic Line of the World" has gone on with less interruption from snow blockades during the last ten winters than it has upon the majority of railroads in other localities which are popularly supposed to be more free from such delays than the mountain systems. A measure supplementing all the tax bills introduced has been prepared. It is for the convenience of the secretary of state in order that he may know exactly what corporations are doing business in Ohio and, therefore, subject to taxation. The supplemental bill provides that all corporations, whether for profit or not, which have never been in real operation may surrender their charters by giving the stockholders two weeks' notice and by filing their certificates of dissolution with the secretary of state. If the corporation be one of profit once engaged in business, but which has ceased operation and paid all its debts, four weeks' notice must be given the stockholders who will come together at the expiration of that time. The unanimous vote of those present at such meeting either in person or by proxy will be required to decide upon an abandonment of corporate authority.

The long-looked-for municipal code bill has been put in by Mr. Comings of Lorain. It is a most formidable looking document of more than 1,000 pages and fitted with legal terms and technicalities. Sifted down, it really provides a uniform system of government for all the cities and villages of the state. Municipalities are divided into but two classes—cities and villages, the latter including all of 5,000 people or less. In all cities, no matter what the population, the federal plan of government, fashioned after the national government at Washington, will prevail. There is to be a mayor elected by the people and the mayor is to have his cabinet, consisting of a director of accounts, director of law, director of public safety and other euphoniously named and well paid officials. These cabinet officers are to be appointed by the mayor and may be removed by him for cause if the consent of the council can be obtained. The council in every city is to consist of seven members elected at large and its functions will be entirely legislative. Measures passed there can only become laws, however, by the approval of the mayor, and he can likewise veto. If he vetoes, it will take a vote of five councilmen to undo his act. A very emphatic feature of the law is that of civil service. Under the bill, if it passes, every city employee, outside of those elected, must pass an examination before a civil service commission before he can take office, but once in, he cannot be removed without good cause and then only after a full hearing. It endeavors to establish permanency in place, with the view, so it is claimed, of inducing the best men to accept places in connection with city government. The civil service commission is to consist of four men in each city appointed by the governor. There are the most stringent regulations placed about every official and especially perhaps about those of the police and fire departments, for the purpose of raising the efficiency of these branches of municipal government in every city. The bill makes but few changes, and those unimportant, in the government of villages. What reforms there are suggested look to the federal plan and civil service, except in a more limited way.

It can be definitely said that the only redistricting done in the state, if there be any, will be in the Third (Dayton) and the Twelfth (Columbus) districts. An agreement has been reached that outside of these the best policy will be to make no changes. As to the changing of these the sentiment is divided and it will take a joint caucus of the Republicans of the house and senate to reach a definite understanding. It is believed that these districts can be so changed as to make them safely Republican without endangering any of the districts where Republicans now have a majority. The Democrats, while perhaps not able to prevent the changing of these two districts, could, and would, if the attempt were made, prevent a general tearing up of the state by voting with those Republicans who are opposed to such a scheme.

The purpose of the state administration to abandon the entire system of Ohio canals was shown in the partial appropriation bill introduced in the house Friday by Mr. Crafts of Portage. Although an appropriation for the payment of the salaries of the officers of different state departments was made for the full year ending May 15, 1903, the appropriation for the officials of the state board of public works was extended only until May 15 next, while nothing was appropriated for the repairs and improvements. It is the intention to pass a general bill before the end of the session for abandonment of the entire system by that time, and should it become necessary to grant a lease of life longer than May 15, the emergency board will give such money, from time to time, as may be needed.

Ohio, by the end of the legislature, will not owe a dollar of funded indebtedness and the state will be clean except for the irreducible debt which, of course, is never to be paid. That's a pretty good record for any commonwealth.

A resolution has been introduced for final adjournment of house and senate March 28 and that no general bills shall be introduced after March 1. With the volume of business on hand, it is doubtful if this can be done, however, and the session is more likely to extend until the last of April.

EVIDENTLY ONE OF THE THIEVES.

Wounded Man at Lancaster, Pa., Probably Victim of Bank Watchman's Bullet.

Lancaster, Pa., Feb. 10.—John Thomas, the robber who was shot in the face during the raid on the Gap National bank at Gap, Pa., early Saturday morning, was subjected to a severe questioning Sunday in his cell at the county jail, and though told that he might die admitted nothing except that his home is at Bath, Me. His wound has improved so much that it is no longer considered dangerous, though he is still unable to take solid food.

Probing could not reveal the bullet, and it is thought that he spat out the lead after it had shattered his jaw. He claims to have been shot on a freight train near this city, but his story is lacking and conflicting in details. He was viewed Sunday afternoon by Detectives Dougherty, Donohue and McGinley, of Philadelphia, but they could not identify him. There are no clues yet to the five others who escaped.

The attempt made to rob the bank ended in a lively exchange of shots between the town's watchman, David Stamix, and the burglars.

A stranger stopped at Atglen, a few miles east of Gap, and had a wound in his jaw dressed. He said he had received the injury by falling from a freight train and striking a piece of iron. It is believed he was the man wounded by the watchman. He was arrested subsequently at Parkersburg and brought to Lancaster Saturday afternoon, with a bad wound in the face.

He was captured on a passenger train between Glen Lock and Frazer.

MRS. SOFFEL SERIOUSLY ILL

Has a Well-Developed Case of Pleurisy—Can't Be Moved For Awhile.

Butler, Pa., Feb. 10.—Mrs. Soffel will not be in condition to be removed from the hospital for at least 10 days to come, and it may be a greater length of time. Since Saturday night there has been a change, and the woman now has a well developed case of pleurisy, the left cavity of the chest being the worst affected. At 8 o'clock last night her temperature was 108, pulse 112 and respiration 24.

Although she was seriously ill, Mrs. Soffel was cheerful and her mental condition was about the same as Saturday. She saw no visitors and talked to no one Sunday outside of her attendants and physicians. The physicians said last night that her condition was not alarming, but that under the most favorable conditions it would be 10 days before the disease will have run its course.

Wintering in Colorado And Utah.

The climate of Colorado and Utah has long been world famous, but it is only within recent years that attention has been given to the delightful winter climate of these states. Today physicians all over the United States send their patients to Colorado and Utah to escape the rigors of eastern winters and to benefit by her invigorating atmosphere and health-giving sunshine.

It is not necessary to add an elaborate argument—the conclusion is self-evident and inevitable. The winter climate of Colorado and Utah on the whole presents advantages for the invalid and the pleasure-seeker that cannot fail to command attention.

An erroneous impression prevails that because the Rocky mountains have a high elevation the mercury in the thermometer drops down below zero in the winter season and stops there, and that the snow mounts up with the altitude. The fact is that the average precipitation of moisture in the lowlands of the mountain region during the entire year is only 14.15 inches. With such average precipitation there is practically no danger of snow blockades on the railroads, save at a few points exposed to drifts and these points have been amply protected. This is especially true of the lines of the Denver & Rio Grande and the Rio Grande Western between Denver and Ogden at all seasons of the year. Facts speak for themselves, and the fact is that travel over "The Scenic Line of the World" has gone on with less interruption from snow blockades during the last ten winters than it has upon the majority of railroads in other localities which are popularly supposed to be more free from such delays than the mountain systems. The annual blue book just issued by the department of trade and commerce at Ottawa forms an interesting commentary upon the trend of trade in Canada. In spite of all the tariff restrictions against the United States and the tariff coddling given the mother land, there is a steady decline in the percentage of trade between Canada and Great Britain and a correspondingly steady increase in that between Canada and the United States. Exports to Great Britain in 1898 were 67.78 per cent, while last year these were 54.15, the increase with the United States being from 53.43 to 60.30 during the same period. Imports from Great Britain under the preferential tariff declined from $44,279,983 in 1900 to $42,819,995 last year, while imports from the United States under the tariff revision of the present dominion government increased from $102,080,177 to $107,149,325. The departmental report shows that the prosperity of 1901 is only in general terms a repetition of the five preceding years.

By beginning the work at this time the children will lose a month of school, but this must be done in order to get the building ready for occupancy by the first of September.

The opening play is Walter Fessler's great success, "The City of New York." A carload of elaborate scenery is carried for this production. The greatest railroad wreck scene ever produced on any stage is one of the thrilling scenes of this play. Tuesday night a magnificent presentation of "Monte Cristo" will be given.

The King Dramatic company closed a successful week's engagement Saturday night by presenting "On the Wabash" to a crowded house. The play was on the order of "Blue Jeans," and was cleverly presented. The specialties between acts were also well received.

POTTERY NEWS

The more the East Liverpool Pottery company examine the details of its first six months' operations, the better they are satisfied that the purchase and consolidation of the six plants was fortunate. Although under one general supervision, they are really operated on a competitive basis as to efficiency and economy. Each manager is responsible for amount, quality and cost of his output, and is required to make monthly reports. At the monthly meeting of the local managers they are reviewed and differences of expenses in various departments of the several plants noted, and remedies sought and applied. Greater economies and efficiency have been introduced from month to month by each manager, until now an appreciable difference in cost of ware is noted at nearly all the plants. It is claimed the six plants are making better ware and at a less cost than before.

E. L. Jester, of Monroe street, left on the morning train for Barberton, where he will take the position as assistant superintendent of the Barberton pottery, which will be in operation in a short time. Mr. Jester has been traveling salesman for the Raymond Engine company, of Dayton for several years. He will be permanently located in Barberton and will move his family in a few weeks.

At the last meeting of local union No. 32, printers and transferers, a committee was appointed to arrange for a social to be given in the near future. The social will be for ladies as well as gentlemen, and a general good time is anticipated. The program will consist of addresses and music.

Potters seem to be satisfied with the revised scales schedule and its rebate system, and think the latter will prove popular with buyers. Glassware dealers, who are receiving rebate cheques from the Glass association, are generally crockery buyers, and fully appreciate the rebate system.

Announcement has been made that Ambrose Cartwright and George B. Pryor, of New Castle, will have charge of the sales department of the new pottery being erected at Barberton. The firm will not make majolica, as has been stated.

N. A. Frederick leave this week for California to stay for the remainder of the winter. Mr. Frederick now has his first relief from active pottery duties for years, and will take unusual pleasure in his Pacific coast outing.

The crockery jobbers are holding their annual meeting at the Holland House, Cleveland. The conferences are held behind closed doors, and so far as could be learned there have been no radical measures proposed.

Among the meetings that will be held this evening will be those of the turners and handlers, pressers, printers and transferers, saggermakers.

It does not seem to be generally known that Willis Gaston withdrew from the race for county commissioner some two weeks ago. He and R. C. ## MEEK NOT GUILTY,

BUT PAYS THE COSTS.

Clearfield, Pa., Feb. 10.—"Not guilty, but pay the costs," was the verdict brought in Saturday morning by the jury chosen to decide whether P. Gray Meek, of the Bellefonte Watchman, had libeled State Treasurer-elect Frank G. Harris by calling him "king of crooks" and an "unblushing bribe-taker." The action of the jury imposes upon the defendant the payment of the costs, which, all told, amount to $47.62.

Mistletoe.

The prettiest thing about mistletoe is its milky white opalescent berries. The stems and foliage seem to betray the parasite nature of the plant in their unwholesome shade of green, a peculiarly unwholesome shade characterizing the stems. It is an uncanny sort of plant. Most parasites are. Is there anything more positively ghostlike than the plant we know as Indian pipe (monotropa)?

The annual blue book just issued by the department of trade and commerce at Ottawa forms an interesting commentary upon the trend of trade in Canada. In spite of all the tariff restrictions against the United States and the tariff coddling given the mother land, there is a steady decline in the percentage of trade between Canada and Great Britain and a correspondingly steady increase in that between Canada and the United States. Exports to Great Britain in 1898 were 67.78 per cent, while last year these were 54.15, the increase with the United States being from 53.43 to 60.30 during the same period. Imports from Great Britain under the preferential tariff declined from $44,279,983 in 1900 to $42,819,995 last year, while imports from the United States under the tariff revision of the present dominion government increased from $102,080,177 to $107,149,325. The departmental report shows that the prosperity of 1901 is only in general terms a repetition of the five preceding years.

The French Academy of Sciences has decided that Marconi is entitled to no honors save as a clever experimenter. The learned gentlemen are likely to be forced to change their minds if the young experimenter continues to live and work.

M. Santos-Dumont expects his new airship to fly at the rate of 60 miles an hour. If his expectations are realized most people will be disposed to let him travel alone in it until it has accomplished a few regular trips on schedule time.

The age of invention is still with us. More patents were granted to Americans last year than ever before. Even Americans in Hawaii, Porto Rico and the Philippines helped to add to the receipts of the patent office.

The dowager queen of Italy and the king of Siam are now booked for American tours. Those whose purses won't let them attend King Edward's coronation may still have a chance to see what royalty looks like.

Modern Rome, according to an American newspaper correspondent, is doing a thriving business, manufacturing "works of antiquity" to sell to travelers who have more money than brains.

A Kentucky judge proposes to arrest and jail all the men who violate the law against carrying concealed weapons. Where will he put them? The jails won't begin to hold them.

Twenty million American cigars, warranted good, will soon be for sale in this country. They were made in the Philippines, and can now enter free of duty.

There are 3,546 millionaires in the United States, according to a recent estimate. Those who have been omitted from the list should see the tax assessor.

Toledo is to have extensive new industries. The only handicap on that city's advancement is its Democracy and it may get rid of that in time.

Politics are warming up, even though the assistance of the weather man is withheld.

The Boers who want the war to end may be numerous, but they are not influential.

Teddy Roosevelt, Jr., set the foot-ish fashion of going bareheaded at Groton academy. He will be less ambitious after he feels better.

Now is the season when foolish people are preparing to make themselves unpopular by sending their friends comic valentines.

The national house of representatives is not encouraging tariff tinkers. There is no popular demand for their services.

Burglar Biddle wrote a spring poem a few days before he was shot. The lesson should not be lost.

It will take more than a three-cent trolley car fare to land Tom Johnson in the executive chair.

Annual Report Shows That St. Aloysius Church Had a Year of Prosperity.

The financial report of St. Aloysius' church for the year of 1901 has been made public. It gives receipts and expenses as follows:

Pew rental, $3,000; offertory collection, $1,000; special collections in the church, $1,800; entertainments, $1,400; total receipts including last year's balance, $12,955.60; expenses, $3,530.52; balance on hand, $9,425.08; actual receipts for 1901, $7,894.62.

The report is entirely satisfactory and it is the best the church has ever had.

PAROCHIAL SCHOOL

Plans for the Handsome New Building Being Drawn By an Akron Architect.

The working plans for the handsome new Catholic school building are being prepared by W. P. Glinther, of Akron, one of Ohio's foremost architects. As soon as these plans are received, Father Smyth will advertise for bids.

The old school on Fifth street must be torn down to make room for the new one, and it is expected that this work will be contracted for about the first of May. By beginning the work at this time the children will lose a month of school, but this must be done in order to get the building ready for occupancy by the first of September.

AT THE THEATER

The Schiller Stock company, including Miss Ella Fontainebleau, which comes to the Grand Opera House this week, has just closed a week's engagement at the opera house, Wheeling, and the newspapers of that city speak in the highest praise regarding the merits of this organization. The opening play is Walter Fessler's great success, "The City of New York." A carload of elaborate scenery is carried for this production. The greatest railroad wreck scene ever produced on any stage is one of the thrilling scenes of this play. Tuesday night a magnificent presentation of "Monte Cristo" will be given.

The King Dramatic company closed a successful week's engagement Saturday night by presenting "On the Wabash," to a crowded house. The play was on the order of "Blue Jeans," and was cleverly presented. The specialties between acts were also well received.

POTTERY NEWS

The more the East Liverpool Pottery company examine the details of its first six months' operations, the better they are satisfied that the purchase and consolidation of the six plants was fortunate. Although under one general supervision, they are really operated on a competitive basis as to efficiency and economy. Each manager is responsible for amount, quality and cost of his output, and is required to make monthly reports. At the monthly meeting of the local managers they are reviewed and differences of expenses in various departments of the several plants noted, and remedies sought and applied. Greater economies and efficiency have been introduced from month to month by each manager, until now an appreciable difference in cost of ware is noted at nearly all the plants. It is claimed the six plants are making better ware and at a less cost than before.

E. L. Jester, of Monroe street, left on the morning train for Barborton, where he will take the position as assistant superintendent of the Barborton pottery, which will be in operation in a short time. Mr. Jester has been traveling salesman for the Raymond Engine company, of Dayton for several years. He will be permanently located in Barborton and will move his family in a few weeks.

At the last meeting of local union No. 32, printers and transferers, a committee was appointed to arrange for a social to be given in the near future. The social will be for ladies as well as gentlemen, and a general good time is anticipated. The program will consist of addresses and music.

Potters seem to be satisfied with the revised scales schedule and its rebate system, and think the latter will prove popular with buyers. Glassware dealers, who are receiving rebate cheques from the Glass association, are generally crockery buyers, and fully appreciate the rebate system.

Announcement has been made that Ambrose Cartwright and George B. Pryor, of New Castle, will have charge of the sales department of the new pottery being erected at Barborton. The firm will not make majolica, as has been stated.

N. A. Frederick leave this week for California to stay for the remainder of the winter. Mr. Frederick now has his first relief from active pottery duties for years, and will take unusual pleasure in his Pacific coast outing.

The crockery jobbers are holding their annual meeting at the Holland House, Cleveland. The conferences are held behind closed doors, and so far as could be learned there have been no radical measures proposed.

Among the meetings that will be held this evening will be those of the turners and handlers, pressers, printers and transferers, saggermakers.

Miss Jennie Ferren, formerly of the C. C. Thompson pottery, has taken a position as finisher at the East End pottery.

The Wheeling Pottery company has booked enough business to insure a rush for the first half of the year.

Trenton unions of the N. B. of O. P. report a steady growth and increasing interest.

Walter Owens has taken a position as jiggerman at the East End.

After a shut down of a few days the East End started this morning.

SUNDAY CAROUSING

Greatly on the Decrease Owing to the Mayor's Hostility—Two Saturday Arrests.

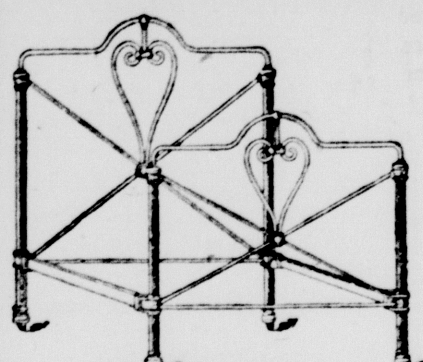

Sunday carousing and debauchery has greatly decreased since Mayor Davidson began the practice of assessing extra dollars on those who desecrate the Sabbath day by going against the flowing bowl. There was not a single victim taken in last night and no trouble of any nature reported.

John Shaffer was picked up by patrolmen Saturday night and locked up on the charge of disorderly conduct. He paid $2 and costs.

John Brown, of Chester, was arrested Saturday night by Officer Davidson and charged with disorderly conduct. The man who filed the complaint withdrew it later and Brown was released.

It does not seem to be generally known that Willis Gaston withdrew from the race for county commissioner some two weeks ago. He and R. G. ### BUT PAYS THE COSTS.

Clearfield, Pa., Feb. 10.—"Not guilty, but pay the costs," was the verdict brought in Saturday morning by the jury chosen to decide whether P. Gray Meek, of the Bellefonte Watchman, had libeled State Treasurer-elect Frank G. Harris by calling him "king of crooks" and an "unblushing bribe-taker." The action of the jury imposes upon the defendant the payment of the costs, which, all told, amount to $47.62.

Mistletoe.

The prettiest thing about mistletoe is its milky white opalescent berries. The stems and foliage seem to betray the parasite nature of the plant in their unwholesome shade of green, a peculiarly unwholesome shade characterizing the stems. It is an uncanny sort of plant. Most parasites are. Is there anything more positively ghostlike than the plant we know as Indian pipe (monotropa)?

Washington, Feb. 10.—The president has approved, with one notable exception, all the recommendations made by the army brevet board, of which General MacArthur was president, for the bestowal of brevet rank on all the officers of the army who rendered especially meritorious services during the war with Spain, and in the subsequent campaigns in the Philippines and China.

The exception noted is the case of Theodore Roosevelt, who was awarded the brevets of colonel and brigadier general for distinguished services at San Juan, Santiago.

HELD UP BY WOMEN

A Chester Man Reported the Victim of a Very Novel Experience.

John Woodmanse was the victim of evening. The deed was committed by two women, who were evidently in hard luck. They stopped him on Ninth street, near the Chester hotel, and demanded that he produce his valuables, as they were homeless and had no money with which to purchase a sleeping place.

Woodmanse made no effort to break away from them and quietly submitted to being searched. He had neither money nor other valuables in his clothes and the daring women were much chagrined at being compelled to leave without any pecuniary help.

At least five suits are now filed against Slack, and if the bills are not settled by March 15 Slack's household goods will be sold at public sale by Constable Allison.

CLAIM OF TRUST DENIED.

Answer of Two Ohio Railroad Companies Is Filed—Replies Are Practically Identical.

Columbus, Feb. 10.—The answers of the Hocking Valley and the Ohio Central Railway companies to the suits recently brought in Logan and Crawford counties to oust them from their charters were filed late Saturday afternoon. The suits charged that the two railways, which are parallel, have been unlawfully consolidated, and that, in their alliance with certain coal companies, they virtually constitute a trust; also, that the property of the railway companies has been returned for taxation at much less than its real value.

In the answers, which are practically identical, a general denial is entered as to the existence of a trust between the companies named. The denial covers the charge that excessive freights and passenger fares have been charged and relates that the express business is entirely under the control of the express companies doing business over the lines. In each case the defendant says its rate of fare and freight charges have at all times been as low, if not lower, than those of other railroads in the state of Ohio for like services.

Interrogatories relating to officers of the companies are answered, but it is claimed that it is not practicable to give a list of the stockholders, inasmuch as the stock is sold on the market, and is constantly changing hands.

The answer asserts that the defendant company has no definite knowledge as to whether the J. P. Morgan company owns 51 per cent of the stock of the companies, and, therefore, cannot deny the same, but denies that the same has been used by the said J. P. Morgan & Co. to carry on the purposes of the alleged combination and the prevention of competition between the lines.

FILIPINO GOVERNOR FLED.

Was Unable to Account For $4,000 of Insurgent Funds.

Manila, Feb. 10.—Senor Lerma, the newly-elected governor of Bataan province, fled after his election, when he was called upon to account for $4,000 of insurgent funds. He is still missing.

The provinces under civil rule, as well as Manila, have been flooded with a quantity of pamphlets printed in Hong Kong by the Filipino junta. These pamphlets are copies of a memorial by the junta, which has been forwarded to President Roosevelt. The memorial expresses sympathy at the death of Mr. McKinley, and assures the American people that sooner or later the Filipinos are bound to have independence. The junta says it has reliable information that most of the pacified provinces are only held in check by superior military forces. The pamphlets say that the educated Filipinos appreciate American governmental ideas, but when the bread of national life is asked for it does not suffice to offer a stone, even though that stone be a diamond.

The American merchants here complain of the action of the insular purchasing agent in making the majority of his purchases at Hong Kong, where materials are cheaper on account of Hong Kong being a free port.

Meals In Russia.

Among the common people there is no fixed time for eating meals. The Russian eats when he is hungry, and this is about six square meals a day. He has at least a dozen lunches, a little bit of salt fish or some caviare or a piece of bread and cheese, washed down with a nip of fiery vodka. He never passes a station without a glass of tea—marvelous tea, with a thin slice of lemon floating in it. You get a fondness for Russian tea and forswear belkied decoctions forever.

The table manners of the Russian—such as you see in hotels and buffets—are not pleasing. He sprawls with outstretched elbows on the table and gets his mouth down to his food rather than raise the food to his mouth. He makes objectionable noises in his throat. He has a finger bowl and rinses his mouth as the rest of us do when cleaning our teeth in our bathrooms. Then he squirts the water back into the bowl. In time one may get used to this.

The Civil War Mortality.

Commenting on the loss of life in the civil war from various causes, General Francis V. Greene says in Scribner's Magazine:

"How paltry seem the 5,000 killed and wounded in the war of 1812 or the war in Mexico or the war with Spain compared with the 14,000 at Shiloh, 15,000 at the Chickahominy, 13,000 at Antietam, the same at Fredericksburg, 16,000 at Chancellorsville, 23,000 at Gettysburg, 16,000 at Chickamauga, 37,000 in the Wilderness and 26,000 at Spotsylvania! The grand aggregate of destruction fairly staggers the imagination, accustomed as we have been for more than a generation to the figures—93,000 killed by bullets, 186,000 killed by disease, 25,000 dead from other causes, a grand total of 304,000, or about one in nine of every man who wore the uniform."

FORMAL OPENING

OF THE RAILWAY ASSOCIATION'S READING ROOMS.

Crowds in Attendance—Good Quarters And a Library of 4,000 Volumes.

The formal opening and smoker at the readings rooms on lower Main street Saturday evening was an event to be remembered by the several hundred employees of the C. & P. Railroad company of Wellsville and vicinity.

The rooms were crowded from the early evening until nearly 12 o'clock and a most enjoyable time was had by everyone present. The guests upon arriving were greeted by a reception committee who kindly escorted them through every department of the building and very obligingly answered all questions in regard to the rooms and their purposes.

After making a thorough inspection of the building the guests were led to the smoking room, where they were invited to help themselves and smoke to their heart's content. Music was provided by Frank Dunlap's orchestra, assisted by Miss Mae Rayl, pianist.

Among out-of-town railway employees present were: A. H. Rodgers, B. A. Montooth, R. D. Smith, W. H. Sausman, Salineville; G. W. Glass and J. W. Gilbert, Homeworth; Arthur Bell, New Philadelphia; J. D. Arthur, Atwater; J. A. Greenfield and J. A. Ney, Bellaire.

The building in which these rooms are located is situated in close proximity to the West End depot and the repair shops, and as the majority of the employees live close by, the location is admirably convenient. This building throughout is elegantly equipped with up-to-date conveniences, being richly carpeted, lighted by gas and heated by a hot air furnace. The walls of the rooms have been newly papered and are decorated with numerous pictures.

On the first floor are located the office, which is in charge of Thomas D. Culbertson, the reading room, smoking room and book room. In the latter room are 4,000 volumes by the best authors, which can be obtained by any employee. The daily papers and first-class magazines can also be found in this room. On the second floor there are three modern bath rooms and one large assembly room. The expense to each employee who enjoys the privileges provided by these rooms is only $1 per year, which is certainly low, considering the benefits derived.

The building was donated and equipped by the management of the C. & P. company and is in charge of the Reading Room association. The directors of this association are: W. H. Scribner, president; W. B. Wood, vice president; J. L. Crumrine, secretary and treasurer; J. J. McCormick, F. R. Martin, Frank Heller, T. J. Rogers, T. E. Byrne, Earl Munson, T. L. Appel, F. C. Thomas, Ed Fulton, George Kashner, G. L. Appel and J. D. Harris.

The members of the executive committee are: Frank Heller, F. C. Thomas, J. J. Rogers.

The honorary members of the association are: W. A. McIntosh, John Thomas, J. B. McKim and M. V. Miller.

Each candidate is working vigorously, using his every energy and diplomatically putting into play numerous ingenious schemes—all with the one hope of landing a victim at the primary election, which will be held next Saturday afternoon between the hours of 1 and 7.

Together with the office to which they gather with the office for which they aspire, follow:

BIG IMPROVEMENTS

TO BE MADE AT THE WELLSVILLE SHEET MILL.

A Hundred Thousand Dollars to Be Spent and Capacity Increased 50 Per Cent.

Superintendent D. S. Brookman is responsible for the statement that the American Sheet Steel company at a recent meeting voted a large amount of money for the enlargement of the Wellsville plant. The enlargement will increase the capacity of the plant fully 50 per cent.

It is stated that the appropriation is over $100,000. The company has had this plan under consideration for several months and when it was officially announced on Saturday by Supt. Brookman the residents of Wellsville were not at all surprised. Negotiations are being made with contractors for the machinery and material and the work is to be commenced immediately. The improvement means much to Wellsville. Several hundred more people will be given employment; the population will be increased; there will be a demand for more houses and the business and wealth of the city will be increased very materially.

FROM THE BOER COUNTRY

Five Elderly Men From South Africa Are Now Located in Wellsville.

Probably the most conspicuous men who attended the smoker given by the Reading Room association Saturday evening were the five elderly gentlemen who recently emigrated to this country from the Boer district of southern Africa.

In a conversation with a reporter they gave their names as W. V. Romondt, B. Cornelessen, H. Van Holten, J. Armar and Theodore Vondermeer. They claim to be expert painters and are employed in that capacity at the West End shops. They are of strikingly large physique and are apparently more than 50 years of age.

When asked if they had participated at any time in the Boer war their answers were so inaudible that nothing definite could be learned from them. They had in their possession relics galore of the far-off country, but were unable to give a story as to how they obtained them.

REPUBLICAN CAUCUSES

Held Only in the Second And Fifth Wards on Saturday Night.

The order issued by the county Republican central committee to the Republicans of this city asking them to hold caucuses Saturday night in the several wards for the purpose of electing three committeemen for each ward, was only heeded in the Second and Fifth wards. Those elected in these wards are: Second ward—J. F. McQueen, E. C. Taylor and J. F. Duncan. Fifth ward—Edward Ralston, George White and T. P. Ferguson.

Owing to the non-action taken in the remaining wards the full quota of committeemen will be elected on the same date that the county primaries are to be held.

CLAIM OF TRUST DENIED.

Answer of Two Ohio Railroad Companies Is Filed—Replies Are Practically Identical.

Columbus, Feb. 10.—The answers of the Hocking Valley and the Ohio Central Railway companies to the suits recently brought in Logan and Crawford counties to oust them from their charters were filed late Saturday afternoon. The suits charged that the two railways, which are parallel, have been unlawfully consolidated, and that, in their alliance with certain coal companies, they virtually constitute a trust; also, that the property of the railway companies has been returned for taxation at much less than its real value.

In the answers, which are practically identical, a general denial is entered as to the existence of a trust between the companies named. The denial covers the charge that excessive freights and passenger fares have been charged and relates that the express business is entirely under the control of the express companies doing business over the lines. In each case the defendant says its rate of fare and freight charges have at all times been as low, if not lower, than those of other railroads in the state of Ohio for like services.

Interrogatories relating to officers of the companies are answered, but it is claimed that it is not practicable to give a list of the stockholders, inasmuch as the stock is sold on the market, and is constantly changing hands.

The answer asserts that the defendant company has no definite knowledge as to whether the J. F. Morgan company owns 51 per cent of the stock of the companies, and, therefore, cannot deny the same, but denies that the same has been used by the said J. F. Morgan & Co. to carry on the purposes of the alleged combination and the prevention of competition between the lines.

The building in which these rooms are located is situated in close proximity to the West End depot and the repair shops, and as the majority of the employees live close by, the location is admirably convenient. This building throughout is elegantly equipped with up-to-date conveniences, being richly carpeted, lighted by gas and heated by a hot air furnace. The walls of the rooms have been newly papered and are decorated with numerous pictures.

On the first floor are located the office, which is in charge of Thomas D. Culbertson, the reading room, smoking room and book room. In the latter room are 4,000 volumes by the best authors, which can be obtained by any employee. The daily papers and first-class magazines can also be found in this room. On the second floor there are three modern bath rooms and one large assembly room. The expense to each employee who enjoys the privileges provided by these rooms is only $1 per year, which is certainly low, considering the benefits derived.

The building was donated and equipped by the management of the C. & P. company and is in charge of the Reading Room association. The directors of this association are: W. H. Scriven, president; W. B. Wood, vice president; J. L. Crumrine, secretary and treasurer; J. J. McCormick, F. R. Martin, Frank Heller, T. J. Rogers, T. E. Byrne, Earl Munson, T. L. Appel, F. C. Thomas, Ed Fulton, George Kashner, G. L. Appel and J. D. Harris.

The members of the executive committee are: Frank Heller, F. C. Thomas, J. J. Rogers.

The honorary members of the association are: W. A. McIntosh, John Thomas, J. B. McKim and M. V. Miller.

ENTRIES HAVE CLOSED

And Republican Candidates for City Offices Are Beginning to Hustle.

The candidates' entry book was closed promptly at 8 o'clock Saturday evening by E. C. Taylor, secretary of the Republican central committee, and now one of the warmest political fights ever witnessed in this city is on. Each candidate is working vigorously, using his every energy and diplomatically putting into play numerous ingenious schemes—all with the one hope of landing a victim at the primary election, which will be held next Saturday afternoon between the hours of 1 and 7.

BIG IMPROVEMENTS

TO BE MADE AT THE WELLSVILLE SHEET MILL.

A Hundred Thousand Dollars to Be Spent and Capacity Increased 50 Per Cent.

Superintendent D. S. Brookman is responsible for the statement that the American Sheet Steel company at a recent meeting voted a large amount of money for the enlargement of the Wellsville plant. The enlargement will increase the capacity of the plant fully 50 per cent.

It is stated that the appropriation is over $100,000. The company has had this plan under consideration for several months and when it was officially announced on Saturday by Supt. Brookman the residents of Wellsville were not at all surprised. Negotiations are being made with contractors for the machinery and material and the work is to be commenced immediately. The improvement means much to Wellsville. Several hundred more people will be given employment; the population will be increased; there will be a demand for more houses and the business and wealth of the city will be increased very materially.

FROM THE BOER COUNTRY

Five Elderly Men From South Africa Are Now Located in Wellsville.

Probably the most conspicuous men who attended the smoker given by the Reading Room association Saturday evening were the five elderly gentlemen who recently emigrated to this country from the Boer district of southern Africa.

In a conversation with a reporter they gave their names as W. V. Romondt, B. Cornelissen, H. Van Holten, J. Armar and Theodore Vondermeer. They claim to be expert painters and are employed in that capacity at the West End shops. They are of strikingly large physique and are apparently more than 50 years of age.

When asked if they had participated at any time in the Boer war their answers were so inaudible that nothing definite could be learned from them. They had in their possession relics galore of the far-off country, but were unable to give a story as to how they obtained them.

REPUBLICAN CAUCUSES

Held Only in the Second And Fifth Wards on Saturday Night.

The order issued by the county Republican central committee to the Republicans of this city asking them to hold caucuses Saturday night in the several wards for the purpose of electing three committeemen for each ward, was only heeded in the Second and Fifth wards. Those elected in these wards are: Second ward—J. F. McQueen, E. C. Taylor and J. F. Duncan. Fifth ward—Edward Ralston, George White and T. P. Ferguson.

Owing to the non-action taken in the remaining wards the full quota of committeemen will be elected on the same date that the county primaries are to be held.

Greeted By Large Audiences.

Rev. H. W. Lowry, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Wooster, preached both morning and evening at the First Presbyterian church Sunday. He was greeted by large audiences and his addresses were very much appreciated.

PRESIDENT NOT EXPECTED BACK FOR SEVERAL DAYS.

Washington, Feb. 10.—The condition of Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., shows no change of any importance, and as it is probable in the nature of the illness that it will be several days or more before the outcome will be apparent the president is not likely to return to Washington from Groton, Mass., until at least the end of the week. Last evening the White House made public the following message received from Groton:

"The president saw his son shortly after arrival here. Boy's condition is unchanged, but he is holding his own well."

HELD UP BY WOMEN

A Chester Man Reported the Victim of a Very Novel Experience.

John Woodmanse was the victim of evening. The deed was committed by two women, who were evidently in hard luck. They stopped him on Ninth street, near the Chester hotel, and demanded that he produce his valuables, as they were homeless and had no money with which to purchase a sleeping place.

Woodmanse made no effort to break away from them and quietly submitted to being searched. He had neither money nor other valuables in his clothes and the daring women were much chagrined at being compelled to leave without any pecuniary help.

SUITS AGAINST SLACK

Another attachment suit has been filed in 'Squire Johnston's' court against W. A. Slack, Dr. Berg, of Beaver Falls, entered the suit Saturday. He alleges that Slack owes him $12 for professional services rendered.

At least five suits are now filed against Slack, and if the bills are not settled by March 15 Slack's household goods will be sold at public sale by Constable Allison.

CLAIM OF TRUST DENIED.

Answer of Two Ohio Railroad Companies Is Filed—Replies Are Practically Identical.

Columbus, Feb. 10.—The answers of the Hocking Valley and the Ohio Central Railway companies to the suits recently brought in Logan and Crawford counties to oust them from their charters were filed late Saturday afternoon. The suits charged that the two railways, which are parallel, have been unlawfully consolidated, and that, in their alliance with certain coal companies, they virtually constitute a trust; also, that the property of the railway companies has been returned for taxation at much less than its real value.

In the answers, which are practically identical, a general denial is entered as to the existence of a trust between the companies named. The denial covers the charge that excessive freights and passenger fares have been charged and relates that the express business is entirely under the control of the express companies doing business over the lines. In each case the defendant says its rate of fare and freight charges have at all times been as low, if not lower, than those of other railroads in the state of Ohio for like services.

Interrogatories relating to officers of the companies are answered, but it is claimed that it is not practicable to give a list of the stockholders, inasmuch as the stock is sold on the market, and is constantly changing hands.

The answer asserts that the defendant company has no definite knowledge as to whether the J. P. Morgan company owns 51 per cent of the stock of the companies, and, therefore, cannot deny the same, but denies that the same has been used by the said J. P. Morgan & Co. to carry on the purposes of the alleged combination and the prevention of competition between the lines.

FILIPINO GOVERNOR FLED.

Was Unable to Account For $4,000 of Insurgent Funds.

Manila, Feb. 10.—Senor Lerma, the newly-elected governor of Bataan province, fled after his election, when he was called upon to account for $4,000 of insurgent funds. He is still missing.

The provinces under civil rule, as well as Manila, have been flooded with a quantity of pamphlets printed in Hong Kong by the Filipino junta. These pamphlets are copies of a memorial by the junta, which has been forwarded to President Roosevelt. The memorial expresses sympathy at the death of Mr. McKinley, and assures the American people that sooner or later the Filipinos are bound to have independence. The junta says it has reliable information that most of the pacified provinces are only held in check by superior military forces. The pamphlets say that the educated Filipinos appreciate American governmental ideas, but when the bread of national life is asked for it does not suffice to offer a stone, even though that stone be a diamond.

The American merchants here complain of the action of the insular purchasing agent in making the majority of his purchases at Hong Kong, where materials are cheaper on account of Hong Kong being a free port.

Meals in Russia.

Among the common people there is no fixed time for eating meals. The Russian eats when he is hungry, and this is about six square meals a day. He has at least a dozen lunches, a little bit of salt fish or some caviare or a piece of bread and cheese, washed down with a nip of fiery vodka. He never passes a station without a glass of tea—marvelous tea, with a thin slice of lemon floating in it. You get a fondness for Russian tea and forswear hemlock decoctions forever. The table manners of the Russian—such as you see in hotels and buffets—are not pleasing. He sprawls with outstretched elbows on the table and gets his mouth down to his food rather than raise the food to his mouth. He makes objectionable noises in his throat. He has a finger bowl and rinses his mouth as the rest of us do when cleaning our teeth in our bathrooms. Then he squirts the water back into the bowl. In time one may get used to this.

The Civil War Mortality.

Commenting on the loss of life in the civil war from various causes, General Francis V. Greene says in Scribner's Magazine:

"How paltry seem the 5,000 killed and wounded in the war of 1812 or the war in Mexico or the war with Spain compared with the 14,000 at Shiloh, 15,000 at Chickasaw, 13,000 at Antietam, the same at Fredericksburg, 16,000 at Chancellorsville, 23,000 at Gettysburg, 16,000 at Chickamauga, 37,000 in the Wilderness and 26,000 at Spottsylvania! The grand aggregate of destruction fairly staggers the imagination, accustomed as we have been for more than a generation to the figures—93,000 killed by bullets, 156,000 killed by disease, 25,000 dead from other causes, a grand total of 304,000, or about one in nine of every man who wore the uniform."

FORMAL OPENING

OF THE RAILWAY ASSOCIATION'S READING ROOMS.

Crowds in Attendance—Good Quarters And a Library of 4,000 Volumes.

The formal opening and smoker at the readings rooms on lower Main street Saturday evening was an event to be remembered by the several hundred employees of the C. & P. Railroad company of Wellsville and vicinity.

The rooms were crowded from the early evening until nearly 12 o'clock and a most enjoyable time was the lot of everyone present. The guests upon arriving were greeted by a reception committee who kindly escorted them through every department of the building and very obligingly answered all questions in regard to the rooms and their purposes.

After making a thorough inspection of the building the guests were led to the smoking room, where they were invited to help themselves and smoke to their heart's content. Music was provided by Frank Dunlap's orchestra, assisted by Miss Mae Rayl, pianist.

Among out-of-town railway employees present were: A. H. Rodgers, E. A. Montooth, R. D. Smith, W. H. Sausman, Salineville; G. W. Glass and J. W. Gilbert, Homeworth; Arthur Bell, New Philadelphia; J. D. Arthur, Atwater; J. A. Greenfield and J. A. Ney, Bellaire.

The building in which these rooms are located is situated in close proximity to the West End depot and the repair shops, and as the majority of the employees live close by, the location is admirably convenient. This building throughout is elegantly equipped with up-to-date conveniences, being richly carpeted, lighted by gas and heated by a hot air furnace. The walls of the rooms have been newly papered and are decorated with numerous pictures.

On the first floor are located the office, which is in charge of Thomas D. Culbertson, the reading room, smoking room and book room. In the latter room are 4,000 volumes by the best authors, which can be obtained by any employee. The daily papers and first-class magazines can also be found in this room. ## CHAPTER XVII.—Continued.

"What idiots girls are! Why, this man read me like a book. He saw that I was full of yellow covered ambitions and ten cent aspirations. He had probably seen a great many girls equally deserving of encouragement. I thought he was splendid. I put my hand in his and prepared to ascend the hill of learning."

"It was a supper after the theater, and we rode to my house together in a hansom afterward at 2 o'clock in the morning, and the chaperon of our supper party rode in another direction in another hansom with another man. My escort talked about the 'Rubaiyat' of Omar Khayyam, and I then first appreciated the beauties of that sublime composition. Afterward he spoke of my work in a very earnest and encouraging way. He let me know that he had been quite a student of the drama and that his criticism and advice would be of the greatest assistance. That, at least, was the inference. Finally he bade me good night on the doorstep, with a gentle sadness in his manner which let me know that there was a romance in his life. That made me feel safe, for at that time I surely did not want him to fall in love with me, and I still retained the delusion of my earlier years that romances in a person's life acted like vaccination."

"The gentleman called upon me the next afternoon, and he was very entertaining as well as instructive. He brought me a large book. I forgot what it was about. The next day he took me out to dinner, and I remember that he gave me some very shrewd and helpful criticism about my work. Then I didn't see him for two whole days, and I began to miss him very much. At that time I was lonely. My girl friends in the profession were all out of town, and some of the men in the company who wished to be kind to me were rough in their ways—not at all like the cultured gentleman whose acquaintance I had been so fortunate as to make."

"But didn't you ask about him?" said Brenda. "Didn't you find out how he stood socially?"

Elsie laughed. "How was I to find out any of those things?" she said. "The world is a big place, in the midst of which is society as you know it, a little mutual insurance company for the purpose of protecting its members, especially the younger ones, against accidents. I only knew that I liked this man and that he seemed to be a true friend to me. What other guide was I to have except my own beautiful ignorance?"

"I don't know," said Brenda aloud, but to herself she was saying: "The more wrong she has suffered the more I want to help her. I won't let anything take her away from me."

"Presently I heard the story of the romance in his life," continued Elsie. "It appeared that the gentleman was married—most unhappily. Where was his wife? He had permitted her to obtain a divorce. This was pure generosity on his part. He would rather suffer an injustice than attack in the courts the woman he had sworn to love and cherish. He mentioned several high society precedents for this conduct. In fact, he convinced me that divorce was, upon the whole, a mark of distinction in these days. It appeared that his was a sort of limited divorce which did not permit him to remarry, but after this aspect of it had been presented to me on several occasions he discovered that he could marry under certain conditions with the full sanction of the law and heaven."

"Well, Brenda, let's be fair. I wanted to marry the man. I persuaded myself that I was in love with him. I wasn't. I can see that now. I wasn't within a million miles of loving him, but I was ready to be loved, Brenda; that's the truth about it. My heart was full of tenderness, and I saw the whole world rose tinted in the light of the dawn of love. That's poetical. But wait a minute. I am coming to something very unromantic. I wrote this story, Brenda—wrote it all down for a great heart thrilling novel—and then had sense enough to burn it. But that helps me to tell it straight, and you'll catch fine phrases now and then, but you won't laugh at me.

"Well, we were engaged, of course. My fiancé presented me with a diamond ring, and diamonds are my soul's delight. After I got this one I used to keep a little light burning in my room at night so that I might see it sparkle if I happened to be wakeful. I subsequently learned that there was a financial irregularity involved in the obtaining of the glittering gem, but I did not learn that until after it had passed out of my possession."

"Where did fate find this precious rascal?" whispered Brenda. "And why did fate send him to you?"

"Why did fate send a good man afterward?" said Elsie. "Why not before? Well, the moving finger writes and, having writ, moves on—It was to be. Finally the gentleman announced that a marriage under the laws of the state of Pennsylvania would meet the requirements of the situation. I was a good deal startled by this definite suggestion, and I wrote to my mother on the subject for the first time. The gentleman took the letter to post, and it has not been delivered yet, thank heaven!"

"Before it was time to get an answer sudden business of great importance called my fiancé to Philadelphia. How opportune! Well, Brenda, I packed a little hand bag and went. What must you think of me?"

Brenda bent down gently and kissed Elsie's hand and held it against her face.

"I don't know the story yet," she said, "but you have portrayed a thorough scoundrel. And you have also shown me a trusting and true hearted girl who went to be married with an innocent heart. Blessed heaven! Think of a man for whom a young and pure girl will go out into the world like that, as if to walk in the fields! Should not every fiber of his soul be thrilled to loyalty for all his life?"

"The gentleman in question had no soul," said Elsie. "I think he will be spared all punishment hereafter, as the brutes are. Let us proceed, Brenda, dear. The remainder of the story is not long. We took the 11 o'clock train and reached Philadelphia in time for luncheon. Our marriage was to be kept secret for awhile, and there seemed to be some slight objection to the public dining room of the hotel where our hansom set us down. However, we lunched there quite hastily, for I had no appetite. Then we re-entered the hansom and went to look for a minister. We had remarkable difficulty in finding one, considering that Philadelphia is a large city full of churches, but we finally succeeded. Then it appeared that we had neglected to comply with certain formalities, but the clergyman was able to rectify the matter, and so we were married pitifully, as I see it now, with stupid old servants and a chance laborer who happened to be at work in the house as our witnesses."

"When we got back to the hotel, it was 6 o'clock, and I was nearly famished. We hurried right into the dining room, and my husband ordered a great spread, with champagne, for our miserable celebration, and now I will tell you the unromantic part. In the midst of that dinner, and while I fancied that I was eating with a splendid appetite, I was suddenly seized with the most awful pain that ever devastated my poor little stomach. Yes, Brenda, it was a regular, terrible stomach ache—just pain, without a bit of nausea. I felt as if some one had my stomach in his hand—a hand about the size of Captain Neale's—and was crushing it to pieces."

"My husband said he guessed it would soon pass away, but it didn't, and so he left his dinner and ran out to a drug store to get me something to take. When he came back, I took it, and I didn't feel any worse, because that wasn't possible, but I certainly felt no better. In a few minutes I began to realize that I was going out of my wits. I talked insanely and saw things that weren't there. The next thing I knew we were riding up in an elevator, and it seemed to go up for a week. Then there was a woman leading me along a hall and into a room, and she began to take off my clothes in the bedroom of a little suit. I stared at her and asked her who she was."

"I'm the assistant housekeeper," she said. "I belong to the hotel."

"As if she had been a piece of furniture. Then I asked where my husband was, and she said he had gone out for a doctor. So she made me lie down. Probably I seemed to be there on that bed, but in reality—my own reality—I was playing in that old barn-storming company and studying, studying, studying on long parts that were always changing, but sometimes I was a little girl again in a town way out in Michigan, running through the streets, with my long legs flying and my heels touching the back of my head, as my mother used to say. I stole the neighbors' flowers in the scented June evenings and staid out under the little whispering stars till my mother came, weeping with anxiety, to bring me home. And, strangely enough, right in the midst of it all there stood the doctor, a tall, gaunt young man, asking me how I felt. But where was my husband?"

"He has not got back," said the woman. "I was afraid to wait any lon-

THE TIME IS NOT FAR DISTANT WHEN IN THE FINE ARTS, AS WELL AS IN EVERY OTHER BRANCH OF HUMAN ACTIVITY, AMERICA WILL ASSUME THE SUPREMACY.

I believe the artist is justified in making his work thoroughly consistent in general tone, if he shows a right regard for the artistic expression of his conception of his idea.

There is no reason in my mind why the horses of modern statues should follow the old Roman type, and any artist is fully justified in breaking away from the old traditions while maintaining a proper respect for the tenets of art. One should know the rules and traditions in order to know just how far he may depart from them.

ger, so I got this gentleman, who is a New York doctor stopping in the hotel."

"Then I felt something sharp pricking my arm and afterward the pain was easier, and my mind suddenly became as clear as it is now. I heard the doctor say that I would be all right when I had had some sleep, and then my husband appeared, looking in between the curtains that hung by the bedroom door, it seems that he had not brought a doctor, but had left word for one to come."

"My husband remained there, between the curtains, perfectly rigid, staring, pale as a ghost. He was looking at the doctor beside my bed, and glancing up I saw that the doctor was staring at him.

"You!" said the doctor, and he took three strides out of the room, my husband backing away as the other advanced.

"They whispered together; they thought I could not hear. But, Brenda, I would have heard them if they had been in New York."

"She says you were married this afternoon," said the doctor. "How is that?"

"Who in the devil's name called you in?" demanded my husband. "Where did you come from?"

"This is state prison business," said the doctor, without minding the questions. "You are living legally separated from your wife, but you are not divorced, and you never will be by your own consent, for her father is paying you to behave yourself."

"There has been no marriage here," said my husband. "Don't say anything. This is a mere freak of mine. I'll make it right with you if you'll keep quiet."

"You lie," said the doctor, and then, "Am I too late to save her?"

"My husband answered 'Yes.' Brenda, how is it possible for a human being to utter a falsehood like that? I was no more to him than you are except that I had promised before God to be his wife. And the doctor looked him in the eyes a moment and then struck him across the face with the back of his open hand and went out of the room."

"My husband came to the curtains and looked in; then he approached the bed, and I groaned as loud as I could. At that he seemed to lose his wits. He ran around the room aimlessly and at last snatched his hat from the floor and rushed out. I suppose he was going for another doctor."

"When he was gone, I invented an errand and sent the woman away. Then I got up and dressed. I don't know how it was possible for me to do it, but I seemed to be as light as a feather. I got out of the hotel easily enough and took a cab to the railroad station. I had not money enough for a sleeper, so I rode in a day coach all the way to New York, but my mind was in a thousand places, and some of them were beautiful, and I was happy there, and again I was in terror and pain."

"When I left the train at Jersey City, my head was bursting upon my shoulders and the air was fire. Honestly, Brenda, when the ferryboat ran into the slip on this side, I thought it was the mouth of the infernal regions. It looked like a great cave full of flames and it seemed that I was being crushed and thrust into it. Yet I must have had some part of my senses, for I found a cab and gave the driver my address. And so I came home from my wedding journey, Brenda. I let myself in with my key, and the people in the house never knew that I had been away that night. They found me ill and got a doctor for me, and before the day was over I was nearly well. The doctor said I must have eaten some sort of a thing—what do they call it—I always think of tomatoes."

"Potatoes," said Brenda. "Oh, you poor child; you poor, wretched, lucky little Elsie! I am so glad, so glad!"

Her companion had often heard of wetting whistles, but never before of oiling them. Think it over.—Brooklyn Times.

What He Came For.

A learned judge who was one of the guests at a dinner was unexpectedly called upon to reply to a toast. Recovering somewhat from his surprise, he said that his situation reminded him of the story of a man who fell into the water while he was fishing. With no little difficulty he was rescued, and, after he had regained his breath and was in a fairly comfortable condition, his rescuer asked him how he came to fall into the water. "I did not come to fall into the water," replied the unfortunate fisherman. "I came to fish."

CHAPTER XVII.—Continued.

"What idiots girls are! Why, this man read me like a book. He saw that I was full of yellow covered ambitions and ten cent aspirations. He had probably seen a great many girls equally deserving of encouragement. I thought he was splendid. I put my hand in his and prepared to ascend the hill of learning."

"It was a supper after the theater, and we rode to my house together in a hansom afterward at 2 o'clock in the morning, and the chaperon of our supper party rode in another direction in another hansom with another man. My escort talked about the 'Rubaiyat' of Omar Khayyam, and I then first appreciated the beauties of that sublime composition. Afterward he spoke of my work in a very earnest and encouraging way. He let me know that he had been quite a student of the drama and that his criticism and advice would be of the greatest assistance. That, at least, was the inference. Finally he bade me good night on the doorstep, with a gentle sadness in his manner which let me know that there was a romance in his life. That made me feel safe, for at that time I surely did not want him to fall in love with me, and I still retained the delusion of my earlier years that romances in a person's life acted like vaccination."

"The gentleman called upon me the next afternoon, and he was very entertaining as well as instructive. He brought me a large book. I forgot what it was about. The next day he took me out to dinner, and I remember that he gave me some very shrewd and helpful criticism about my work. Then I didn't see him for two whole days, and I began to miss him very much. At that time I was lonely. My girl friends in the profession were all out of town, and some of the men in the company who wished to be kind to me were rough in their ways—not at all like the cultured gentleman whose acquaintance I had been so fortunate as to make."

"But didn't you ask about him?" said Brenda. "Didn't you find out how he stood socially?"

Elsie laughed. "How was I to find out any of those things?" she said. "The world is a big place, in the midst of which is society as you know it, a little mutual insurance company for the purpose of protecting its members, especially the younger ones, against accidents. ### What He Came For.

A learned judge who was one of the guests at a dinner was unexpectedly called upon to reply to a toast. Recovering somewhat from his surprise, he said that his situation reminded him of the story of a man who fell into the water while he was fishing. With no little difficulty he was rescued, and after he had regained his breath and was in a fairly comfortable condition, his rescuer asked him how he came to fall into the water. "I did not come to fall into the water," replied the unfortunate fisherman. "I came to fish."

"What idiots girls are! Why, this man read me like a book. He saw that I was full of yellow covered ambitions and ten cent aspirations. He had probably seen a great many girls equally deserving of encouragement. I thought he was splendid. I put my hand in his and prepared to ascend the hill of learning."

"It was a supper after the theater, and we rode to my house together in a hansom afterward at 2 o'clock in the morning, and the chaperon of our supper party rode in another direction in another hansom with another man. My escort talked about the 'Rubaiyat' of Omar Khayyam, and I then first appreciated the beauties of that sublime composition. Afterward he spoke of my work in a very earnest and encouraging way. He let me know that he had been quite a student of the drama and that his criticism and advice would be of the greatest assistance. That, at least, was the inference. Finally he bade me good night on the doorstep, with a gentle sadness in his manner which let me know that there was a romance in his life. That made me feel safe, for at that time I surely did not want him to fall in love with me, and I still retained the delusion of my earlier years that romances in a person's life acted like vaccination."

"The gentleman called upon me the next afternoon, and he was very entertaining as well as instructive. He brought me a large book. I forgot what it was about. The next day he took me out to dinner, and I remember that he gave me some very shrewd and helpful criticism about my work. Then I didn't see him for two whole days, and I began to miss him very much. At that time I was lonely. My girl friends in the profession were all out of town, and some of the men in the company who wished to be kind to me were rough in their ways—not at all like the cultured gentleman whose acquaintance I had been so fortunate as to make."

"But didn't you ask about him?" said Brenda. "Didn't you find out how he stood socially?"

Elsie laughed. "How was I to find out any of those things?" she said. "The world is a big place, in the midst of which is society as you know it, a little mutual insurance company for the purpose of protecting its members, especially the younger ones, against accidents. I only knew that I liked this man and that he seemed to be a true friend to me. What other guide was I to have except my own beautiful ignorance?"

"I don't know," said Brenda aloud, but to herself she was saying: "The more wrong she has suffered the more I want to help her. I won't let anything take her away from me."

"Presently I heard the story of the romance in his life," continued Elsie. "It appeared that the gentleman was married—most unhappily. Where was his wife? He had permitted her to obtain a divorce. This was pure generosity on his part. He would rather suffer an injustice than attack in the courts the woman he had sworn to love and cherish. He mentioned several high society precedents for this conduct. In fact, he convinced me that divorce was, upon the whole, a mark of distinction in these days. It appeared that his was a sort of limited divorce which did not permit him to remarry, but after this aspect of it had been presented to me on several occasions he discovered that he could marry under certain conditions with the full sanction of the law and heaven."

"Well, Brenda, let's be fair. I wanted to marry the man. I persuaded myself that I was in love with him. I wasn't. I can see that now. I wasn't within a million miles of loving him, but I was ready to be loved, Brenda; that's the truth about it. My heart was full of tenderness, and I saw the whole world rose tinted in the light of the dawn of love. That's poetical. But wait a minute. I am coming to something very unromantic. I wrote this story, Brenda—wrote it all down for a great heart thrilling novel—and then had sense enough to burn it. But that helps me to tell it straight, and you'll

America the Art Center of the Future

By FREDERICK MAC MONNIES, the World Famous Sculptor

HERE is not a more appreciative people in the world than the people of the United States. They want the best things, and they are determined to have them. There is a positive demand for the best here. I WOULD LIKE TO SEE A NATIONAL SCHOOL ESTABLISHED IN AMERICA ON THE LINES OF THE ECOLE DES BEAUX ARTS OF PARIS.

The instruction in this institution is both theoretical and practical, and the school is open to all Frenchmen from fifteen to thirty years of age and even in some cases to foreigners. The school is intended for painters, sculptors and architects.

The people abroad are not half as enthusiastic as the Americans are. If you were to compare them, you would find that in the fine arts the really enthusiastic Americans would far outbalance the mass of foreigners.

When the opportunities here are improved and the facilities made as fine as they are in France, it will be more profitable to Americans to study here and only spend a year or so abroad.

The possibilities in this country are magnificent. I hope to live to see the day when Americans and foreigners will find it to their advantage to study in an American national school of art. The time is sure to come. I believe that when an artist or sculptor has received the benefits of the training of years in the best school of its kind he should return to his own country and apply what he has learned to his country's needs.

The French nation sends over students to study electrical engineering in America, and will not the time come when the same nation will send over its students to study the fine arts here?

THE TIME IS NOT FAR DISTANT WHEN IN THE FINE ARTS, AS WELL AS IN EVERY OTHER BRANCH OF HUMAN ACTIVITY, AMERICA WILL ASSUME THE SUPREMACY.

I believe the artist is justified in making his work thoroughly consistent in general tone, if he shows a right regard for the artistic expression of his conception of his idea.

There is no reason in my mind why the horses of modern statues should follow the old Roman type, and any artist is fully justified in breaking away from the old traditions while maintaining a proper respect for the tenets of art. One should know the rules and traditions in order to know just how far he may depart from them.

ger, so I got this gentleman, who is a New York doctor stopping in the hotel."

"Then I felt something sharp pricking my arm and afterward the pain was easier, and my mind suddenly became as clear as it is now. I heard the doctor say that I would be all right when I had had some sleep, and then my husband appeared, looking in between the curtains that hung by the bedroom door. It seems that he had not brought a doctor, but had left word for one to come."

"My husband remained there, between the curtains, perfectly rigid, staring, pale as a ghost. He was looking at the doctor beside my bed, and glancing up I saw that the doctor was staring at him."

"You!" said the doctor, and he took three strides out of the room, my husband backing away as the other advanced. "They whispered together; they thought I could not hear. But, Brenda, I would have heard them if they had been in New York."

"She says you were married this afternoon," said the doctor. "How is that?"

"Who in the devil's name called you in?" demanded my husband. "Where did you come from?"

"This is state prison business," said the doctor, without minding the questions. "You are living legally separated from your wife, but you are not divorced, and you never will be by your own consent, for her father is paying you to behave yourself."

"There has been no marriage here," said my husband. "Don't say anything. This is a mere freak of mine. I'll make it right with you if you'll keep quiet."

"You lie," said the doctor, and then, "Am I too late to save her?"

"My husband answered 'Yes.' Brenda, how is it possible for a human being to utter a falsehood like that? I was no more to him than you are except that I had promised before God to be his wife. And the doctor looked him in the eyes a moment and then struck him across the face with the back of his open hand and went out of the room."

"My husband came to the curtains and looked in; then he approached the bed, and I groaned as loud as I could. At that he seemed to lose his wits. He ran around the room aimlessly and at last snatched his hat from the floor and rushed out. I suppose he was going for another doctor."

"When he was gone, I invented an errand and sent the woman away. Then I got up and dressed. I don't know how it was possible for me to do it, but I seemed to be as light as a feather. I got out of the hotel easily enough and took a cab to the railroad station. I had not money enough for a sleeper, so I rode in a day coach all the way to New York, but my mind was in a thousand places, and some of them were beautiful, and I was happy there, and again I was in terror and pain."

"When I left the train at Jersey City, my head was bursting upon my shoulders and the air was fire. Honestly, Brenda, when the ferryboat ran into the slip on this side, I thought it was the mouth of the infernal regions. It looked like a great cave full of flames and it seemed that I was being crushed and thrust into it. Yet I must have had some part of my senses, for I found a cab and gave the driver my address. And so I came home from my wedding journey, Brenda. I let myself in with my key, and the people in the house never knew that I had been away that night. They found me ill and got a doctor for me, and before the day was over I was nearly well. The doctor said I must have eaten some sort of a thing—what do they call it—I always think of tomatoes."

"Ptomaines," said Brenda. "Oh, you poor child; you poor, wretched, lucky little Elsie! I am so glad, so glad!"

Something New in Mechanics. Great is the humor of woman when she doesn't mean it, great is the nerve of woman when she doesn't need it, and great are the nerves of woman when it so pleases her. This combination is blamable for the following: A very pretty girl sat in a Long Island railroad train. Suddenly the whistle blew. It is perhaps not necessary to say that a Long Island railroad whistle is more efficacious than otherwise. It is tuned to the key of W and is operated with a great diapason, giving out a brand of yelping shriek different from anything known to nature. To repeat, the whistle whistled. "O-o-ow!" cried the pretty girl. "Isn't that awful? I should think the railroad company would have these things oiled. It is an outrage." Her companion had often heard of wetting whistles, but never before of oiling them. Think it over.—Brooklyn Times.

HOME STUDY COURSE

Self Education Under the Supervision of Prominent Educators.

E. Benjamin Andrews, LL. D., Editor.

BY COLIN A. SCOTT, PH. D.,
Professor of Psychology and Child Study
in the Wisconsin Normal School.

THE initial aim is perfect and the force of delivery neither too great nor too small, it may yet happen, especially toward the end of the course, that some little flaw in the ice, some drift of snow or other slight obstruction, may cause the stone either to move so slowly or to deviate in such a way that it fails to reach the spot for which it was designed. It is at this moment rather than at the beginning that the greatest anxiety on the part of the players is observed. Here it is that they freely use their brooms or even get down upon their knees to rub the ice.

It is much the same with the development of a human being. Nature starts us off with an immense hereditary push and for the most part in the right direction. During the earliest years the momentum of growth is so great, at least with those well born, that nothing less than an exceedingly untoward environment is sufficient to produce a conspicuous deviation or arrest. But with the approach of adolescence or the culmination of the period of development the hereditary force is more easily modified or deranged, and even the slightest influences of environment are sufficient to produce all the difference between failure and success.

During the first two years of puberty physical changes indicated mentally by vague, undefined sensations and lower ranges of desire first assert themselves. They push their way into the personal perception which has gradually been expanding during childhood proper. At the same time there is also a distinct enlargement of the more altruistic moral functions. These various factors are at first not thoroughly co-ordinated, and the years between 17 and 25, or adolescence proper, is thus largely a period of fusion, during which a certain amount of lack of balance is not such a serious indication of defect as it would be either earlier or later in life.

That the plasticity of this period—its transforming power and its consequent survival value—is focused on the sexual functions and on the physical, mental and spiritual capacities directly connected therewith is an arrangement of the greatest economy in maintaining the stability and insuring the progress of the race. In this respect the psycho-sexual correlations are particularly noteworthy. In human society it is not merely physical vigor which determines one's opportunity to love, and even this very necessary basis is found valuable and attractive in sexual selection largely because it affords a means of expression for finer and more passionate elements. The character of a woman's smile, for example, goes further than the shape of her mouth, and a man's walk is admired when the weight of his muscles is neglected, in both cases because these things are regarded as indications of an inner state.

Further than this, it is love which awakens the soul to the main fulfillment of her powers. Like sleeping beauty, she has lain dormant through these dim years of childhood, but now the deep physiological force of Love, like a true prince, breaks through all obstructions and awakens her with his magic kiss. It is a period of regeneration. New aspirations make their appearance. Ideals become more altruistic. Enthusiasm normally characterizes every effort. The sublime and the beautiful appear in their true importance. The whole world is tinged with an air of romance, which means in reality that everything good seems suddenly capable of being accomplished.

This immense reserve energy makes itself felt in every direction. Intellectually it is seen in the increasing range of ideas which the adolescent becomes capable of grouping together. His associational powers are greatly enlarged. He develops a sense for harmonious wholes. This is sometimes of a logical character, but more frequently the principle of integration is much deeper than mere logic, which is often used rather as an ornamental form, mainly useful in dazzling those who are unable to penetrate farther than the surface. This increased capacity for systematization arises, consciously or unconsciously, from the needs of life. Adolescence is a period of thoughts, desires, wider trains of images, partial experiences in a word, because it is necessary that the individual project himself in time to an extent that will cover at least his sexual life, in order that the children which may possibly spring from him be favored in the struggle for existence. When the partial experiences, desires, ideals, etc., of this period cannot be realized, their raison d'être has entirely disappeared.

It must be observed, however, that in community life desires and ideals may persist in individuals which will never be completed by these individuals themselves, but which, nevertheless, have the greatest effect in making larger and better the lives of other people, and especially other people's children. It may be that such individuals, many of them members of the third sex, are properly described as degenerates, but if so we must admit a larger view in which the degenerate is not merely the scapegoat of the community, eliminating human ills by being sacrificed in natural selection—thus bearing our sins unto the wilderness—but is at the same time, in many cases at least, a positive benefit to the race. To such a class belongs a considerable part of our teaching force. The dreams and ideals originally developed to favor the family have become in their case diverted in the interests of a larger group.

The tendency to form systematizations of thought in connection with sexual feeling is thoroughly exemplified in the process of falling in love. From an intellectual standpoint, indeed, this passion may be described as a systematization in which the image of the loved one is always present as the center around which is crystallized every sensation and every thought.

It is the same way with the more radiated adolescent enthusiasms, which are all of them kinds of falling in love. The preoccupations of religion, art and philosophy, springing psychologically from this very source, are responsible for the largest and most comprehensive systems of thought of which the human mind is capable. Their main function is to offer better forms of loving as well as of ordinary living.

Along lower ranges superior systematization manifests itself in the grasp of far-reaching industrial conditions, the ability to evolve schemes and projects well fitted to their purposes and the capacity for careful speculation so characteristic of the business man, whose activity, consciously or not, is the outgrowth of an instinct to provide for those dependent upon him.

Even in morbid cases systematization shows its intimate connection with sex, in women often concerning itself directly with children, while in men may be observed obsessions and delusions reflecting more masculine physiological tendencies.

Systematization is a function which indicates the use of associational fibers and depends on an increase in the brain paths used. Adolescence, however, asserts itself also in the manner in which these brain paths are used. This is a matter of disposition of energy and can best be understood by a slight comparison of the sexes, the differences of which at this age become more marked.

These differences, it is to be noticed, are not less striking from a mental than from a physical standpoint. Probably the most comprehensive view of this phase of the matter has been brought out by Havelock Ellis, who shows that, on the whole, the female sex in lower forms of life, as well as in human beings, tends more easily and for longer periods toward the accumulation of energy and material, while the male sex accumulates mainly for the purpose of immediate expenditure. Not only physically, but mentally, morally and spiritually, man is by his very constitution more violent than woman and exposed to all the dangers as well as reaping the advantages characteristic of such a temperament.

To say that man is stronger than woman refers only to this quality of violence. His grip on the dynamometer is two or three times greater than woman's, and he can handle better the pickax or the club. The implications of this physical peculiarity are not, however, so insignificant as it might appear. It follows therefrom, indeed, that not only all energetic labor, but also the direction of labor, can be more economically and effectively accomplished by him. He who directs work must know what that work is by actual experience. The foreman of the gang knows by remembered effect on his own muscles just what he may expect in both force and adjustment from every man under his charge. He is thus not likely to demand either too much or too little. The captain of a steamship, to take another example, could not safely be a woman, even although no actual physical work be required of such an officer. An understanding of the efforts required, especially in times of strain, would not be possible to her except from a meagerly intellectual standpoint. In all effort requiring physical force, as well as in the mental organization of such effort, man must always be the prime mover. Even professions, such as that of law, which require great expenditure of en-

XI.—Adolescence and Differences of Sex.

HERE is a winter sport very popular in Scotland and in the northern part of this country called "curling." In this game the purpose of each player is to slide a large, well polished rounded block of stone along the ice in such a way as to lie as close as possible to the "tee" when the game is done. If the initial aim is perfect and the force of delivery neither too great nor too small, it may yet happen, especially toward the end of the course, that some little flaw in the ice, some drift of snow or other slight obstruction, may cause the stone either to move so slowly or to deviate in such a way that it fails to reach the spot for which it was designed. It is at this moment rather than at the beginning that the greatest anxiety on the part of the players is observed. During the earliest years the momentum of growth is so great, at least with those well born, that nothing less than an exceedingly untoward environment is sufficient to produce a conspicuous deviation or arrest. But with the approach of adolescence or the culmination of the period of development the hereditary force is more easily modified or deranged, and even the slightest influences of environment are sufficient to produce all the difference between failure and success.

During the first two years of puberty physical changes indicated mentally by vague, undefined sensations and lower ranges of desire first assert themselves. They push their way into the personal perception which has gradually been expanding during childhood proper. At the same time there is also a distinct enlargement of the more altruistic moral functions. These various factors are at first not thoroughly co-ordinated, and the years between 17 and 25, or adolescence proper, is thus largely a period of fusion, during which a certain amount of lack of balance is not such a serious indication of defect as it would be either earlier or later in life.

That the plasticity of this period—its transforming power and its consequent survival value—is focused on the sexual functions and on the physical, mental and spiritual capacities directly connected therewith is an arrangement of the greatest economy in maintaining the stability and insuring the progress of the race. In this respect the psycho-sexual correlations are particularly noteworthy. In human society it is not merely physical vigor which determines one's opportunity to love, and even this very necessary basis is found valuable and attractive in sexual selection largely because it affords a means of expression for finer and more passionate elements. The character of a woman's smile, for example, goes further than the shape of her mouth, and a man's walk is admired when the weight of his muscles is neglected, in both cases because these things are regarded as indications of an inner state.

Further than this, it is love which awakens the soul to the main fulfillment of her powers. Like sleeping beauty, she has lain dormant through these dim years of childhood, but now the deep physiological force of Love, like a true prince, breaks through all obstructions and awakens her with his magic kiss. It is a period of regeneration. New aspirations make their appearance. Ideals become more altruistic. Enthusiasm normally characterizes every effort. The sublime and the beautiful appear in their true importance. The whole world is tinged with an air of romance, which means in reality that everything good seems suddenly capable of being accomplished.

This immense reserve energy makes itself felt in every direction. Intellectually it is seen in the increasing range of ideas which the adolescent becomes capable of grouping together. His associational powers are greatly enlarged. He develops a sense for harmonious wholes. This is sometimes of a logical character, but more frequently the principle of integration is much deeper than mere logic, which is often used rather as an ornamental form, mainly useful in dazzling those who are unable to penetrate farther than the surface. This increased capacity for systematization arises, consciously or unconsciously, from the needs of life. Adolescence is a period of thoughts, desires, wider trains of images, partial experiences in a word, because it is necessary that the individual project himself in time to an extent that will cover at least his sexual life, in order that the children which may possibly spring from him be favored in the struggle for existence. When the partial experiences, desires, ideals, etc., of this period cannot be realized, their raison d'être has entirely disappeared.

It must be observed, however, that in community life desires and ideals may persist in individuals which will never be completed by these individuals themselves, but which, nevertheless, have the greatest effect in making larger and better the lives of other people, and especially other people's children. It may be that such individuals, many of them members of the third sex, are properly described as degenerates, but if so we must admit a larger view in which the degenerate is not merely the scapegoat of the community, eliminating human ills by being sacrificed in natural selection—thus bearing our sins unto the wilderness—but is at the same time, in many cases at least, a positive benefit to the race. To such a class belongs a considerable part of our teaching force. The dreams and ideals originally developed to favor the family have become in their case diverted in the interests of a larger group.

The tendency to form systematizations of thought in connection with sexual feeling is thoroughly exemplified in the process of falling in love. From an intellectual standpoint, indeed, this passion may be described as a systematization in which the image of the loved one is always present as the center around which is crystallized every sensation and every thought.

It is the same way with the more radiated adolescent enthusiasms, which are all of them kinds of falling in love. The preoccupations of religion, art and philosophy, springing psychologically from this very source, are responsible for the largest and most comprehensive systems of thought of which the human mind is capable. Their main function is to offer better forms of loving as well as of ordinary living.

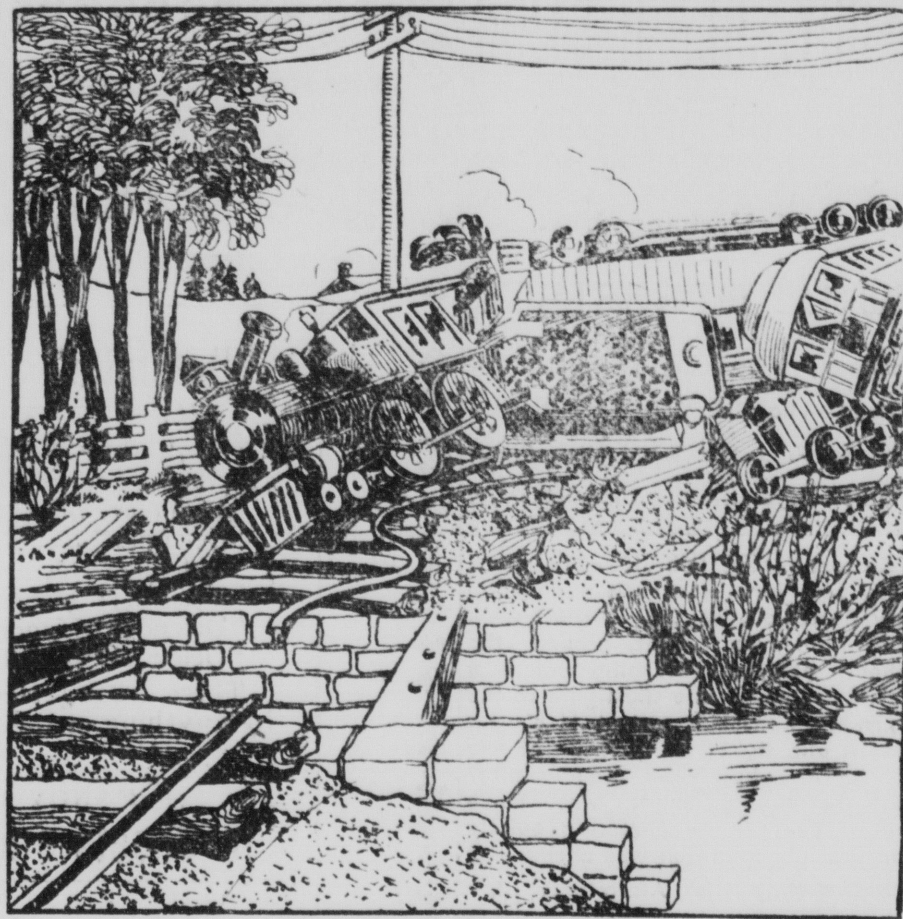

Along lower ranges superior systematization manifests itself in the grasp of far-reaching industrial conditions, the ability to evolve schemes and projects well fitted to their purposes and the capacity for careful speculation so characteristic of the business man, whose activity, consciously or not, is the outgrowth of an instinct to provide for those dependent upon him.

Even in morbid cases systematization shows its intimate connection with sex, in women often concerning itself directly with children, while in men may be observed obsessions and delusions reflecting more masculine physiological tendencies.

Systematization is a function which indicates the use of associational fibers and depends on an increase in the brain paths used. Adolescence, however, asserts itself also in the manner in which these brain paths are used. This is a matter of disposition of energy and can best be understood by a slight comparison of the sexes, the differences of which at this age become more marked.

These differences, it is to be noticed, are not less striking from a mental than from a physical standpoint. Probably the most comprehensive view of this phase of the matter has been brought out by Havelock Ellis, who shows that, on the whole, the female sex in lower forms of life, as well as in human beings, tends more easily and for longer periods toward the accumulation of energy and material, while the male sex accumulates mainly for the purpose of immediate expenditure. Not only physically, but mentally, morally and spiritually, man is by his very constitution more violent than woman and exposed to all the dangers as well as reaping the advantages characteristic of such a temperament.

To say that man is stronger than woman refers only to this quality of violence. His grip on the dynamometer is two or three times greater than woman's, and he can handle better the pickax or the club. The implications of this physical peculiarity are not, however, so insignificant as it might appear. It follows therefrom, indeed, that not only all energetic labor, but also the direction of labor, can be more economically and effectively accomplished by him. He who directs work must know what that work is by actual experience. The foreman of the gang knows by remembered effect on his own muscles just what he may expect in both force and adjustment from every man under his charge. He is thus not likely to demand either too much or too little. The captain of a steamship, to take another example, could not safely be a woman, even although no actual physical work be required of such an officer. An understanding of the efforts required, especially in times of strain, would not be possible to her except from a meagerly intellectual standpoint. In all effort requiring physical force, as well as in the mental organization of such effort, man must always be the prime mover. Even professions, such as that of law, which require great expenditure of energy in short periods of strain, as in the culminating speech to a jury, are likely to yield their best fruits to men. Success in such cases belongs to the individual who can deliver one blow that will penetrate rather than ten which just fail to do so.

This tendency to violence has its seamy side. Men die much more readily than women. One hundred and six boy babies are born for every hundred girl babies, and yet after 60 women are much in the majority. Just because they are more energetic men are also lazier than women, at least in the intervals of expenditure. Morally they are disposed more easily to crime, especially crimes of violence. There are more suicides among men, and there is more insanity. There are, however, also a larger number of inventors, even in such fields as music, where there are dozens of women who are taught music for every man who knows anything about it. It is the same way in religion. As Mrs. Marholme points out, "Man is what we women never are—a suprasensuous being." As for the kingdom of heaven, it is the violent which take it by force.

LIGHT REIN ON THE TRUSTS

Provided For In Some of Recommendations Made by Industrial Commission.

Washington, Feb. 10.—The second part of the report of the industrial commission was made public. It covers manufactures and industrial combinations and its recommendations quotes from its report to congress, 1900, in which it then recommended: That the promoters and organizers of corporations or industrial combinations which look to the public to purchase or deal in their stocks or securities should be required to furnish full details regarding the organization.

That any prospectus or announcement of any kind soliciting subscriptions, which fails to make full disclosures as aforesaid, or which is false, should be deemed fraudulent, and that all information concerning the corporation should be open to investors, and that the larger corporations—the so-called trusts—should be required to publish annually a properly audited report, showing in reasonable detail their assets and liabilities, with profit or loss, such report and audit under oath to be subject to government inspection.

The commission further recommends in part: District attorneys be authorized to sue for violations of federal anti-trust laws.

Combinations restraining trade or production should be declared unlawful.

Congress and state legislatures pass laws punishing rate discriminations. State legislatures pass laws to prevent over-capitalization.

Franchise tax be imposed on state corporations engaged in interstate commerce.

There be created in the trade bureau for registration of state corporations in interstate or foreign commerce, for supervision purposes, and to furnish congress proper information for possible future legislation.

WATCH DOGS

Ever on the Alert, Alive to Every Form of Oppression, Kept on Edge, Burdened Beyond Endurance, Nerves Give Out.

The machinery of a mill that grinds day and night has to shut down now and then for repairs. It is the same way with your nerves. Overwork, close application, our ways of living, bring about nerve waste that sets up symptoms of various kinds. It may be failing strength, weakness, languor, headache, sleeplessness, etc. Whatever it is nerve force is lacking, and the means of restoring rests with Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills. A great many people in East Liverpool vouch for this. Among them is Mr. James Pappin, of No. 302 Third street, East Liverpool, O., who says: "Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills I got at Larkins' drug store, corner Sixth and East Market streets, are a fine nerve tonic. As a result of hard work I was generally debilitated, nervous and could not sleep. I needed rebuilding and found in the nerve pills the medicine needed. They have the power to steady and strengthen the nerves, give restful sleep and general vigor to the system at large."

Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills are sold at 50 cents a box at dealers, or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine company, Buffalo, N. Y. See that portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M. D., are on every package.

PHILIPPINE TARIFF BILL.

Likely to Hold Foremost Place in Senate This Week.

Washington, Feb. 10.—The Philippine question will continue to hold foremost place on the senate calendar during the present week, but there is little probability that the Philippine bill will be disposed of before the close of the week. Democratic senators say they will require several weeks' more time in which to consider the measure. Senator Lodge, as chairman of the committee having the bill in charge, has not failed to impress upon them his intention of pressing it with the utmost dispatch consistent with due consideration of so important a measure. There are several Democratic senators prepared to speak on the bill.

Senator Quarles will report the permanent census bill today before the Philippine bill is taken up and will make an effort to secure immediate consideration. If he succeeds the census bill probably will alternate with the Philippine bill for a few days. Senator Quarles hopes that the census bill may be passed without much delay. The irrigation bill also occupies a place of vantage on the senate calendar, and with these other bills mentioned out of the way will be pressed to the front.

On Friday Senator Penrose will ask the senate to listen to eulogies on the late Representative Brosius, of Pennsylvania.

FORECAST OF THE HOUSE.

War Tax Repeal Bill to Be Held Over Until Next Week.

Washington, Feb. 10.—A varied program confronts the house for the coming week. Owing to the absence of a large number of Republicans, who will go to different points of the country to participate in the celebration of Lincoln's birthday on Wednesday, consideration on the bill to repeal the war taxes will be postponed until next week. Today is District of Columbia day. Tomorrow consideration of the oleomargarine bill will be resumed under the agreement made last week to devote another day to general debate, followed by a day of debate under the five-minute rule. The passage of the bill by a good majority is considered assured, although the substitute proposition probably will command a larger vote than it did in the last congress. The committee on war claims will have a day following the disposition of the oleomargarine bill, and the latter part of the week will probably be devoted to consideration of the Indian, postoffice or army appropriation bill, all of which are expected to be reported earlier in the week.

Houses and Superstitions.

"Real estate men are gradually forgetting most of the old time superstitions which used to cause us much trouble," said a dealer the other day. "The number of houses which cannot be rented or sold on account of being haunted or because some terrible crime was committed on the premises is rapidly decreasing. We run across only a few people who balk at living in house No. 13. Even elderly men who have made big fortunes are beginning to believe that there is nothing in the old saying that the aged rich man builds a mansion to die in."—New York Tribune.

12 PERSONS PERISHED

Unable to Escape From Burning Lodging House, at St. Louis.

MANY OTHERS WERE INJURED.

Some of Those Who Escaped Had to Jump From Windows—Had to Leave In Incomplete Attire and Were Frostbitten.

St. Louis, Feb. 10.—An early morning fire Sunday, which destroyed the Empire hotel, a large three-story lodging house at 2700 and 2702 Olive street, occupied by men exclusively, caused the death of 11 persons, 10 men and one woman, and dangerously injured eight others. Ten or more who had narrow escapes from death in the fire were more or less injured by being frostbitten. It is estimated that there were between 35 and 40 persons in the building Sunday night, and it is believed that all have been accounted for. The financial loss is nominal. It is thought that $20,000 will cover the damage to building and contents, which were totally destroyed.

The Dead.

Morris Yall, senior member of the firm of Yall, Clark & Cowen, manufacturers of fine cut glass, formerly of Chicago; burned to a crisp.

Tobe Davis, man about town, suffocated.

John C. Leuders, father of Deputy City Marshal Leo Leuders; skull fractured in jumping from third-story window.

George Thompson, switchman, Terminal yards; burned to death.

Sarah Harris, colored chambermaid, burned.

B. F. Woodley, employe Hamilton Brown Shoe company, burned.

J. A. McMullen, carpenter, burned.

S. T. Corey, telegraph operator, Merchants Terminal association.

Vance Martin, civil engineer, Indianapolis, burned.

A. J. Allen, Sedalia, Mo., stone mason, burned.

The Injured.

Harry Cline, medical student, of Marion, Ill., hands badly burned and ankle sprained.

Walter Johnson, employe Hamilton Brown Shoe company, hands burned, both legs broken and injured internally.

Henry Robinson, negro, night porter, badly burned.

George Lane, medical student, of Rich Hill, Mo., ankle sprained in jumping from second-story window.

Sturgeon, dental student, back sprained in jumping from second-story window.

Harry Thompson, medical student, Nashville, Ill., ankle sprained in jumping from second-story window.

J. J. Lally, manager Empire hotel; back badly sprained while escaping from building.

Con Ryan, burned about face.

About 10 or 12 others less seriously injured, being bruised, burned or suffering from exposure.

Considerable Delay in Giving Alarm.

The fire started about 3:30 a. m., when but few persons were abroad, and gained considerable headway before it was discovered and the alarm given. There was considerable delay in turning in an alarm, and when the engines finally reached the scene the whole front of the building was in flames and the interior was a seething furnace. By that time all who escaped death had got out of the building by jumping from windows or climbing down ropes made of bedclothes. A few escaped from the ground floor through the front door. Some of the escapes were very narrow.

Almost All Suffered Some Injury.

Almost everybody who got out suffered some injury or was frostbitten. The guests barely had time to get out when aroused, the flames had spread so rapidly. Some saved their clothing, which they carried in their hands, but others were not so fortunate, losing everything. After some delay nearly houses were opened to the unfortunates and they were given shelter from the biting cold weather. It was one of the coldest nights of the winter, the ground being covered with ice and snow, and everyone suffered from exposure. The sufferers were put in the care of physicians.

After a short fight the firemen got the flames under control.

LATE AND IMPORTANT PHASES OF CHILD STUDY.

BY COLIN A. SCOTT, PH. D.,
in the Wisconsin Normal School.

XI.—Adolescence and Differences of Sex.

THERE is a winter sport very popular in Scotland and in the northern part of this country called "curling." In this game the purpose of each player is to slide a large, well polished rounded block of stone along the ice in such a way as to lie as close as possible to the "tee" when the game is done. If the initial aim is perfect and the force of delivery neither too great nor too small, it may yet happen, especially toward the end of the course, that some little flaw in the ice, some drift of snow or other slight obstruction, may cause the stone either to move so slowly or to deviate in such a way that it fails to reach the spot for which it was designed. It is at this moment rather than at the beginning that the greatest anxiety on the part of the players is observed. Here it is that they freely use their brooms or even get down upon their knees to rub the ice.

It is much the same with the development of a human being. Nature starts us off with an immense hereditary push and for the most part in the right direction. During the earliest years the momentum of growth is so great, at least with those well born, that nothing less than an exceedingly untoward environment is sufficient to produce a conspicuous deviation or arrest. But with the approach of adolescence or the culmination of the period of development the hereditary force is more easily modified or deranged, and even the slightest influences of environment are sufficient to produce all the difference between failure and success.

During the first two years of puberty physical changes indicated mentally by vague, undefined sensations and lower ranges of desire first assert themselves. A great many people in East Liverpool vouch for this. Among them is Mr. James Peppin, of No. 302 Third street, East Liverpool, O., who says: "Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills I got at Larkins' drug store, corner Sixth and East Market streets, are a fine nerve tonic. As a result of hard work I was generally debilitated, nervous and could not sleep. I needed rebuilding and found in the nerve pills the medicine needed. They have the power to steady and strengthen the nerves, give restful sleep and general vigor to the system at large."

PHILIPPINE TARIFF BILL.

Likely to Hold Foremost Place in Senate This Week.

Washington, Feb. 10.—The Philippine question will continue to hold foremost place on the senate calendar during the present week, but there is little probability that the Philippine bill will be disposed of before the close of the week. Democratic senators say they will require several weeks' more time in which to consider the measure. Senator Lodge, as chairman of the committee having the bill in charge, has not failed to impress upon them his intention of pressing it with the utmost dispatch consistent with due consideration of so important a measure. There are several Democratic senators prepared to speak on the bill.

Senator Quarles will report the permanent census bill today before the Philippine bill is taken up and will make an effort to secure immediate consideration. If he succeeds the census bill probably will alternate with the Philippine bill for a few days. Senator Quarles hopes that the census bill may be passed without much delay. The irrigation bill also occupies a place of vantage on the senate calendar, and with the other bills mentioned out of the way will be pressed to the front.

On Friday Senator Penrose will ask the senate to listen to eulogies on the late Representative Brosius, of Pennsylvania.

FORECAST OF THE HOUSE.

War Tax Repeal Bill to Be Held Over Until Next Week.

Washington, Feb. 10.—A varied program confronts the house for the coming week. Owing to the absence of a large number of Republicans, who will go to different points of the country to participate in the celebration of Lincoln's birthday on Wednesday, consideration on the bill to repeal the war taxes will be postponed until next week. Today is District of Columbia day. Tomorrow consideration of the oleomargarine bill will be resumed under the agreement made last week to devote another day to general debate, followed by a day of debate under the five-minute rule. The passage of the bill by a good majority is considered assured, although the substitute proposition probably will command a larger vote than it did in the last congress. The committee on war claims will have a day following the disposition of the oleomargarine bill, and the latter part of the week will probably be devoted to consideration of the Indian, postoffice or army appropriation bill, all of which are expected to be reported earlier in the week.

Houses and Superstitions.

"Real estate men are gradually forgetting most of the old time superstitions which used to cause us much trouble," said a dealer the other day. "The number of houses which cannot be rented or sold on account of being haunted or because some terrible crime was committed on the premises is rapidly decreasing. We run across only a few people who balk at living in house No. 13. Even elderly men who have made big fortunes are beginning to believe that there is nothing in the old saying that the aged rich man builds a mansion to die in."—New York Tribune.

12 PERSONS PERISHED

Unable to Escape From Burning Lodging House, at St. Louis.

MANY OTHERS WERE INJURED.

Some of Those Who Escaped Had to Jump From Windows—Had to Leave In Incomplete Attire and Were Frostbitten.

St. Louis, Feb. 10.—An early morning fire Sunday, which destroyed the Empire hotel, a large three-story lodging house at 2700 and 2702 Olive street, occupied by men exclusively, caused the death of 11 persons, 10 men and one woman, and dangerously injured eight others. Ten or more who had narrow escapes from death in the fire were more or less injured by being frostbitten. It is estimated that there were between 35 and 40 persons in the building Sunday night, and it is believed that all have been accounted for. The financial loss is nominal. It is thought that $20,000 will cover the damage to building and contents, which were totally destroyed.

Con Ryan, burned about face.

About 10 or 12 others less seriously injured, being bruised, burned or suffering from exposure.

Considerable Delay In Giving Alarm.

The fire started about 3:30 a. m., when but few persons were abroad, and gained considerable headway before it was discovered and the alarm given. There was considerable delay in turning in an alarm, and when the engines finally reached the scene the whole front of the building was in flames and the interior was a seething furnace. By that time all who escaped death had got out of the building by jumping from windows or climbing down ropes made of bedclothes. A few escaped from the ground floor through the front door. Some of the escapes were very narrow.

Almost All Suffered Some Injury.

Almost everybody who got out suffered some injury or was frostbitten. The guests barely had time to get out when aroused, the flames had spread so rapidly. Some saved their clothing, which they carried in their hands, but others were not so fortunate, losing everything. After some delay nearly houses were opened to the unfortunates and they were given shelter from the biting cold weather. It was one of the coldest nights of the winter, the ground being covered with ice and snow, and everyone suffered from exposure. The sufferers were put in the care of physicians. After a short fight the firemen got the flames under control.

HOME STUDY COURSE

Self Education Under the Supervision of Prominent Educators.

E. Benjamin Andrews, LL. D., Editor.

BY COLIN A. SCOTT, PH. D.,

Professor of Psychology and Child Study in the Wisconsin Normal School.

Initial aim is perfect and the force of delivery neither too great nor too small, it may yet happen, especially toward the end of the course, that some little flaw in the ice, some drift of snow or other slight obstruction, may cause the stone either to move so slowly or to deviate in such a way that it fails to reach the spot for which it was designed. It is at this moment rather than at the beginning that the greatest anxiety on the part of the players is observed. Here it is that they freely use their brooms or even get down upon their knees to rub the ice.

It is much the same with the development of a human being. Nature starts us off with an immense hereditary push and for the most part in the right direction. During the earliest years the momentum of growth is so great, at least with those well born, that nothing less than an exceedingly untoward environment is sufficient to produce a conspicuous deviation or arrest. But with the approach of adolescence or the culmination of the period of development the hereditary force is more easily modified or deranged, and even the slightest influences of environment are sufficient to produce all the difference between failure and success.

During the first two years of puberty physical changes indicated mentally by vague, undefined sensations and lower ranges of desire first assert themselves. They push their way into the personal perception which has gradually been expanding during childhood proper. At the same time there is also a distinct enlargement of the more altruistic moral functions. These various factors are at first not thoroughly co-ordinated, and the years between 17 and 25, or adolescence proper, is thus largely a period of fusion, during which a certain amount of lack of balance is not such a serious indication of defect as it would be either earlier or later in life.

That the plasticity of this period—its transforming power and its consequent survival value—is focused on the sexual functions and on the physical, mental and spiritual capacities directly connected therewith is an arrangement of the greatest economy in maintaining the stability and insuring the progress of the race. In this respect the psycho-sexual correlations are particularly noteworthy. In human society it is not merely physical vigor which determines one's opportunity to love, and even this very necessary basis is found valuable and attractive in sexual selection largely because it affords a means of expression for finer and more passionate elements. The character of a woman's smile, for example, goes further than the shape of her mouth, and a man's walk is admired when the weight of his muscles is neglected, in both cases because these things are regarded as indications of an inner state.

Further than this, it is love which awakens the soul to the main fulfillment of her powers. Like sleeping beauty, she has lain dormant through these dim years of childhood, but now the deep physiological force of Love, like a true prince, breaks through all obstructions and awakens her with his magic kiss. It is a period of regeneration. New aspirations make their appearance. Ideals become more altruistic. Enthusiasm normally characterizes every effort. The sublime and the beautiful appear in their true importance. The whole world is tinged with an air of romance, which means in reality that everything good seems suddenly capable of being accomplished.

This immense reserve energy makes itself felt in every direction. Intellectually it is seen in the increasing range of ideas which the adolescent becomes capable of grouping together. His associational powers are greatly enlarged. He develops a sense for harmonious wholes. This is sometimes of a logical character, but more frequently the principle of integration is much deeper than mere logic, which is often used rather as an ornamental form, mainly useful in dazzling those who are unable to penetrate farther than the surface. This increased capacity for systematization arises, consciously or unconsciously, from the needs of life. Adolescence is a period of thoughts, desires, wider trains of images, partial experiences in a word, because it is necessary that the individual project himself in time to an extent that will cover at least his sexual life, in order that the children which may possibly spring from him be favored in the struggle for existence. When the partial experiences, desires, ideals, etc., of this period cannot be realized, their raison d'être has entirely disappeared.

It must be observed, however, that in community life desires and ideals may persist in individuals which will never be completed by these individuals themselves, but which, nevertheless, have the greatest effect in making larger and better the lives of other people, and especially other people's children. It may be that such individuals, many of them members of the third sex, are properly described as degenerates, but if so we must admit a larger view in which the degenerate is not merely the scapegoat of the community, eliminating human ills by being sacrificed in natural selection—thus bearing our sins unto the wilderness—but is at the same time, in many cases at least, a positive benefit to the race. To such a class belongs a considerable part of our teaching force. The dreams and ideals originally developed to favor the family have become in their case diverted in the interests of a larger group.

The tendency to form systematizations of thought in connection with sexual feeling is thoroughly exemplified in the process of falling in love. From an intellectual standpoint, indeed, this passion may be described as a systematization in which the image of the loved one is always present as the center around which is crystallized every sensation and every thought.

It is the same way with the more radiated adolescent enthusiasms, which are all of them kinds of falling in love. The preoccupations of religion, art and philosophy, springing psychologically from this very source, are responsible for the largest and most comprehensive systems of thought of which the human mind is capable. Their main function is to offer better forms of loving as well as of ordinary living.

Along lower ranges superior systematization manifests itself in the grasp of far-reaching industrial conditions, the ability to evolve schemes and projects well fitted to their purposes and the capacity for careful speculation so characteristic of the business man, whose activity, consciously or not, is the outgrowth of an instinct to provide for those dependent upon him.

Even in morbid cases systematization shows its intimate connection with sex, in women often concerning itself directly with children, while in men may be observed obsessions and delusions reflecting more masculine physiological tendencies.

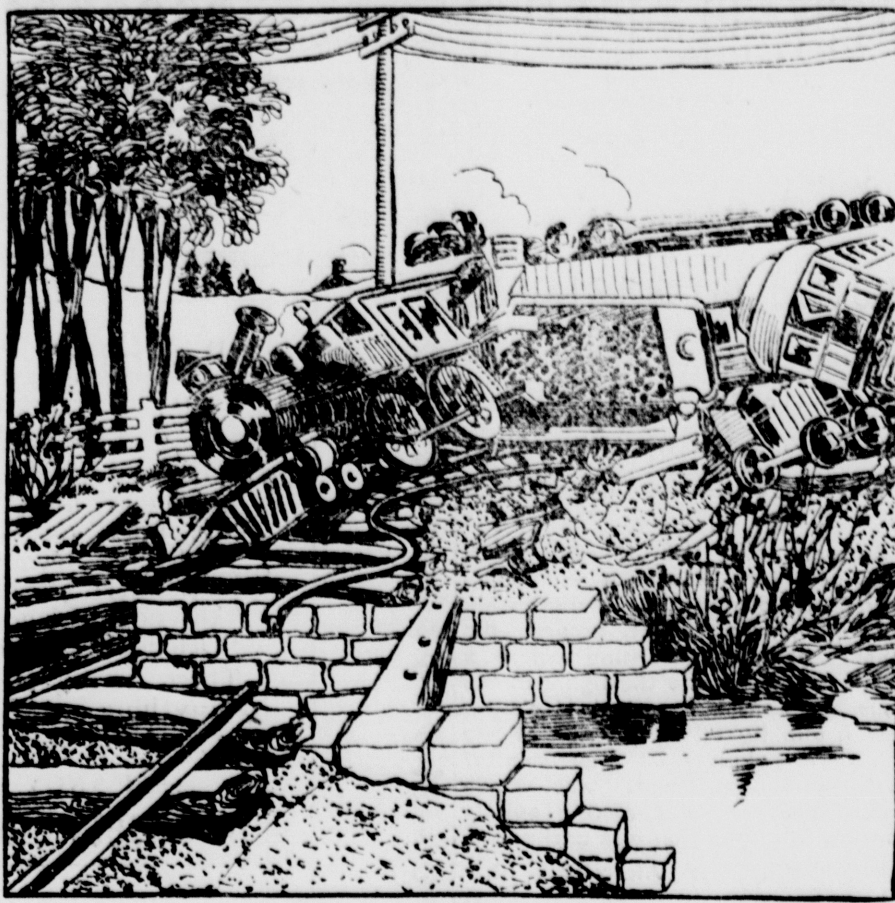

Systematization is a function which indicates the use of associational fibers and depends on an increase in the brain paths used. Adolescence, however, asserts itself also in the manner in which these brain paths are used. This is a matter of disposition of energy and can best be understood by a slight comparison of the sexes, the differences of which at this age become more marked.

These differences, it is to be noticed, are not less striking from a mental than from a physical standpoint. Probably the most comprehensive view of this phase of the matter has been brought out by Havelock Ellis, who shows that, on the whole, the female sex in lower forms of life, as well as in human beings, tends more easily and for longer periods toward the accumulation of energy and material, while the male sex accumulates mainly for the purpose of immediate expenditure. Not only physically, but mentally, morally and spiritually, man is by his very constitution more violent than woman and exposed to all the dangers as well as reaping the advantages characteristic of such a temperament.

To say that man is stronger than woman refers only to this quality of violence. His grip on the dynamometer is two or three times greater than woman's, and he can handle better the pickax or the club. The implications of this physical peculiarity are not, however, so insignificant as it might appear. It follows therefrom, indeed, that not only all energetic labor, but also the direction of labor, can be more economically and effectively accomplished by him. He who directs work must know what that work is by actual experience. The foreman of the gang knows by remembered effect on his own muscles just what he may expect in both force and adjustment from every man under his charge. He is thus not likely to demand either too much or too little. The captain of a steamship, to take another example, could not safely be a woman, even although no actual physical work be required of such an officer. An understanding of the efforts required, especially in times of strain, would not be possible to her except from a meager intellectual standpoint. In all effort requiring physical force, as well as in the mental organization of such effort, man must always be the prime mover. Even professions, such as that of law, which require great expenditure of en-

XI.—Adolescence and Differences of Sex.

HERE is a winter sport very popular in Scotland and in the northern part of this country called "curling." In this game the purpose of each player is to slide a large, well polished rounded block of stone along the ice in such a way as to lie as close as possible to the "tee" when the game is done. ergy in short periods of strain, as in the culminating speech to a jury, are likely to yield their best fruits to men. Success in such cases belongs to the individual who can deliver one blow that will penetrate rather than ten which just fail to do so.

This tendency to violence has its seamy side. Men die much more readily than women. One hundred and six boy babies are born for every hundred girl babies, and yet after 60 women are much in the majority. Just because they are more energetic men are also lazier than women, at least in the intervals of expenditure. Morally they are disposed more easily to crime, especially crimes of violence. There are more suicides among men, and there is more insanity. There are, however, also a larger number of inventors, even in such fields as music, where there are dozens of women who are taught music for every man who knows anything about it. It is the same way in religion. As Mrs. Marholme points out, "Man is what we women never are—a suprasensuous being." As for the kingdom of heaven, it is the violent which take it by force.

TIGHT REIN ON THE TRUSTS

Provided For In Some of Recommendations Made by Industrial Commission.

Washington, Feb. 10.—The second part of the report of the industrial commission was made public. It covers manufactures and industrial combinations and its recommendations quotes from its report to congress, 1900, in which it then recommended:

That the promoters and organizers of corporations or industrial combinations which look to the public to purchase or deal in their stocks or securities should be required to furnish full details regarding the organization.

That any prospectus or announcement of any kind soliciting subscriptions, which fails to make full disclosures as aforesaid, or which is false, should be deemed fraudulent, and that all information concerning the corporation should be open to investors, and that the larger corporations—the so-called trusts—should be required to publish annually a properly audited report, showing in reasonable detail their assets and liabilities, with profit or loss, such report and audit under oath to be subject to government inspection.

The commission further recommends in part:

District attorneys be authorized to sue for violations of federal anti-trust laws.

Combinations restraining trade or production should be declared unlawful.

Congress and state legislatures pass laws punishing rate discriminations. State legislatures pass laws to prevent overcapitalization.

Franchise tax be imposed on state corporations engaged in interstate commerce.

There be created in the trade bureau for registration of state corporations in interstate or foreign commerce, for supervision purposes, and to furnish congress proper information for possible future legislation.

WATCH DOGS

Ever on the Alert, Alive to Every Form of Oppression, Kept on Edge, Burdened Beyond Endurance, Nerves Give Out.

The machinery of a mill that grinds day and night has to shut down now and then for repairs. It is the same way with your nerves. Overwork, close application, our ways of living, bring about nerve waste that sets up symptoms of various kinds. It may be failing strength, weakness, languor, headache, sleeplessness, etc. Whatever it is nerve force is lacking, and the means of restoring rests with Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills. A great many people in East Liverpool vouch for this. Among them is Mr. James Peppin, of No. 302 Third street, East Liverpool, O., who says: "Dr. A. W. ## TEDDY, JR., RESTING

Quietly, Last Night, and His Condition Was Reported Unchanged.

WAS GLAD TO SEE HIS FATHER,

Yesterday Afternoon, When He Arrived—The President Was Delighted to Find His Head Was Clear. Other Boys Ill—One Died Recently.

Groton, Mass., Feb. 10.—The president, with Mrs. Roosevelt and Secretary Cortelyou, went for a short walk after dinner last night, around the school campus, returning before 9 o'clock. One by one the lights in the infirmary went out, and at 11 o'clock only a dim light was showing at one end of the building. Shortly after that the announcement was made that Teddy, Jr., was resting quietly and that his condition was unchanged.

Didn't Find Him Alarmingly Ill.

Groton, Mass., Feb. 10.—President Roosevelt, upon his arrival at Groton, Sunday afternoon, did not find his son, Theodore, Jr., alarmingly ill with pneumonia, but the boy's condition was not sufficiently reassuring to warrant the president's immediate return to the national capital. Young Roosevelt, with two school mates, Horace B. Potter, of New York, and William Gammell, of Providence, both having pneumonia, lie in large, airy rooms on the second floor of the college infirmary.

Mrs. Roosevelt has been with her son for two days.

He greeted his father cheerily Sunday afternoon.

Last night it was stated that his condition was unchanged and that he was holding his own well. The school has been dismissed and the 150 boys have scattered to their homes upon an enforced vacation.

Will Await Substantial Improvement.

All the sick boys are having the best medical attention and nursing. The president's stay here is indefinite, although it is not believed it will be prolonged much after Wednesday, unless the boy's condition takes a turn for the worse. Pneumonia being always alarming, the president has thought it well to stay here until he has some assurance of his son's recovery.

The president arrived here at 2:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon, after an uneventful trip of 14 hours, from Washington. He came on the private car Rambler, arriving in Jersey City soon after 7 a. m. The car was immediately transferred by boat across Harlem river, and left Mott Haven as a special train at 8:20 a. m. A stop was made at New Haven, where a dispatch was handed to the president, stating that the boy's condition was encouraging. No other stops were made until Providence was reached, where there was a slight delay on account of an accident to the engine. The train pulled into South station in Boston at 12:45 p. m., but was immediately halted out and around the city through Cambridge to the Grand Junction station of the Boston and Maine railroad. The run from Boston to Ayer Junction was made in a little over 40 minutes, and there the car was transferred to the Worcester, Nashua and Rochester division of this road, the train arriving at 2:30.

President Greeted With Cheers.

There were no crowds at any of the stations, except at Ayer, where there was a gathering of about 500. The president came out of his seclusion and bowed to the crowd from the back platform, his appearance being greeted with cheers.

Rev. S. Endicott Peabody, the principal of the Groton school, was at the Groton station to meet the president, and with him was Rev. Sherrard Billings, his assistant.

The president, with Secretary Cortelyou, immediately jumped into a two-seated Democrat wagon and Mr. Billings drove the party rapidly up the hill to the school building.

Mrs. Roosevelt was at the window as the president drove past into the yard and greeted him as he mounted the stairs. The two then went to the sick boy's room and the president was delighted to find that his son's head was very clear and that he was overjoyed to see his father. The president did not remain long, however, although he spent several hours in the office on the ground floor. The president and Mrs. Roosevelt, together with Secretary Cortelyou, are being entertained at the house of William Amory Gardner, brother-in-law of Mrs. John L. Gardner, of Boston, a very wealthy man, but nevertheless one of the instructors in the school.

Other Boys Ill; One Died.

It appears that quite a number of the boys have contracted colds during the past three or four weeks, probably from strenuous exercise and lack of caution afterwards. It is said that it has been the habit of some of them to play hand ball in the closed court and then, while perspiring freely, to dash across the campus to the gymnasium, clad only in the lightest of clothes. Only four, however, contracted pneumonia, although one case resulted fatally, that of Edward Hodges, who died here about 10 days ago. The other boys contracted severe colds, but were able to return to their homes when school was dismissed last week.

INSPIRING SERVICES

Held at the Presbyterian Church Encourage Many to Better Lives.

The services of yesterday at the First Presbyterian church will be remembered long by those present, because they were of great spiritual power. The backslider prayed "Restore unto me the joy of Thy salvation." The faithful Christian was inspired to nobler life and it was a day of decision to many.

Rev. Mr. Biederwolf spoke on "No Room for Christ" at the 11 o'clock service. He showed how Christ was refused in politics, business, society and in the home. Prof. Maxwell sang impressively "Christ Is All in All." The invitation was accepted by many to take Christ in their lives and homes.

At the 2:30 p. m. meeting about 500 men were present to hear "The Athletics of Life." The plain, practical sermon inspired a goodly number to determine to live a life brave and true to God and they went away rejoicing.

The last service of the day began at 7:30 with a song service, and Prof. Maxwell has the art of getting all to sing. Rev. Mr. Biederwolf preached more especially to the young. He submitted five reasons why we should begin to live a Christian life early. Because it is the most manly and womanly thing to do, the highest type of life; it is the only happy life; it is the life of gratitude; it is the safe life; it is the life of helpful influence.

In the after meeting a great many signified a desire to live for Christ. This evening Prof. Maxwell will sing "Shall I Meet My Sainted Mother?"

IMPRESSIVE SERVICES

And Large Congregations at the Second Presbyterian Church Yesterday.

Large congregations attended both services at the Second Presbyterian church yesterday, and it was a day of great blessing to the growing church. At the morning service Harry Laughlin sang a solo, entitled "The Celestial City," and he and his brother Arthur, who is directing the music during the meeting in the church, sang in a pleasing way a duet entitled "Angel Voices."

The services, as they always are at this church, were impressive and helpful. The pastor, Rev. N. M. Crowe, preached in the morning from I Chron. 29:5, "Who, then, is willing to consecrate his service this day unto the Lord?" And in the evening from Hebrew 11:6, "But without faith it is impossible to please; for he that cometh to God must believe that He is and that He is a rewarder of them that diligently seek Him."

Arthur Laughlin sang two solos at the evening service that were highly appreciated by the large audience present.

Rev. S. T. Boston will preach tonight at 7:45 and the Laughlin brothers will sing.

IMPRESSIVE SERVICES

And Large Congregations at the Second Presbyterian Church Yesterday.

Large congregations attended both services at the Second Presbyterian church yesterday, and it was a day of great blessing to the growing church. At the morning service Harry Laughlin sang a solo, entitled "The Celestial City," and he and his brother Arthur, who is directing the music during the meeting in the church, sang in a pleasing way a duet entitled "Angel Voices."

The services, as they always are at this church, were impressive and helpful. The pastor, Rev. N. M. Crowe, preached in the morning from I Chron. 29:5, "Who, then, is willing to consecrate his service this day unto the Lord?" And in the evening from Hebrew 11:6, "But without faith it is impossible to please; for he that cometh to God must believe that He is and that He is a rewarder of them that diligently seek Him."

Arthur Laughlin sang two solos at the evening service that were highly appreciated by the large audience present.

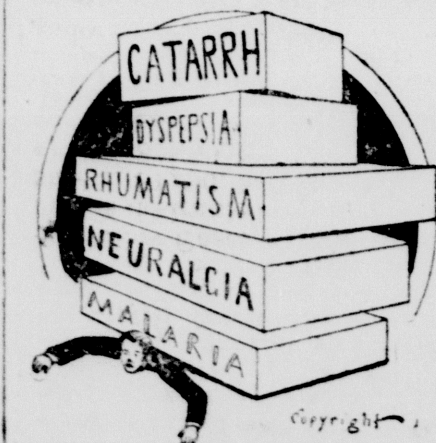

Rev. S. T. Boston will preach tonight at 7:45 and the Laughlin brothers will sing.

TEDDY, JR., RESTING

WAS GLAD TO SEE HIS FATHER,

Yesterday Afternoon, When He Arrived—The President Was Delighted to Find His Head Was Clear. Other Boys Ill—One Died Recently.

Groton, Mass., Feb. 10.—The president, with Mrs. Roosevelt and Secretary Cortelyou, went for a short walk after dinner last night, around the school campus, returning before 9 o'clock. One by one the lights in the infirmary went out, and at 11 o'clock only a dim light was showing at one end of the building. Shortly after that the announcement was made that Teddy, Jr., was resting quietly and that his condition was unchanged.

Didn't Find Him Alarming Ill.

Groton, Mass., Feb. 10.—President Roosevelt, upon his arrival at Groton, Sunday afternoon, did not find his son, Theodore, Jr., alarmingly ill with pneumonia, but the boy's condition was not sufficiently reassuring to warrant the president's immediate return to the national capital. Young Roosevelt, with two school mates, Horace B. Potter, of New York, and William Gammell, of Providence, both having pneumonia, lie in large, airy rooms on the second floor of the college infirmary.

Mrs. Roosevelt has been with her son for two days.

He greeted his father cheerily Sunday afternoon.

Last night it was stated that his condition was unchanged and that he was holding his own well. The school has been dismissed and the 150 boys have scattered to their homes upon an enforced vacation.

Will Await Substantial Improvement.

All the sick boys are having the best medical attention and nursing. The president's stay here is indefinite, although it is not believed it will be prolonged much after Wednesday, unless the boy's condition takes a turn for the worse. Pneumonia being always alarming, the president has thought it well to stay here until he has some assurance of his son's recovery.

The president arrived here at 2:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon, after an uneventful trip of 14 hours, from Washington. He came on the private car Rambler, arriving in Jersey City soon after 7 a. m. The car was immediately transferred by boat across Harlem river, and left Mott Haven as a special train at 8:20 a. m. A stop was made at New Haven, where a dispatch was handed to the president, stating that the boy's condition was encouraging. No other stops were made until Providence was reached, where there was a slight delay on account of an accident to the engine. The train pulled into South station in Boston at 12:45 p. m., but was immediately hauled out and around the city through Cambridge to the Grand Junction station of the Boston and Maine railroad. The run from Boston to Ayer Junction was made in a little over 40 minutes, and there the car was transferred to the Worcester, Nashua and Rochester division of this road, the train arriving at 2:30.

President Greeted With Cheers.

There were no crowds at any of the stations, except at Ayer, where there was a gathering of about 500. The president came out of his seclusion and bowed to the crowd from the back platform, his appearance being greeted with cheers.

Rev. S. Endicott Peabody, the principal of the Groton school, was at the Groton station to meet the president, and with him was Rev. Sherrard Billings, his assistant.

The president, with Secretary Cortelyou, immediately jumped into a two-seated Democrat wagon and Mr. Billings drove the party rapidly up the hill to the school building.

Mrs. Roosevelt was at the window as the president drove past into the yard and greeted him as he mounted the stairs. The two then went to the sick boy's room and the president was delighted to find that his son's head was very clear and that he was overjoyed to see his father. The president did not remain long, however, although he spent several hours in the office on the ground floor. The president and Mrs. Roosevelt, together with Secretary Cortelyou, are being entertained at the house of William Amory Gardner, brother-in-law of Mrs. John L. Gardner, of Boston, a very wealthy man, but nevertheless one of the instructors in the school.

Other Boys Ill; One Died.

It appears that quite a number of the boys have contracted colds during the past three or four weeks, probably from strenuous exercise and lack of caution afterwards. It is said that it has been the habit of some of them to play hand ball in the closed court and then, while perspiring freely, to dash across the campus to the gymnasium, clad only in the lightest of clothes. Only four, however, contracted pneumonia, although one case resulted fatally, that of Edward Hodges, who died here about 10 days ago. The other boys contracted severe colds, but were able to return to their homes when school was dismissed last week.

STRUGGLED FOR HIS LIFE IN THE OHIO'S COLD WATERS

the Water.

RESCUED WITH DIFFICULTY

So Weakened And Chilled That He
Could Hardly Move—A Thrilling
Experience While Trying to Cross
From Congo to Wellsville.

With only his head emerging, Sheriff C. F. Allison, of New Cumberland, struggled for his life in 20 feet of water in the Ohio river Saturday afternoon, and when finally rescued was so exhausted and chilled that he was revived with difficulty. Only for a heavy overcoat which he was wearing at the time he fell into the stream his death would doubtless have been a certainty.

Sheriff Allison started to cross the river from Congo to Wellsville. Ice had formed at the bank and extended out for a distance of about 30 feet and the sheriff walked out to meet the skiff owned by Robert Johnson, which was anchored at the edge. When he was within about 10 feet of the skiff the ice underneath him gave way and he took a downward plunge before he had time to step back.

As he dropped through the opening the sheriff's coat, which was of heavy cloth and worn loosely, spread out over the solid ice and thus kept his head above water. Though held firmly in this perilous position the sheriff struggled as best he could to keep from going farther down.

Ferryman Johnson hurried to the rescue as quickly as possible, and with the aid of oars succeeded, after heroic efforts, in getting Mr. Allison to shore. He was so weakened and chilled he could scarcely move, but with assistance finally reached the home of Watson Johnson, at Congo, where he was given medical aid and revived. He felt so improved yesterday he came to Chester, remaining there until this morning, when he returned to New Cumberland.

Mr. Allison says he is positive he would have met death had it not been that his overcoat caught on the ice. The timely arrival of the ferryman also saved him from death by freezing.

STOUT'S BOND IS GONE, TOO

And It Is Surmised That He Has Possession of It—How Peculation Be-
Man.

Columbus, February 10.—(Special).—C. P. Rothwell, acting as attorney for the village of East Palestine, called on Governor Nash one day last week to arrange to secure extradition papers for C. N. Stout, who was arrested at Hamilton, Ontario, and is wanted to answer a charge of embezzlement at East Palestine. Secretary of State Hay, at Washington, was notified that an application would be placed before him for Stout's extradition and he wired the chief of police at Hamilton to hold the man until the necessary papers reached him.

As the formal application for his extradition has not been filed with the governor yet it is surmised that the man has agreed to return without a requisition. While in Columbus Attorney Rothwell conversed over the telephone with the chief of police of Hamilton and gave him a full description of Stout, who, he understands, has been in the employ of an electric light concern in that city.

Stout is charged with absconding with $800 of the funds of East Palestine. For four years he served as superintendent and collector of the municipal light plant of that town, and his alleged peculations began early last year. He disappeared on November 5. It was a part of his official work to make collections from patrons of the light plant.

Stout had filed a bond of $1,500 for the faithful performance of his duties, but this valuable document disappeared also. There is little doubt that he obtained possession of it. The bond was signed by Henry Roderus, of East Palestine, and the father-in-law of the missing man, who resides at Greenford, Mahoning county, but neither can be held responsible unless the bond is recovered. Stout has a wife and two children, who are now at Greenford. His whereabouts were discovered by Attorney C. P. Rothwell.

A REAR-END COLLISION WHICH RESULTED FATALLY

Pittsburg, February 10.—(Special).—Early this morning one man was killed and one was badly injured in the wreck of a stock train near Haysville, 10 miles from this city on the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne & Chicago railroad. The victims were drivers on the stock train. The wreck was due to a rear-end collision between two trains east bound. A stock train stopped to allow hot boxes to be packed. This delay was not known to the engineer

FACE TERRIBLY LACERATED

He Was Lying Helpless And Covered
With Blood When Officer Auder-

Probably Saved His Life.

Weltering in his own blood and being so near helpless from the effects of liquor that he could not rise to his feet, George Banks, colored, was picked up at a late hour Saturday night by Officer Auderheide and taken to the city jail in the patrol. His arrest was doubtless the cause of saving his life.

Banks, who is employed by a Chester plastering contractor, came over to town early Saturday evening, and after hunting up a few acquaintances, began to make a tour of the downtown bar rooms. By the time the saloons were closed for the night Banks was full to the muzzle. He realized this fact and started for home, but by the time he reached the bridge he began to weaken at the knees and fell down.

The toll keeper was first to sight the helpless man, who made repeated efforts to get up, only to fall over again. Officer Auderheide was soon on the scene and discovered that Banks was covered with blood. He was too weak, however, to offer any explanation, and it was thought at the time that he had been injured internally.

When the patrol arrived at the jail the blood-covered man was carried to a cell, where it was found that his face was terribly lacerated. The wounds were washed and dressed, after which the officers left.

On awakening yesterday morning Banks was much surprised to find himself behind the bars, and though he remembered nothing whatever of his arrest, he told a story to the officers that may result in the arrest of other men on the charge of highway robbery.

Banks stated that he left a Second street saloon at 11 o'clock with $2 in his pockets. At that time, he declares, the liquor he drank had not taken full effect on him, and he says he distinctly remembers counting his money. He then started for the bridge, but cannot remember anything further.

The man's first statement to the police after he had become sober was that he had been held up and robbed. He said his injuries did not result from a fall, but for a bludgeoning which he contends, an unknown assailant struck him with. The police believe

Banks' story for the reason that his injuries are of a nature that could not have come about through a fall. His right eye was swollen shut yesterday, the flesh underneath being bruised to a jelly. The other eye was also swollen, while the left cheek was split open, the wound having evidently been made by a sharp-edged club.

Unfortunately the man cannot remember anything of the supposed holdup to give the police a clue, though at the time Officer Auderheide found him, another colored man who is supposed to have been with Banks, ran away and left him lying on the bridge.

Being charged with intoxication, Banks pleaded guilty and paid $5.00. The police, however, are making a thorough investigation. Chief Thompson says he feels satisfied Banks was the victim of thugs for the reason that his nose was not injured, which could not escape had the man's eyes and cheeks been hurt, as they were as a result of a fall.

CHURCH ON FIRE

Pipe Leading From a Heater Caused
the Excitement—Fire Department Called.

A stampede was narrowly averted at the M. P. church yesterday afternoon among the members of the Junior league as the result of a small fire which started from a defect in the pipe leading from a heater.

The children were interested in their studies when the smell of wood smoke was detected. The superintendent, not knowing there was any danger, told the little ones there was no need of fear, but a moment later when the janitor came running with a hand fire extinguisher, which he turned on, the children were panic-stricken.

The fire department was summoned and on reaching the scene found the rafters of one of the walls above the heaters burning. The flames had gained little headway and were soon subdued, the damage amounting to little or nothing.

A burning chimney called the department to "Barefoot Square" Saturday night. By the time the house was reached the fire had disappeared. This was the first time the company had been called out for several weeks.

Lisbon, February 10.—(Special).—The Union Fire Brick & Tile company on Saturday sold its interests to Pittsburg capitalists, the sale taking place in that city. The company has operated, under a lease which expires February 15, the works of the Union Fire Clay & Stone company, located near the old McKinley farm, one mile northwest of Lisbon. The latter company sold out to Pittsburg brokers about three weeks ago. The Coleman works and the Sallenville plant of W. A. Thompson were sold at the same time.

It is understood that the three works are to be transferred to a syndicate which will operate 15 or 20 plants in Eastern Ohio.

Lisbon, February 10.—(Special).—William Hamilton, of Lisbon, was adjudged insane on Saturday and a warrant was issued for conveying him to Massillon. Hamilton is 34 years old and has been previously treated at Massillon and Newburg. His malady is alleged to be due to the excessive use of alcohol.

Ohio Canals Are Costly.

Columbus, Feb. 10.—(Special).—Chief Engineer C. E. Perkins, of the state board of public works, thinks the legislature will find itself up against a stiff proposition in the proposal to abandon the canals. To do so, he says, would work great hardships to many interests. He claims over 50,000 workmen would be affected. The total receipts from the canals in 1901 was $86,000. The expense for maintenance was $329,000.

TWO DEADLOCKS OCCURRED

And It Became Necessary to Draw
Lots in Precincts of the Fourth
And Fifth Wards—Complete List
of the New Committeemen.

While the attendance at the various Republican caucuses Saturday night was not large, much interest was manifested by those in attendance, and central committeemen were selected in each of the nine voting precincts.

The lack of a very large attendance can be attributed to two causes. The system is an entirely new one, and the voters were not exactly clear as to its workings. The extremely cold night also had the effect of keeping many away. This was particularly true of the second precinct of the Fourth ward which takes in California hollow and Sunnyside, and also the districts included in Calcutta and Thompson hill. Six of the nine precincts caucused at the city hall, the two precincts of the First ward meeting at Turner hall, and the Fifth ward at the East End fire station.

The result of the vote for central committee was as follows:

Second ward, first precinct—Charles Kinney, Ed Hatton, M. J. McGarry.

Second precinct—J. N. Hanley, Lawrence T. Stevenson, Thomas McNicol.

Second precinct—W. L. Smith, P. J. McKeone, George McNicol.

Second precinct—E. N. Croxall, George Smith, Criss McConnell.

Fifth ward—Jay Fisher, Frank Ferran, E. A. Stevenson.

Township—R. G. Boyd, Harry C. Green and Ira Camberlain.

Two deadlocks occurred, one in the first precinct of the Fourth and another in the Fifth. Frank Gallimore and Leroy Orr tied in the former precinct, and after several ballots had been taken it was found impossible to break the dead lock. Lots were cast and Gallimore won. The same plan was adopted in the case of E. A. Stevenson and Frank Reigel, who tied in the Fifth, Stevenson winning.

In each of the nine precinct caucuses a resolution was passed endorsing the candidacy of J. N. Hanley for county clerk. Following is a copy: Whereas, J. N. Hanley, our home candidate for clerk of courts of Columbiana county at the coming primary election, is a staunch Republican and has devoted many years of his life while a resident of East Liverpool, to the interests of the party, and

Whereas, We feel he is deserving of the votes and influence of every citizen of the county, be it

Resolved, That the Republicans of this precinct here assembled most earnestly endorse the candidacy of our townsman, J. N. Hanley, and would commend him to the voters of Columbiana county as a man in every way worthy of their support and confidence, and who, if successful in his efforts, will represent them in an able and satisfactory manner.

The vote upon this resolution was unanimous in every instance.

AN EAST END DEPOT

Has Been Erected—It Is an Old Box Car, And the People Are Indignant.

East End residents were startled at an early hour this morning when the work train stationed at Wellsville pulled into the town and stopped at the Mulberry street crossing. Loaded upon a flat car was the frame work of an old box car, minus the wheels. The shack would have made an excellent coal shed or chicken house, but the wondering spectators were horrified to see the crew mechanically take hold of the shell and deposit it on the elevation at the eastern end of the platform.

Inquiry was made as to the use which the railroad people expected to make of the thing. With a few incoherent grunts from the crew some of the more intelligent bystanders were able to make out that the box was to be the new East End station.

Indignation was expressed upon all sides, since the residents of the suburb have worked so hard and waited long for the improvement that they certainly expected a depot building that would be a credit to the company and a source of comfort to the long suffering public. They say the shack is a disgrace and it would not be surprising if the indignant people would dump the car over the river bank.

It is possible that the box car depot is only to be used temporarily until a new station is erected. But if so, the East Enders are not so informed, and they are complaining loudly.

LOSS OF BLOOD

From Nasal Hemorrhage Left an East End Young Man Very Weak.

Ray Wilson, of Pennsylvania avenue, was seized with a severe bleeding at the nose on Saturday night and for a time it was feared he would bleed to death.

An attempt was made to stop the flow, but all efforts were in vain, and the young man made his way to the fire station nearby. Here the efforts were renewed. Captain Terrance finally advised consulting a physician. Wilson was assisted to the office of Dr. Calhoun, who worked with the young man for several hours.

When the flow of blood had been stopped Wilson was so weak he had to be assisted to his home. The boys at the fire station performed this service, and today the patient is considerably better, though very weak.

RUNNERS CAUGHT

Mishap to a Sleighing Party Which Came Near Being Serious.

Noble Witherow, who resides in the city proper, had a mishap in the East End last evening, which, had not his horses been very quiet, would have resulted disastrously for both driver and the occupants of the sled. Mr. Witherow had attached hobs to the bed of a surrey and while making the turn from Pennsylvania avenue into Mulberry street, the runners were caught in the street car track and broken off. Luckily the horses stood still and no one was injured.

The owner of the outfit was compelled to come to the city and secure the wheels of the surrey before the wreck could be removed.

Merry Time for Coasters.

Almost the entire population of the East End turned out Saturday night to take advantage of the excellent coasting on Pennsylvania avenue. The hill is very long and furnishes good sport. No accidents were reported.

COLD HUNTERS

WHO HAVE EXCELLENT PROSPECTS IN ALASKAN FIELDS.

Two Former Columbiana County Men Propose Mining on a Big Scale.

Salineville, Feb. 10.—Dr. Joseph Roberts, of Cleveland, accompanied by his brother, Henry Roberts, of Elkhart, Ind., formerly Salineville boys, were visiting their brother, Ben Roberts, of this town last week. These brothers spent the last summer in the gold fields of Cape Nome, Alaska. Dr. Roberts has made in all six trips to the icy north, several of which he made while in the employ of a steamship company in the capacity of chief surgeon. Dr. Roberts left a very lucrative practice in Cleveland to search for the yellow metal, when the rich strikes were attracting the attention of the whole world, several years ago.

On his last trip to Cape Nome he was accompanied by his brother, and they as partners were successful in obtaining some of the very valuable mineral ground adjoining the world's famous Treadwell mines, where constant dropping of a thousand stamps, pound out immense dividends for the fortunate stockholders for this rich concern each year. The Roberts brothers spent the last year in prospecting their claims, from which assays are reported rich in the much coveted metal. It is their intention to equip their ground with machinery to the amount of $50,000, to assist in collecting the gold from the gravel bed. They report the gravel being 200 feet deep and if it pays from the surface, with the natural advantages they have in the way of timber and water supply they have their fortune insured.

These gentlemen left for a short visit with their brother, Moses Roberts, in Wellsville, after which they were to return to Cleveland to make due preparation for the summer in the vicinity of Cape Nome, where the yellow metal haunts the eyes of the prospector day and night.

FIGURES ON CUBAN COMMERCE.

Exports to the United States Increased—Other Features.

Washington, Feb. 10.—Colonel Edwards, chief of the division of Insular Affairs of the war department, made public a comparative statement concerning the commerce of Cuba for the seven months ended July 31, 1901, 1900 and 1899. It is shown that the total value of merchandise imported during the seven months ended July 31, 1901, was $37,903,266, against $39,252,908 for the same period of 1900, and $34,054,967 in 1899, and the total value of merchandise exported during the seven months ended July 31, 1901, was $46,686,752, against $32,338,327 for the same period of 1900, and $31,045,495 in 1899, showing a decrease of 3 per cent in the value of imports in the period of 1901 as compared with that of 1900, and an increase of 44 per cent in the value of exports for the period of 1901 as compared with that of 1900.

The trade by countries shows that the value of merchandise imported during the stated period of 1901 from the United States was $15,913,576, a decrease of 6 per cent as compared with the same period of 1900, and an increase of about 1 per cent as compared with 1899. As to exports to the United States, it is shown that their value during the period last year was $38,032,623, an increase of 45 per cent over 1900 and 36 per cent over 1899.

25 BLOCKS BURNED.

Great Fire Swept Though Paterson, N. J.—Loss With— in $10,000,000.

1,000 PROBABLY HOMELESS.

Thought to Have Started From Electric Wire—Number of Churches, Public Buildings, Business Houses and Dwellings Destroyed.

Paterson, N. J., Feb. 10.—A great fire swept through Paterson Sunday and in its desolate wake are the embers and ashes of property valued in preliminary estimate at $10,000,000. It burned its way through the business section of the city and claimed as its own a majority of the finer structures devoted to commercial, civic, educational and religious use, as well as scores of houses. There was but small tribute of life and injury to the conflagration, but hundreds were left homeless and thousands without employment. A relief movement for the care of those unsheltered and unprovided for has already been organized, and Mayor John Hinchcliffe said last night that Paterson would be able to care for her own without appealing to the charity of other communities and states. The great manufacturing plants of the place are safe, and the community, temporarily dazed by the calamity, has already commenced the work of reorganization and restoration.

Fierce Gale Fanned Fire.

The fire came Saturday midnight and was only checked after a desperate fight that lasted until late Sunday afternoon. Every city and town within reach of Paterson sent firemen and apparatus to the relief of the threatened city, and it took the united efforts of them all to win the battle. A northeast gale gave the conflagration its impetus and carried its burning brands to kindle the blaze afire at other points. The firemen made stand after stand before the wall of fire, but were repeatedly driven back, and when victory finally came to them they were grimed and exhausted.

A partial list of the properties destroyed follows:

Partial List of Properties Destroyed.

Public buildings—City hall, public library; Old city hall, police station, No. 1 engine house, patrol stables, high school and school No. 15.

Club houses—Y. M. C. A., Knights of Columbus, Progress club, St. Joseph's hall and Hamilton club.

Office buildings—Romaine building, Katz building, Marshall and Balls, Cohn building, Old Town clock, Old Kinnie building and Stevenson building.

Some of Business Houses Burned.

Stores—Quackenbush & Co., dry goods; Boston store, dry goods; Globe store, dry goods; National Clothing company, Kent's drug store, Kinsilla's drug store, Muzzy's hardware and general merchandise; Marshall & Ball, clothing; John Norwood, paints; Oberg's grocery, Wendenyeke's grocery, P. H. & W. G. Shields, grocers; "The Paterson," dry goods; Jordan's piano store; Sauter & Co., pianos; Feder & McNair, shoes; Zender's confectionery; Latpin's tea store; Ragowski's millinery store; Broholl & Mueller, shoes; C. E. Beach, automobiles; Morehead & Son, clothing; Paterson Gas and Electric company; Skys's drug store and Mackintosh's drug store.

An estimate made from a general inspection of the smoldering ruins placed the number of dwellings and apartment houses destroyed at 500 and the number of families left without shelter at 1,000. A re-estimate when order succeeds confusion may alter those figures.

25 Blocks Burned Over.

The area of destruction foots up roughly 25 city blocks.

The cost of the fire has not yet been counted with any degree of accuracy, and it will be several days before there can be a definite tabulation of losses and insurance.

In the confusion of the day and rigorous guarding of the burning districts at night it was impossible to locate a majority of the heavier sufferers.

The estimate of $10,000,000 will probably cover the destruction broadly, and a group of city officials who went over the city last evening were inclined to scale that figure down to between $7,500,000 and $8,000,000 for actual property losses. Their estimate made no calculation for loss on account of suspension of business.

Up to 11 o'clock last night no serious accident was reported at police headquarters. Mayor Hinchcliffe, while watching the firemen at work during the afternoon, received a slight burn on the cheek from a flying spark. Several firemen were overcome but none of them was incapacitated for more than a few minutes.

One death was reported as a possible outcome of the conflagration, a Mrs. Brown, who, it was said, was over 80 years old, and who was removed from her residence, 18 Broadway, just two doors from where the fire started in the car sheds. She was taken to the residence of a friend nearby shortly after midnight and died about an hour later. It was said that her death was hastened by the excitement consequent on her hasty removal to a place of safety.

Scores of Persons Hurt.

Scores of persons were hurt and burned, but the loss of life was not thought to be great. There are many persons supposed to be missing, but in the excitement and fright most of these are supposed to be separated from their families and friends. Until order is brought out of the chaos which existed here Sunday nothing definite can be known.

Ruben Isleib, while serving coffee to the exhausted firemen, was hit on the head by a falling beam and it is doubtful if he lives. He was carried away by the firemen as they made their retreat from the doomed school house.

Fireman Hurlled From His Seat.

George Fitzmaurice, a fireman, who had been acting as driver for Fire Chief Stagg, is also dying. He was driving an engine from Passaic, when the horses bolted, and before Fitzmaurice could get them under control they brought the apparatus against an electric pole, and Fitzmaurice, who had not waited to strap himself on, was hurled out upon his head. There is no chance of his living.

What started the fire is not certain, but it is thought one of the feed wires running into the car barn was responsible.

Colored Church Destroyed.

Philadelphia, Feb. 10.—The colored Protestant Episcopal Church of the Crucifixion and the parish house adjoining, located at Eighth and Bainbridge streets, were destroyed by fire Sunday afternoon. The loss is placed at $30,000, on which there is a partial insurance. Surrounding property was damaged by fire and water to the extent of about $5,000.

FOR STATE BENEFIT

Numerous Bills Are Before the Ohio General Assembly For Action.

THE MUNICIPAL CODE BILL

Provides a Uniform System for Government of Cities And Villages. Resolutions Introduced Setting Date for Adjournment.

Columbus, Feb. 10. — (Special).— With the introduction of the insurance bills into the house late Wednesday night the last but one, or perhaps two, of what are to be known as the distinctively administration taxation measures was placed before the general assembly for action. These bills followed the bills taxing corporations and formed a distinct feature of the governor's plan to raise money for state purposes and do away with the state levy. They were five in number and levy assessments upon insurance companies, both foreign and domestic, as well as building and loan associations and those fire assessment companies which abound among the farming population and are known as farmers' mutuals. Though not to the extent contemplated, one of the bills affects the fire marshal's office and reduces the levy for its support by one-half. In case the amount now derived from the insurance tax is not sufficient to meet the expenses of this department, the deficiency will have to be met by the emergency board and the money taken from the general fund. The first and most important of these insurance bills levies a tax of three per cent upon the gross premium receipts of all foreign insurance companies, both fire and life, doing business in the state. This is an increase from two and one-half per cent, and will, it is estimated, bring something like an additional $400,000 annually into the state treasury. Heretofore one-half of one per cent of the money received from this tax, or nearly $40,000, has been devoted to paying the expenses of the fire marshal's office. That appropriation is, by the new bill, reduced to one-quarter of one per cent and the direct result of such enactment will be the necessity of reducing the number of fire deputies in the state and a general curtailing of expenses. The second insurance bill touches live stock insurance companies—those which insure live stock and nothing else. These companies, when formed, are to be assessed a fee of $10 for the issuing of articles of incorporation. Beyond that they are required to file annual statements with the superintendent of insurance, setting forth their assets, liabilities, etc. If the showing made in this be satisfactory a certificate permitting the continuation of business will be given, and for this a fee of $20 is to be assessed. The third bill affects farmers' assessment fire insurance companies a distinct class. It requires each of these companies to file with the superintendent of insurance its articles of incorporation, samples of policies, etc. and pay for this a fee of $10. Annual statements must also be filed with the superintendent of insurance, and if by these the receipts for the year are shown to be $2,500 or less, an assessment of $10 will be levied against the company. If the receipts exceed $2,500 the assessment will be $20. Failure to file their annual statement or to fully answer any question asked by the superintendent will entail a fine of $500 and another fine of $500 for each month the company continues to do business thereafter. The last of the bills relating purely to insurance companies was introduced by Judge Thomas of Huron. It calls for an annual tax of one-half of one per cent on the gross premium receipts of all Ohio fire companies other than the farmers' mutuals, in addition to the payment of fees for the filing of statements as covered in the statutes as they are at present. Turning from insurance companies, the last bill places a tax upon building and loan companies and includes in its stipulations that each foreign association, when it files its application to do business in Ohio, shall pay to the state inspector of building and loan companies a fee of $100, and for the filing of certificates and annual renewals of the same a fee of $50. Annual statements are required from both foreign and domestic associations and a tax of one-twentieth of one per cent will be assessed upon the gross assets as shown by these statements. In addition to all this, for each copy of any paper filed in the office of the state inspector a fee of twenty-five cents will be charged, and for affixing his seal or certifying to any paper the inspector must collect a dollar. The next bill to be introduced and upon which work is now being done will apply to Ohio life companies and will probably assess a tax of one-tenth of one per cent upon the gross premium receipts. The estimate is that the money received in all these ways from the insurance companies will bring in to the state annually more than $1,000,000, and it is understood there will be but little if any objection upon the part of the insurance companies to their enactment perhaps for fear that a too violent agitation of the matter might lead to a further increase instead of a cutting down.

The same spirit of endorsement is not, however, given by the corporations to the bills levying a tax against them, and especially is this true in regard to the Willis bill requiring Ohio corporations to file an annual statement, for which a fee of one-tenth of one per cent of the authorized capital stock will be collected. This has stirred up a world of trouble for its author and the chairman of the taxation committee, Ralph D. Cole of Findlay. Letters are pouring in to them every day and they are besieged with delegations eager to be heard in protest.

A measure supplementing all the tax bills introduced has been prepared. It is for the convenience of the secretary of state in order that he may keep exactly what corporations are doing business in Ohio and, therefore, subject to taxation. The supplemental bill provides that all corporations, whether for profit or not, which have never been in real operation may surrender their charters by giving the stockholders two weeks' notice and by filing their certificates of dissolution with the secretary of state. If the corporation be one of profit once engaged in business, but which has ceased operation and paid all its debts, four weeks' notice must be given the stockholders who will come together at the expiration of that time. The unanimous vote of those present at such meeting either in person or by proxy will be required to decide upon an abandonment of corporate authority.

The long-looked-for municipal code bill has been put in by Mr. Comings of Lorain. It is a most formidable looking document of more than 1,000 pages and fitted with legal terms and technicalities. Sifted down, it really provides a uniform system of government for all the cities and villages of the state. Municipalities are divided into but two classes—cities and villages, the latter including all of 5,000 people or less. In all cities, no matter what the population, the federal plan of government, fashioned after the national government at Washington, will prevail. There is to be a mayor elected by the people and the mayor is to have his cabinet, consisting of a director of accounts, director of law, director of public safety and other euphonically named and well paid officials. These cabinet officers are to be appointed by the mayor and may be removed by him for cause if the consent of the council can be obtained. The council in every city is to consist of seven members elected at large and its functions will be entirely legislative. Measures passed there can only become laws, however, by the approval of the mayor, and he can likewise veto. If he vetoes, it will take a vote of five councilmen to undo his act. A very emphatic feature of the law is that of civil service. Under the bill, if it passes, every city employee, outside of those elected, must pass an examination before a civil service commission before he can take office, but once in he cannot be removed without good cause and then only after a full hearing. It endeavors to establish permanency in place, with the view, so it is claimed, of inducing the best men to accept places in connection with city government. The civil service commission is to consist of four men in each city appointed by the governor. There are the most stringent regulations placed about every official and especially perhaps about those of the police and fire departments, for the purpose of raising the efficiency of these branches of municipal government in every city. The bill makes but few changes, and those unimportant, in the government of villages. What reforms there are suggested look to the federal plan and civil service, except in a more limited way.

It can be definitely said that the only restricting done in the state, if there be any, will be in the Third (Dayton) and the Twelfth (Columbus) districts. An agreement has been reached that outside of these the best policy will be to make no changes. As to the changing of these the sentiment is divided and it will take a joint caucus of the Republicans of the house and senate to reach a definite understanding. It is believed that these districts can be so changed as to make them safely Republican without endangering any of the districts where Republicans now have a majority. The Democrats, while perhaps not able to prevent the changing of these two districts, could, and would, if the attempt were made, prevent a general tearing up of the state by voting with those Republicans who are opposed to such a scheme.

The purpose of the state administration to abandon the entire system of Ohio canals was shown in the partial appropriation bill introduced in the house Friday by Mr. Crafts of Portage. Although an appropriation for the payment of the salaries of the officers of different state departments was made for the full year ending May 15, 1903, the appropriation for the officials of the state board of public works was extended only until May 15 next, while nothing was appropriated for the repairs and improvements. It is the intention to pass a general bill before the end of the session for abandonment of the entire system by that time, and should it become necessary to grant a lease of life longer than May 15, the emergency board will give such money, from time to time, as may be needed.

Ohio, by the end of the legislature, will not owe a dollar of funded indebtedness and the state will be clean except for the irreducible debt which, of course, is never to be paid. That's a pretty good record for any commonwealth.

A resolution has been introduced for final adjournment of house and senate March 28 and that no general bills shall be introduced after March 1. With the volume of business on hand, it is doubtful if this can be done, however, and the session is more likely to extend until the last of April.

GEO. U. MARVIN.

EVIDENTLY ONE OF THE THEIVES.

Lancaster, Pa., Feb. 10.—John Thomas, the robber who was shot in the face during the raid on the Gap National bank, at Gap, Pa., early Saturday morning, was subjected to a severe questioning Sunday in his cell at the county jail, and though told that he might die admitted nothing except that his home is at Bath, Me. His wound has improved so much that it is no longer considered dangerous, though he is still unable to take solid food.

Probing could not reveal the bullet, and it is thought that he spat out the lead after it had shattered his jaw. He claims to have been shot on a freight train near this city, but his story is lacking and conflicting in details. He was viewed Sunday afternoon by Detectives Dougherty, Donohue and McGinley, of Philadelphia, but they could not identify him. There are no clues yet to the five others who escaped.

The attempt made to rob the bank ended in a lively exchange of shots between the town's watchman, David Stamix, and the burglars.

A stranger stopped at Atglen, a few miles east of Gap, and had a wound in his jaw dressed. He said he had received the injury by falling from a freight train and striking a piece of iron. It is believed he was the man wounded by the watchman. He was arrested subsequently at Parkersburg and brought to Lancaster Saturday afternoon, with a bad wound in the face.

He was captured on a passenger train between Glen Lock and Frazer.

MRS. SOFFEL SERIOUSLY ILL

Has a Well-Developed Case of Pleurisy—Can't Be Moved For Awhile.

Butler, Pa., Feb. 10.—Mrs. Soffel will not be in condition to be removed from the hospital for at least 10 days to come, and it may be a greater length of time. Since Saturday night there has been a change, and the woman now has a well developed case of pleurisy, the left cavity of the chest being the worst affected. At 8 o'clock last night her temperature was 108, pulse 112 and respiration 24.

Although she was seriously ill, Mrs. Soffel was cheerful and her mental condition was about the same as Saturday. She saw no visitors and talked to no one Sunday outside of her attendants and physicians. The physicians said last night that her condition was not alarming, but that under the most favorable conditions it would be 10 days before the disease will have run its course.

Wintering in Colorado And Utah.

The climate of Colorado and Utah has long been world famous, but it is only within recent years that attention has been given to the delightful winter climate of these states. Today physicians all over the United States send their patients to Colorado and Utah to escape the rigors of eastern winters and to benefit by her invigorating atmosphere and health-giving sunshine.

It is not necessary to add an elaborate argument—the conclusion is self-evident and inevitable. The winter climate of Colorado and Utah on the whole presents advantages for the invalid and the pleasure-seeker that cannot fail to command attention.

An erroneous impression prevails that because the Rocky mountains have a high elevation the mercury in the thermometer drops down below zero in the winter season and stops there, and that the snow mounts up with the altitude. The fact is that the average precipitation of moisture in the lowlands of the mountain region during the entire year is only 14.15 inches. With such average precipitation there is practically no danger of snow blockades on the railroads, save at a few points exposed to drifts and these points have been amply protected. This is especially true of the lines of the Denver & Rio Grande and the Rio Grande Western between Denver and Ogden at all seasons of the year. Facts speak for themselves, and the fact is that travel over "The Scenic Line of the World" has gone on with less interruption from snow blockades during the last ten winters than it has upon the majority of railroads in other localities which are popularly supposed to be more free from such delays than the mountain systems. The annual blue book just issued by the department of trade and commerce at Ottawa forms an interesting commentary upon the trend of trade in Canada. In spite of all the tariff restrictions against the United States and the tariff coddling given the mother land, there is a steady decline in the percentage of trade between Canada and Great Britain and a correspondingly steady increase in that between Canada and the United States. Exports to Great Britain in 1898 were 67.78 per cent, while last year these were 54.15, the increase with the United States being from 53.43 to 60.30 during the same period. Imports from Great Britain under the preferential tariff declined from $44,279,983 in 1900 to $42,819,995 last year, while imports from the United States under the tariff revision of the present dominion government increased from $102,080,177 to $107,149,325. The departmental report shows that the prosperity of 1901 is only in general terms a repetition of the five preceding years.

Plans for the Handsome New Building Being Drawn By an Akron Architect.

The working plans for the handsome new Catholic school building are being prepared by W. P. Ginther, of Akron, one of Ohio's foremost architects. As soon as these plans are received, Father Smyth will advertise for bids.

The old school on Fifth street must be torn down to make room for the new one, and it is expected that this work will be contracted for about the first of May. By beginning the work at this time the children will lose a month of school, but this must be done in order to get the building ready for occupancy by the first of September.

The greatest railroad wreck scene ever produced on any stage is one of the thrilling scenes of this play. Tuesday night a magnificent presentation of "Monte Cristo" will be given.

The King Dramatic company closed a successful week's engagement Saturday night by presenting "On the Wabash" to a crowded house. The play was on the order of "Blue Jeans," and was cleverly presented. The specialties between acts were also well received.

POTTERY NEWS

The more the East Liverpool Pottery company examine the details of its first six months' operations, the better they are satisfied that the purchase and consolidation of the six plants was fortunate. Although under one general supervision, they are really operated on a competitive basis as to efficiency and economy. Each manager is responsible for amount, quality and cost of his output, and is required to make monthly reports. At the monthly meeting of the local managers they are reviewed and differences of expenses in various departments of the several plants noted, and remedies sought and applied. Greater economies and efficiency have been introduced from month to month by each manager, until now an appreciable difference in cost of ware is noted at nearly all the plants. It is claimed the six plants are making better ware and at a less cost than before.

E. L. Jester, of Monroe street, left on the morning train for Barborton, where he will take the position as assistant superintendent of the Barborton pottery, which will be in operation in a short time. Mr. Jester has been traveling salesman for the Raymond Engine company, of Dayton for several years. He will be permanently located in Barborton and will move his family in a few weeks.

At the last meeting of local union No. 32, printers and transferers, a committee was appointed to arrange for a social to be given in the near future. The social will be for ladies as well as gentlemen, and a general good time is anticipated. The program will consist of addresses and music.

Potters seem to be satisfied with the revised scales schedule and its rebate system, and think the latter will prove popular with buyers. Glassware dealers, who are receiving rebate cheques from the Glass association, are generally crockery buyers, and fully appreciate the rebate system.

Announcement has been made that Ambrose Cartwright and George B. Pryor, of New Castle, will have charge of the sales department of the new pottery being erected at Barborton. The firm will not make majolica, as has been stated.

N. A. Frederick leave this week for California to stay for the remainder of the winter. Mr. Frederick now has his first relief from active pottery duties for years, and will take unusual pleasure in his Pacific coast outing.

The crockery jobbers are holding their annual meeting at the Holland House, Cleveland. The conferences are held behind closed doors, and so far as could be learned there have been no radical measures proposed.

Among the meetings that will be held this evening will be those of the turners and handlers, pressers, printers and transferers, saggermakers.

Miss Jennie Ferren, formerly of the C. C. Thompson pottery, has taken a position as finisher at the East End pottery.

MEEK NOT GUILTY,

BUT PAYS THE COSTS.

Clearfield, Pa., Feb. 10.—"Not guilty, but pay the costs," was the verdict brought in Saturday morning by the jury chosen to decide whether P. Gray Meek, of the Bellefonte Watchman, had libeled State Treasurer-elect Frank G. Harris by calling him "king of crooks" and an "unblushing bribe-taker." The action of the jury imposes upon the defendant the payment of the costs, which, all told, amount to $47.62.

Mistletoe.

The prettiest thing about mistletoe is its milky white opalescent berries. The stems and foliage seem to betray the parasite nature of the plant in their unwholesome shade of green, a peculiarly unwholesome shade characterizing the stems. It is an uncanny sort of plant. Most parasites are. Is there anything more positively ghostlike than the plant we know as Indian pipe (monotropa)?

PRESIDENT DECLINES HONOR.

Refuses to Accept Brevet From Army Board.

Washington, Feb. 10.—The president has approved, with one notable exception, all the recommendations made by the army brevet board, of which General MacArthur was president, for the bestowal of brevet rank on all the officers of the army who rendered especially meritorious services during the war with Spain, and in the subsequent campaigns in the Philippines and China.

The exception noted is the case of Theodore Roosevelt, who was awarded the brevets of colonel and brigadier general for distinguished services at San Juan, Santiago.

SOUTH SIDE*HELD UP BY WOMEN

A Chester Man Reported the Victim of a Very Novel Experience.

John Woodmanse was the victim of evening. The deed was committed by two women, who were evidently in hard luck. They stopped him on Ninth street, near the Chester hotel, and demanded that he produce his valuables, as they were homeless and had no money with which to purchase a sleeping place.

Woodmanse made no effort to break away from them and quietly submitted to being searched. He had neither money nor other valuables in his clothes and the daring women were much chagrined at being compelled to leave without any pecuniary help.

SUITS AGAINST SLACK

Are Still Piling Up—The Latest Is For a Doctor's Bill.

Another attachment suit has been filed in 'Squire Johnston's court against W. A. Slack. Dr. Berg, of Beaver Falls, entered the suit Saturday. He alleges that Slack owes him $12 for professional services rendered.

At least five suits are now filed against Slack, and if the bills are not settled by March 15 Slack's household goods will be sold at public sale by Constable Allison.

AMALGAMATED SCALE

Now in Effect at the Chester Mill. Old Per Diem System Abolished.

The employees of the American Tin Plate company are now working under the wage scale provided by the Amalgamated association. The scale went into effect this morning, much to the satisfaction of every one concerned.

Since the starting of the mills the men had been working by the day which was very distasteful to them.

New Coaling Station Projected.

The management of the New Cumberland branch of the Panhandle road is figuring on placing a new coaling station in the vicinity of New Cumberland. This is mainly for the convenience of the switching crews, that at present have no facilities of this sort for replenishing fuel supplies when there is a rush of overtime work.

CLAIM OF TRUST DENIED.

Answer of Two Ohio Railroad Companies Is Filed—Replies Are Practically Identical.

Columbus, Feb. 10.—The answers of the Hocking Valley and the Ohio Central Railway companies to the suits recently brought in Logan and Crawford counties to oust them from their charters were filed late Saturday afternoon. The suits charged that the two railways, which are parallel, have been unlawfully consolidated, and that, in their alliance with certain coal companies, they virtually constitute a trust; also, that the property of the railway companies has been returned for taxation at much less than its real value.

In the answers, which are practically identical, a general denial is entered as to the existence of a trust between the companies named. The denial covers the charge that excessive freights and passenger fares have been charged and relates that the express business is entirely under the control of the express companies doing business over the lines. In each case the defendant says its rate of fare and freight charges have at all times been as low, if not lower, than those of other railroads in the state of Ohio for like services.

Interrogatories relating to officers of the companies are answered, but it is claimed that it is not practicable to give a list of the stockholders, inasmuch as the stock is sold on the market, and is constantly changing hands.

The answer asserts that the defendant company has no definite knowledge as to whether the J. P. Morgan company owns 51 per cent of the stock of the companies, and, therefore, cannot deny the same, but denies that the same has been used by the said J. P. Morgan & Co. to carry on the purposes of the alleged combination and the prevention of competition between the lines.

FILIPINO GOVERNOR FLED.

Was Unable to Account For $4,000 of Insurgent Funds.

Manila, Feb. 10.—Senor Lerma, the newly-elected governor of Bataan province, fled after his election, when he was called upon to account for $4,000 of insurgent funds. He is still missing.

The provinces under civil rule, as well as Manila, have been flooded with a quantity of pamphlets printed in Hong Kong by the Filipino junta. These pamphlets are copies of a memorial by the junta, which has been forwarded to President Roosevelt. The memorial expresses sympathy at the death of Mr. McKinley, and assures the American people that sooner or later the Filipinos are bound to have independence. The junta says it has reliable information that most of the pacified provinces are only held in check by superior military forces. The pamphlets say that the educated Filipinos appreciate American governmental ideas, but when the bread of national life is asked for it does not suffice to offer a stone, even though that stone be a diamond.

The American merchants here complain of the action of the insular purchasing agent in making the majority of his purchases at Hong Kong, where materials are cheaper on account of Hong Kong being a free port.

Meals In Russia.

Among the common people there is no fixed time for eating meals. The Russian eats when he is hungry, and this is about six square meals a day. He has at least a dozen lunches, a little bit of salt fish or some caviare or a piece of bread and cheese, washed down with a nip of fiery vodka. He never passes a station without a glass of tea—marvelous tea, with a thin slice of lemon floating in it. You get a fondness for Russian tea and forswear bemildred decoctions forever.

The table manners of the Russian—such as you see in hotels and buffets—are not pleasing. He sprawls with outstretched elbows on the table and gets his mouth down to his food rather than raise the food to his mouth. He makes objectionable noises in his throat. He has a finger bowl and rinses his mouth as the rest of us do when cleaning our teeth in our bathrooms. Then he squirts the water back into the bowl. In time one may get used to this.

The Civil War Mortality.

Commenting on the loss of life in the civil war from various causes, General Francis V. Greene says in Scribner's Magazine:

"How paltry seem the 5,000 killed and wounded in the war of 1812 or the war in Mexico or the war with Spain compared with the 14,000 at Shiloh, 15,000 at the Chickasaw, 13,000 at Antietam, the same at Fredericksburg, 16,000 at Chancellorsville, 23,000 at Gettysburg, 16,000 at Chickamauga, 37,000 in the Wilderness and 26,000 at Spotsylvania! The grand aggregate of destruction fairly staggers the imagination, accustomed as we have been for more than a generation to the figures—93,000 killed by bullets, 186,000 killed by disease, 25,000 dead from other causes, a grand total of 304,000, or about one in nine of every man who wore the uniform."

WELLSVILLE*FORMAL OPENING

OF THE RAILWAY ASSOCIATION'S READING ROOMS.

Crowds in Attendance—Good Quarters And a Library of 4,000 Volumes.

The formal opening and smoker at the readings rooms on lower Main street Saturday evening was an event to be remembered by the several hundred employees of the C. & P. Railroad company of Wellsville and vicinity.

The rooms were crowded from the early evening until nearly 12 o'clock and a most enjoyable time was the lot of everyone present. The guests upon arriving were greeted by a reception committee who kindly escorted them through every department of the building and very obligingly answered all questions in regard to the rooms and their purposes.

After making a thorough inspection of the building the guests were led to the smoking room, where they were invited to help themselves and smoke to their heart's content. Music was provided by Frank Dunlap's orchestra, assisted by Miss Mae Rayl, pianist.

Among out-of-town railway employees present were: A. H. Rodgers, E. A. Montooth, R. D. Smith, W. H. Sausman, Salineville; G. W. Glass and J. W. Gilbert, Homeworth; Arthur Bell, New Philadelphia; J. D. Arthur, Atwater; J. A. Greenfield and J. A. Ney, Bellaire.

The building in which these rooms are located is situated in close proximity to the West End depot and the repair shops, and as the majority of the employees live close by, the location is admirably convenient. This building throughout is elegantly equipped with up-to-date conveniences, being richly carpeted, lighted by gas and heated by a hot air furnace. The walls of the rooms have been newly papered and are decorated with numerous pictures.

On the first floor are located the office, which is in charge of Thomas D. Culbertson, the reading room, smoking room and book room. In the latter room are 4,000 volumes by the best authors, which can be obtained by any employee. The daily papers and first-class magazines can also be found in this room. On the second floor there are three modern bath rooms and one large assembly room. The expense to each employee who enjoys the privileges provided by these rooms is only $1 per year, which is certainly low, considering the benefits derived.

The building was donated and equipped by the management of the C. & P. company and is in charge of the Reading Room association. The directors of this association are: W. H. Scriven, president; W. B. Wood, vice president; J. L. Crumrine, secretary and treasurer; J. J. McCormick, F. R. Martin, Frank Heller, T. J. Rogers, T. E. Byrne, Earl Munson, T. L. Appel, F. C. Thomas, Ed Fulton, George Kashner, G. L. Appel and J. D. Harris.

The members of the executive committee are: Frank Heller, F. C. Thomas, J. J. Rogers.

The honorary members of the association are: W. A. McIntosh, John Thomas, J. B. McKim and M. V. Miller.

And Republican Candidates for City Offices Are Beginning to Hustle.

The candidates' entry book was closed promptly at 8 o'clock Saturday evening by E. C. Taylor, secretary of the Republican central committee, and now one of the warmest political fights ever witnessed in this city is on. Each candidate is working vigorously, using his every energy and diplomatically putting into play numerous ingenious schemes—all with the one hope of landing a victim at the primary election, which will be held next Saturday afternoon between the hours of 1 and 7.

Together with the office to which they gather with the office for which they aspire, follow:

Mayor—O. P. Bowers, Wallace L. Fogo and Wm. T. Green.

TO BE MADE AT THE WELLSVILLE SHEET MILL.

A Hundred Thousand Dollars to Be Spent and Capacity Increased 50 Per Cent.

Superintendent D. S. Brookman is responsible for the statement that the American Sheet Steel company at a recent meeting voted a large amount of money for the enlargement of the Wellsville plant. The enlargement will increase the capacity of the plant fully 50 per cent.

It is stated that the appropriation is over $100,000. The company has had this plan under consideration for several months and when it was officially announced on Saturday by Supt. Brookman the residents of Wellsville were not at all surprised. Negotiations are being made with contractors for the machinery and material and the work is to be commenced immediately. The improvement means much to Wellsville. Several hundred more people will be given employment; the population will be increased; there will be a demand for more houses and the business and wealth of the city will be increased very materially.

FROM THE BOER COUNTRY

Five Elderly Men From South Africa Are Now Located in Wellsville.

Probably the most conspicuous men who attended the smoker given by the Reading Room association Saturday evening were the five elderly gentlemen who recently emigrated to this country from the Boer district of southern Africa.

In a conversation with a reporter they gave their names as W. V. Romondt, B. Cornelessen, H. Van Holten, J. Armar and Theodore Vondermeer. They claim to be expert painters and are employed in that capacity at the West End shops. They are of strikingly large physique and are apparently more than 50 years of age.

When asked if they had participated at any time in the Boer war their answers were so inaudible that nothing definite could be learned from them. They had in their possession relics galore of the far-off country, but were unable to give a story as to how they obtained them.

REPUBLICAN CAUCUSES

Held Only in the Second And Fifth Wards on Saturday Night.

The order issued by the county Republican central committee to the Republicans of this city asking them to hold caucuses Saturday night in the several wards for the purpose of electing three committeemen for each ward, was only heeded in the Second and Fifth wards. Those elected in these wards are: Second ward—J. F. McQueen, E. C. Taylor and J. F. Duncan. Fifth ward—Edward Ralston, George White and T. P. Ferguson.

Owing to the non-action taken in the remaining wards the full quota of committeemen will be elected on the same date that the county primaries are to be held.

Washington, Feb. 10.—The condition of Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., shows no change of any importance, and as it is probable in the nature of the illness that it will be several days or more before the outcome will be apparent the president is not likely to return to Washington from Groton, Mass., until at least the end of the week. Last evening the White House made public the following message received from Groton:

LATE AND IMPORTANT PHASES OF CHILD STUDY.

Professor of Psychology and Child Study
in the Wisconsin Normal School.

XL.—Adolescence and Differences of Sex.

THERE is a winter sport very popular in Scotland and in the northern part of this country called "curling." In this game the purpose of each player is to slide a large, well polished rounded block of stone along the ice in such a way as to lie as close as possible to the "tee" when the game is done. If the initial aim is perfect and the force of delivery neither too great nor too small, it may yet happen, especially toward the end of the course, that some little flaw in the ice, some drift of snow or other slight obstruction, may cause the stone either to move so slowly or to deviate in such a way that it fails to reach the spot for which it was designed. It is at this moment rather than at the beginning that the greatest anxiety on the part of the players is observed. Here it is that they freely use their brooms or even get down upon their knees to rub the ice.

It is much the same with the development of a human being. Nature starts us off with an immense hereditary push and for the most part in the right direction. During the earliest years the momentum of growth is so great, at least with those well born, that nothing less than an exceedingly untoward environment is sufficient to produce a conspicuous deviation or arrest. But with the approach of adolescence or the culmination of the period of development the hereditary force is more easily modified or deranged, and even the slightest influences of environment are sufficient to produce all the difference between failure and success.

During the first two years of puberty physical changes indicated mentally by vague, undefined sensations and lower ranges of desire first assert themselves. They push their way into the personal perception which has gradually been expanding during childhood proper. At the same time there is also a distinct enlargement of the more altruistic moral functions. These various factors are at first not thoroughly co-ordinated, and the years between 17 and 25, or adolescence proper, is thus largely a period of fusion, during which a certain amount of lack of balance is not such a serious indication of defect as it would be either earlier or later in life.

That the plasticity of this period—its transforming power and its consequent survival value—is focused on the sexual functions and on the physical, mental and spiritual capacities directly connected therewith is an arrangement of the greatest economy in maintaining the stability and insuring the progress of the race. In this respect the psycho-sexual correlations are particularly noteworthy. In human society it is not merely physical vigor which determines one's opportunity to love, and even this very necessary basis is found valuable and attractive in sexual selection largely because it affords a means of expression for finer and more passionate elements. The character of a woman's smile, for example, goes further than the shape of her mouth, and a man's walk is admired when the weight of his muscles is neglected, in both cases because these things are regarded as indications of an inner state.

Further than this, it is love which awakens the soul to the main fulfillment of her powers. Like sleeping beauty, she has lain dormant through these dim years of childhood, but now the deep physiological force of Love, like a true prince, breaks through all obstructions and awakens her with his magic kiss. It is a period of regeneration. New aspirations make their appearance. Ideals become more altruistic. Enthusiasm normally characterizes every effort. The sublime and the beautiful appear in their true importance. The whole world is tinged with an air of romance, which means in reality that everything good seems suddenly capable of being accomplished.

This immense reserve energy makes itself felt in every direction. Intellectually it is seen in the increasing range of ideas which the adolescent becomes capable of grouping together. His associational powers are greatly enlarged. He develops a sense for harmonious wholes. This is sometimes of a logical character, but more frequently the principle of integration is much deeper than mere logic, which is often used rather as an ornamental form, mainly useful in dazzling those who are unable to penetrate farther than the surface. This increased capacity for systematization arises, consciously or unconsciously, from the needs of life. Adolescence is a period of thoughts, desires, wider trains of images, partial experiences in a word, because it is necessary that the individual project himself in time to an extent that will cover at least his sexual life, in order that the children which may possibly spring from him be favored in the struggle for existence. When the partial experiences, desires, ideals, etc., of this period cannot be realized, their raison d'être has entirely disappeared.

It must be observed, however, that in community life desires and ideals may persist in individuals which will never be completed by these individuals themselves, but which, nevertheless, have the greatest effect in making larger and better the lives of other people, and especially other people's children. It may be that such individuals, many of them members of the third sex, are properly described as degenerates, but if so we must admit a larger view in which the degenerate is not merely the scapegoat of the community, eliminating human ills by being sacrificed in natural selection—thus bearing our sins unto the wilderness—but is at the same time, in many cases at least, a positive benefit to the race. To such a class belongs a considerable part of our teaching force. The dreams and ideals originally developed to favor the family have become in their case diverted in the interests of a larger group.

The tendency to form systematizations of thought in connection with sexual feeling is thoroughly exemplified in the process of falling in love. From an intellectual standpoint, indeed, this passion may be described as a systematization in which the image of the loved one is always present as the center around which is crystallized every sensation and every thought.

It is the same way with the more radiated adolescent enthusiasms, which are all of them kinds of falling in love. The preoccupations of religion, art and philosophy, springing psychologically from this very source, are responsible for the largest and most comprehensive systems of thought of which the human mind is capable. Their main function is to offer better forms of loving as well as of ordinary living.

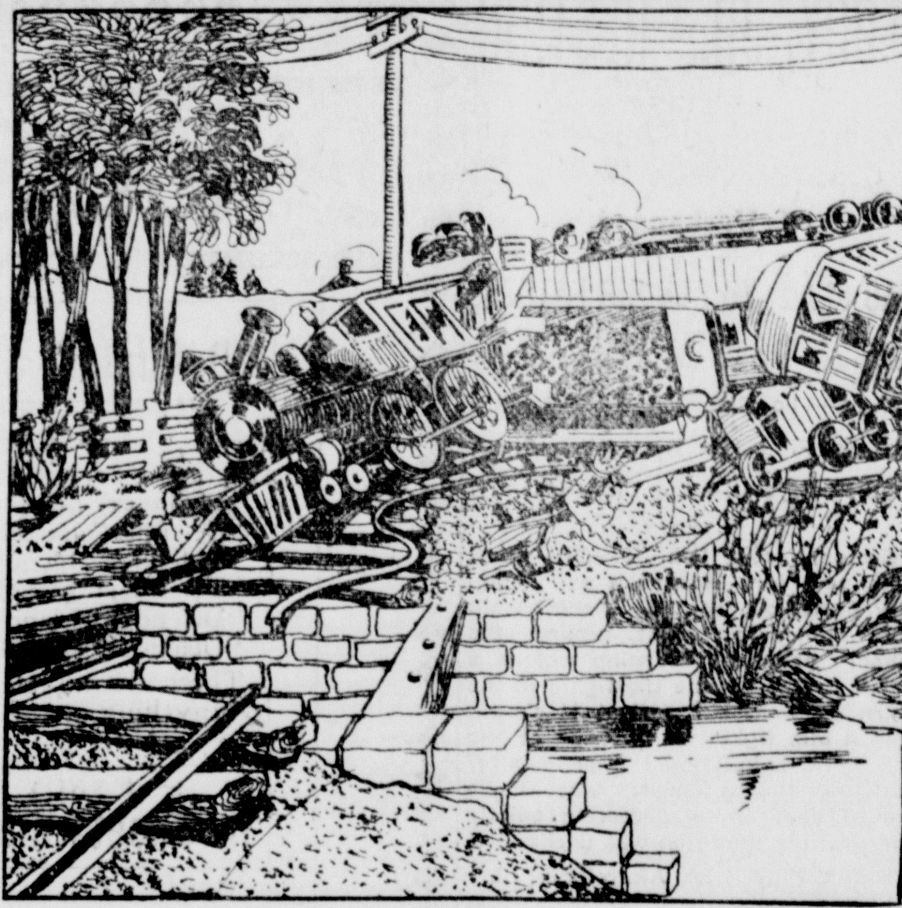

Along lower ranges superior systematization manifests itself in the grasp of far-reaching industrial conditions, the ability to evolve schemes and projects well fitted to their purposes and the capacity for careful speculation so characteristic of the business man, whose activity, consciously or not, is the outgrowth of an instinct to provide for those dependent upon him.

Even in morbid cases systematization shows its intimate connection with sex, in women often concerning itself directly with children, while in men may be observed obsessions and delusions reflecting more masculine physiological tendencies.

Systematization is a function which indicates the use of associational fibers and depends on an increase in the brain paths used. Adolescence, however, asserts itself also in the manner in which these brain paths are used. This is a matter of disposition of energy and can best be understood by a slight comparison of the sexes, the differences of which at this age become more marked.

These differences, it is to be noticed, are not less striking from a mental than from a physical standpoint. Probably the most comprehensive view of this phase of the matter has been brought out by Havelock Ellis, who shows that, on the whole, the female sex in lower forms of life, as well as in human beings, tends more easily and for longer periods toward the accumulation of energy and material, while the male sex accumulates mainly for the purpose of immediate expenditure. Not only physically, but mentally, morally and spiritually, man is by his very constitution more violent than woman and exposed to all the dangers as well as reaping the advantages characteristic of such a temperament.

To say that man is stronger than woman refers only to this quality of violence. His grip on the dynamometer is two or three times greater than woman's, and he can handle better the pickax or the club. The implications of this physical peculiarity are not, however, so insignificant as it might appear. It follows therefrom, indeed, that not only all energetic labor, but also the direction of labor, can be more economically and effectually accomplished by him. He who directs work must know what that work is by actual experience. The foreman of the gang knows by remembered effect on his own muscles just what he may expect in both force and adjustment from every man under his charge. He is thus not likely to demand either too much or too little. The captain of a steamship, to take another example, could not safely be a woman, even although no actual physical work be required of such an officer. An understanding of the efforts required, especially in times of strain, would not be possible to her except from a meager intellectual standpoint. In all effort requiring physical force, as well as in the mental organization of such effort, man must always be the prime mover. Even professions, such as that of law, which require great expenditure of energy in short periods of strain, as in the culminating speech to a jury, are likely to yield their best fruits to men. Success in such cases belongs to the individual who can deliver one blow that will penetrate rather than ten which just fail to do so.

This tendency to violence has its seamy side. Men die much more readily than women. One hundred and six boy babies are born for every hundred girl babies, and yet after 60 women are much in the majority. Just because they are more energetic men are also lazier than women, at least in the intervals of expenditure. Morally they are disposed more easily to crime, especially crimes of violence. There are more suicides among men, and there is more insanity. There are, however, also a larger number of inventors, even in such fields as music, where there are dozens of women who are taught music for every man who knows anything about it. It is the same way in religion. As Mrs. Marholme points out, "Man is what we women never are—a suprasensuous being." As for the kingdom of heaven, it is the violent which take it by force.

TIGHT REIN ON THE TRUSTS

Provided For In Some of Recommendations Made by Industrial Commission.

Washington, Feb. 10.—The second part of the report of the industrial commission was made public. It covers manufactures and industrial combinations and its recommendations quotes from its report to congress, 1900, in which it then recommended: That the promoters and organizers of corporations or industrial combinations which look to the public to purchase or deal in their stocks or securities should be required to furnish full details regarding the organization.

That any prospectus or announcement of any kind soliciting subscriptions, which fails to make full disclosures as aforesaid, or which is false, should be deemed fraudulent, and that all information concerning the corporation should be open to investors, and that the larger corporations—the so-called trusts—should be required to publish annually a properly audited report, showing in reasonable detail their assets and liabilities, with profit or loss, such report and audit under oath to be subject to government inspection.

The commission further recommends in part: District attorneys be authorized to sue for violations of federal anti-trust laws.

Combinations restraining trade or production should be declared unlawful.

Congress and state legislatures pass laws punishing rate discriminations. State legislatures pass laws to prevent over-capitalization.

Franchise tax be imposed on state corporations engaged in interstate commerce.

There be created in the trade bureau for registration of state corporations in interstate or foreign commerce, for supervision purposes, and to furnish congress proper information for possible future legislation.

WATCH DOGS

Ever on the Alert, Alive to Every Form of Oppression, Kept on Edge, Burdened Beyond Endurance, Nerves Give Out.

The machinery of a mill that grinds day and night has to shut down now and then for repairs. It is the same way with your nerves. Overwork, close application, our ways of living, bring about nerve waste that sets up symptoms of various kinds. It may be falling strength, weakness, languor, headache, sleeplessness, etc. Whatever it is nerve force is lacking, and the means of restoring rests with Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills. A great many people in East Liverpool vouch for this. Among them is Mr. James Poppin, of No. 302 Third street, East Liverpool, O., who says: "Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills I got at Larkin's drug store, corner Sixth and East Market streets, are a fine nerve tonic. As a result of hard work I was generally debilitated, nervous and could not sleep. I needed rebuilding and found in the nerve pills the medicine needed. They have the power to steady and strengthen the nerves, give restful sleep and general vigor to the system at large."

Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills are sold at 50 cents a box at dealers, or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Company, Buffalo, N. Y. See that portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M. D., are on every package.

PHILIPPINE TARIFF BILL.

Likely to Hold Foremost Place in Senate This Week.

Washington, Feb. 10.—The Philippine question will continue to hold foremost place on the senate calendar during the present week, but there is little probability that the Philippine bill will be disposed of before the close of the week. Democratic senators say they will require several weeks' more time in which to consider the measure. Senator Lodge, as chairman of the committee having the bill in charge, has not failed to impress upon them his intention of pressing it with the utmost dispatch consistent with due consideration of so important a measure. There are several Democratic senators prepared to speak on the bill.

Senator Quarles will report the permanent census bill today before the Philippine bill is taken up and will make an effort to secure immediate consideration. If he succeeds the census bill probably will alternate with the Philippine bill for a few days. Senator Quarles hopes that the census bill may be passed without much delay. The irrigation bill also occupies a place of vantage on the senate calendar, and with the other bills mentioned out of the way will be pressed to the front.

On Friday Senator Penrose will ask the senate to listen to eulogies on the late Representative Brosius, of Pennsylvania.

FORECAST OF THE HOUSE.

War Tax Repeal Bill to Be Held Over Until Next Week.

Washington, Feb. 10.—A varied program confronts the house for the coming week. Owing to the absence of a large number of Republicans, who will go to different points of the country to participate in the celebration of Lincoln's birthday on Wednesday, consideration of the bill to repeal the war taxes will be postponed until next week. Today is District of Columbia day. Tomorrow consideration of the oleomargarine bill will be resumed under the agreement made last week to devote another day to general debate, followed by a day of debate under the five-minute rule. The passage of the bill by a good majority is considered assured, although the substitute proposition probably will command a larger vote than it did in the last congress. The committee on war claims will have a day following the disposition of the oleomargarine bill, and the latter part of the week will probably be devoted to consideration of the Indian, postoffice or army appropriation bill, all of which are expected to be reported earlier in the week.

Houses and Superstitions.

"Real estate men are gradually forgetting most of the old time superstitions which used to cause us much trouble," said a dealer the other day. "The number of houses which cannot be rented or sold on account of being haunted or because some terrible crime was committed on the premises is rapidly decreasing. We run across only a few people who balk at living in house No. 13. Even elderly men who have made big fortunes are beginning to believe that there is nothing in the old saying that the aged rich man builds a mansion to die in."—New York Tribune.

12 PERSONS PERISHED

Unable to Escape From Burning Lodging House, at St. Louis.

MANY OTHERS WERE INJURED.

Some of Those Who Escaped Had to Jump From Windows—Had to Leave In Incomplete Attire and Were Frostbitten.

St. Louis, Feb. 10.—An early morning fire Sunday, which destroyed the Empire hotel, a large three-story lodging house at 2700 and 2702 Olive street, occupied by men exclusively, caused the death of 12 persons, 10 men and one woman, and dangerously injured eight others. Ten or more who had narrow escapes from death in the fire were more or less injured by being frostbitten. It is estimated that there were between 35 and 40 persons in the building Sunday night, and it is believed that all have been accounted for. The financial loss is nominal. It is thought that $20,000 will cover the damage to building and contents, which were totally destroyed.

The Dead.

Morris Yall, senior member of the firm of Yall, Clark & Cowen, manufacturers of fine cut glass, formerly of Chicago; burned to a crisp.

Tobe Davis, man about town, suffocated.

John C. Leanders, father of Deputy City Marshal Leo Leanders; skull fractured in jumping from third-story window.

George Thompson, switchman, Terminal yards; burned to death.

Sarah Harris, colored chambermaid, burned.

B. F. Woodley, employe Hamilton Brown Shoe company, burned.

J. A. McMullen, carpenter, burned.

S. T. Corey, telegraph operator, Merchant's Terminal association.

Vance Marlin, civil engineer, Indianapolis, burned.

A. J. Allen, Sedalia, Mo., stone mason, burned.

The Injured.

Harry Cline, medical student, of Marion, Ill., hands badly burned and ankle sprained.

Walter Johnson, employe Hamilton Brown Shoe company, hands burned, both legs broken and injured internally.

Henry Robinson, negro, night porter, badly burned.

George Lane, medical student, of Rich Hill, Mo., ankle sprained in jumping from second-story window.

Sturgeon, dental student, back sprained in jumping from second-story window.

Harry Thompson, medical student, Nashville, Ill., ankle sprained in jumping from second-story window.

J. J. Lally, manager Empire hotel; back badly sprained while escaping from building.

Con Ryan, burned about face.

About 10 or 12 others less seriously injured, being bruised, burned or suffering from exposure.

Considerable Delay In Giving Alarm.

The fire started about 3:30 a. m., when but few persons were abroad, and gained considerable headway before it was discovered and the alarm given. There was considerable delay in turning in an alarm, and when the engines finally reached the scene the whole front of the building was in flames and the interior was a seething furnace. By that time all who escaped death had got out of the building by jumping from windows or climbing down ropes made of bedclothes. A few escaped from the ground floor through the front door. Some of the escapes were very narrow.

Almost All Suffered Some Injury.

Almost everybody who got out suffered some injury or was frostbitten. The guests barely had time to get out when aroused, the flames had spread so rapidly. Some saved their clothing, which they carried in their hands, but others were not so fortunate, losing everything. After some delay nearly houses were opened to the unfortunates and they were given shelter from the biting cold weather. It was one of the coldest nights of the winter, the ground being covered with ice and snow, and everyone suffered from exposure. The sufferers were put in the care of physicians. After a short fight the firemen got the flames under control.

TEDDY, JR., RESTING

Quietly, Last Night, and His Condition Was Reported Unchanged.

WAS GLAD TO SEE HIS FATHER,

Yesterday Afternoon, When He Arrived—The President Was Delighted to Find His Head Was Clear. Other Boys Ill—One Died Recently.

Groton, Mass., Feb. 10.—The president, with Mrs. Roosevelt and Secretary Cortelyou, went for a short walk after dinner last night, around the school campus, returning before 9 o'clock. One by one the lights in the infirmary went out, and at 11 o'clock only a dim light was showing at one end of the building. Shortly after that the announcement was made that Teddy, Jr., was resting quietly and that his condition was unchanged.

Didn't Find Him Alarmingly Ill.

Groton, Mass., Feb. 10.—President Roosevelt, upon his arrival at Groton, Sunday afternoon, did not find his son, Theodore, Jr., alarmingly ill with pneumonia, but the boy's condition was not sufficiently reassuring to warrant the president's immediate return to the national capital. Young Roosevelt, with two school mates, Horace B. Potter, of New York, and William Gammell, of Providence, both having pneumonia, lie in large, airy rooms on the second floor of the college infirmary.

Mrs. Roosevelt has been with her son for two days.

He greeted his father cheerily Sunday afternoon.

Last night it was stated that his condition was unchanged and that he was holding his own well. The school has been dismissed and the 150 boys have scattered to their homes upon an enforced vacation.

Will Await Substantial Improvement.

All the sick boys are having the best medical attention and nursing. The president's stay here is indefinite, although it is not believed it will be prolonged much after Wednesday, unless the boy's condition takes a turn for the worse. Pneumonia being always alarming, the president has thought it well to stay here until he has some assurance of his son's recovery.

The president arrived here at 2:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon, after an uneventful trip of 14 hours, from Washington. He came on the private car Rambler, arriving in Jersey City soon after 7 a. m. The car was immediately transferred by boat across Harlem river, and left Mott Haven as a special train at 8:20 a. m. A stop was made at New Haven, where a dispatch was handed to the president, stating that the boy's condition was encouraging. No other stops were made until Providence was reached, where there was a slight delay on account of an accident to the engine. The train pulled into South station in Boston at 12:45 p. m., but was immediately hauled out and around the city through Cambridge to the Grand Junction station of the Boston and Maine railroad. The run from Boston to Ayer Junction was made in a little over 40 minutes, and there the car was transferred to the Worcester, Nashua and Rochester division of this road, the train arriving at 2:30.

President Greeted With Cheers.

There were no crowds at any of the stations, except at Ayer, where there was a gathering of about 500. The president came out of his seclusion and bowed to the crowd from the back platform, his appearance being greeted with cheers.

Rev. S. Endicott Peabody, the principal of the Groton school, was at the Groton station to meet the president, and with him was Rev. Sherrard Billings, his assistant.

The president, with Secretary Cortelyou, immediately jumped into a two-seated Democrat wagon and Mr. Billings drove the party rapidly up the hill to the school building.

Mrs. Roosevelt was at the window as the president drove past into the yard and greeted him as he mounted the stairs. The two then went to the sick boy's room and the president was delighted to find that his son's head was very clear and that he was overjoyed to see his father. The president did not remain long, however, although he spent several hours in the office on the ground floor. The president and Mrs. Roosevelt, together with Secretary Cortelyou, are being entertained at the house of William Amory Gardner, brother-in-law of Mrs. John L. Gardner, of Boston, a very wealthy man, but nevertheless one of the instructors in the school.

Other Boys Ill; One Died.

It appears that quite a number of the boys have contracted colds during the past three or four weeks, probably from strenuous exercise and lack of caution afterwards. It is said that it has been the habit of some of them to play hand ball in the closed court and then, while perspiring freely, to dash across the campus to the gymnasium, clad only in the lightest of clothes. Only four, however, contracted pneumonia, although one case resulted fatally, that of Edward Hodges, who died here about 10 days ago. The other boys contracted severe colds, but were able to return to their homes when school was dismissed last week.

INSPIRING SERVICES

Held at the Presbyterian Church Encourage Many to Better Lives.

The services of yesterday at the First Presbyterian church will be remembered long by those present, because they were of great spiritual power. The backslider prayed "Restore unto me the joy of Thy salvation." The faithful Christian was inspired to nobler life and it was a day of decision to many.

Rev. Mr. Biederwolf spoke on "No Room for Christ" at the 11 o'clock service. He showed how Christ was refused in politics, business, society and in the home. Prof. Maxwell sang impressively "Christ Is All in All." The invitation was accepted by many to take Christ in their lives and homes.

At the 2:30 p. m. meeting about 500 men were present to hear "The Athletics of Life." The plain, practical sermon inspired a goodly number to determine to live a life brave and true to God and they went away rejoicing.

The last service of the day began at 7:30 with a song service, and Prof. Maxwell has the art of getting all to sing. Rev. Mr. Biederwolf preached more especially to the young. He submitted five reasons why we should begin to live a Christian life early. Because it is the most manly and womanly thing to do, the highest type of life; it is the only happy life; it is the life of gratitude; it is the safe life; it is the life of helpful influence.

In the after meeting a great many signified a desire to live for Christ. This evening Prof. Maxwell will sing "Shall I Meet My Sanctified Mother?"

IMPRESSIVE SERVICES

And Large Congregations at the Second Presbyterian Church Yesterday.

Large congregations attended both services at the Second Presbyterian church yesterday, and it was a day of great blessing to the growing church. At the morning service Harry Laughlin sang a solo, entitled "The Celestial City," and he and his brother Arthur, who is directing the music during the meeting in the church, sang in a pleasing way a duet entitled "Angel Voices."

The services, as they always are at this church, were impressive and helpful. The pastor, Rev. N. M. Crowe, preached in the morning from I Chron. 29:5, "Who, then is willing to consecrate his service this day unto the Lord?" And in the evening from Hebrew 11:6, "But without faith it is impossible to please; for he that cometh to God must believe that He is and that He is a rewarder of them that diligently seek Him."

Arthur Laughlin sang two solos at the evening service that were highly appreciated by the large audience present.

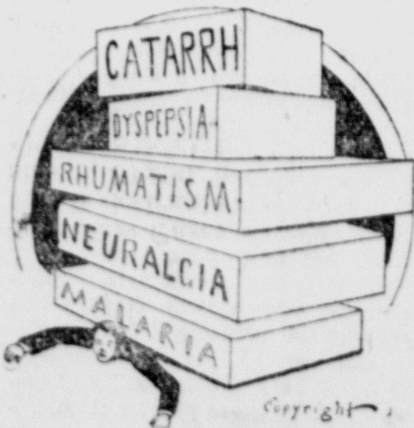

Rev. S. T. Boston will preach tonight at 7:45 and the Laughlin brothers will sing.
